THE AMENDMENT WORKING WELL.

The Memphis Morning News has the following significant item:

"The new constitution of Alabama has eliminated the negro as a voting factor from the politics of that State and the Alabama Republicans, who have so long howled for negro suffrage and political domination have really indorsed the action of the Democratic party and gone it one better by also excluding the negro from Republican primaries. Thus proving conclusively that all they wanted of him from the beginning was to use him, and since he can no longer be of service as a voter they cast him off as a worn-out garment.

"The following resolution has been passed by the Republican State executive committee of Alabama:

"Resolved, That only those shall be recognized or permitted to participate in the State and county conventions and be at meetings who are duly qualified voters under the new constitution of Alabama.

"This is an effort to build up a white Republican party in Alabama. The Republican leaders figure that there are many Democrats who would vote the Republican ticket because of belief in the policies enunciated in the platform were it not for the fact that they fear negro political rule. With the negro question eliminated, the Republican figure that by kicking the colored man out of the councils of the party they can be enabled to make large gains among the white people of Alabama."

There is really nothing surprising in this and it seems to apply almost as well here. Since the Republican party can't win with the negro it is pretty well satisfied that the best way is to cut loose from him and cease to be tempted to get down in the dirt for his vote, but to build up a party in the State that will commend itself to such as might prefer the Republican party but for the odium of having to appease his desire for a prominence in political affairs to which his attainments do not entitle him. We do not understand why some of our best men are Republicans but we can understand why some who might prefer the party yet affiliate with the Democratic party as long as the ignorant negro vote must be relied on for winning political victories. If the constitutional amendment is to give us two parties which may divide the self respecting on principles of right and policies of government it is surely very desirable from every standpoint and its effects seem to tend that way.

OUR TEACHERS INSTITUTE.

We congratulate Superintendent Boger in securing a corps of instructors for the institute that have made it more than usually successful. We are hardly in sympathy with the law that compels poorly paid teachers to attend institutes at their own expense of time and necessary outlay, but doubtless they will go home infused with new progressiveness. We could not attend but we are glad to know that in every department new light was thrown on the teacher's pathway. We trust that it has been a week of pleasure and profit to the teachers that will be reflected in the juveniles whom they train. It is doubtless gratifying too to the instructors that they have had a splendid attendance and appreciative hearers. There were 80 enrolled in the department for the whites and 49 in the department for the colored.

The fact was brought out at the late reunion at Greensboro that there are yet 40,000 Confederate soldiers in the Old North State. The man that stood the war can stand much.

Mortifying Indiscretion.

Dr. Andrew Sledd, Professor of Latin in Emory College, Oxford, Ga., having written a magazine article in which he stated that Southern people regard the negro as little higher than the beast and treats him accordingly has been so severely criticised by the press that he has sent his resignation to the Board of Directors.—Our Church Paper.

A BEAUTIFUL SKIN.

How You May Secure This Envyable Possession.

An eminent scientist declares that we should not neglect the best of all food in eating and drinking, "to take fruit," and adds as regards cooked fruit, "jam for the million, jelly for the luxurious and juice for all." Another writer attributes the unusual beauty of the Devonshire ladies to the fact that they are great fruit eaters and counsels all who desire like them "a fair countenance" to follow their example.

Americans may very easily avail themselves of this aid to beauty, says the Washington Star, and while fresh fruit is comparatively scarce the home caterer should always have a succession of fruit on the table. This is supposed to be expensive and if made by certain recipes will be found so. A rich fruity sirup, however, may be made from evaporated fruit and wine omitted. It need not then be denied to children, and with the wine the extra expense vanishes.

The tart variety of evaporated cherries yields a delicious juice. They should be well washed, soaked over night, stemmed gently until all the goodness is extracted, then the fruit strained out and the juice sweetened. Tamarinds may be used in the same way, the pit only rejected, and give a delightful flavor peculiar to themselves. With these and juices of other evaporated fruits as foundation any surplus from canned or preserved fruit should be added, and also oranges, with white and tough parts removed, should be cut in bits and stirred in. French prunes are also very good. They should be soaked in water over night, pitted, the pit removed, the meat cut in bits and added. The whole should now be brought to the boil and stewed gently until evenly sweetened. The amount of sugar must be determined by tasting.

By watching the market a ripe pineapple may be bought for 10 or 15 cents and is always a delicious addition. After peeling it may either be shredded or cut in bits.

How to Travel.

An experienced traveler says that most of the fatigue of a long journey is quite unnecessary and comes from an unconscious effort to carry the train instead of letting the train carry us—that is, in resisting the motion instead of relaxing and yielding to it. He advises always resting the feet on the rail of the seat in front, if such is provided, as to keep the foot off the floor lessens the vibration that is conveyed to the body and prevents just that much strain. A bag will do as well for a footstool if nothing else is to be had. The body while sitting in a car should be as completely relaxed as possible. Until one attempts this relaxation in a railway car it is not discovered how tense is the effort to resist the motion, all of which is in direct accordance with modern physical culture, which has discovered that true repose goes further than mere nonaction.

How to Clean Globes.

An excellent way is to wash them with soap and warm water in which a little salt of lemon has been mixed. The great difficulty in the way of getting the ground portion of the globe to look white is the grease, which sets closely in the roughness and which does not seem to be thoroughly removed by soap and water alone or even with the help of soda. After the globes have been carefully washed in the manner recommended, do not dry them with a cloth, but after letting the tap run on them for awhile, put them in some place where the water can drain off.

How to Make Onions Inoffensive.

If one likes raw onions, but suffers from a burning sensation after eating them, this objection to their use can be removed by covering the peeled and sliced onions with cold water for a half hour before using. Take up on a plate and with the back of a silver spoon press to get out all of the rank flavor. Ice and garnish with curled parsley, which, if eaten after the onion, will take away much of the odor from the breath. A swallow of vinegar is also efficacious in subduing the odor.

How to Cook Clams With Peppers.

A delicious dish for luncheon or supper is made of green peppers and clams. Put a tablespoonful of butter in the pan and cook in it for five minutes a green pepper chopped fine. Then add the hard parts of twenty clams chopped fine and cook them four minutes. Put in a third of a cupful of the clam juice and the soft parts of the clams and cook three minutes longer. Season with salt and paprika and serve on toast.
