That's What Mount Pleasant Lady Says Cardui Is and Tells What It Did for Her.

Mt. Pleasant, Tenn.—"As a girl I was always well and hearty," says Mrs. M. E. Rail, of this place. "I have always been accounted healthy. I never felt any trouble like... weakness until I came to the change of life. I was about forty-five when that began. I think I would have died had I not found out what a good friend to women Cardui is.

"I suffered a great deal. I had a number of fainting spells, and... would be obliged to lie in bed a week or two at a time. I never liked to lie in bed because it interfered so with my work. The swimming in my head was nearly continuous. I could not stoop down it would make me so dizzy. I think I used Cardui off and on for two or three years, using in that time about 8 or 10 bottles. I began to feel the improvement in health before I had taken one bottle, but kept on taking it until I got in perfect health.

"Had it not been for Cardui I know I would have been dead. Now I am 62 years old, and weigh about 175, and am in the most perfect health."

Give Cardui a trial for your troubles. It should do for you what it has done for thousands of others.—Adv.

PRESIDENT WILSON DELIVERS INAUGURAL ADDRESS; STATES AMERICA'S HOPES AND FEARS

THE PRESIDENT RENEWS HIS ALLEGIANCE TO CONSTITUTION

CONSECRAES INAUGURATION WITH MESSAGE OF HOPE FOR PEACE.

Washington. — Woodrow Wilson, with the major part of the world at war, and America poised on its verge, consecrated his second inauguration as President of the United States with a message of hope for peace.

Standing in the shadows of the Nation's Capitol, with his face turned toward the Eastern war-seared skies, the President renewed his oath of allegiance to the Constitution, praying to Almighty God that he might be given wisdom and prudence to do his duty in the true spirit of the American people.

Washington. — President Wilson's inaugural address was as follows:

"My fellow citizens: The four years which have elapsed since I stood in this place have been crowded with counsel and action of the most vital interest and consequence. Perhaps no equal period in our history has been so fruitful of important reforms in our economic and industrial life or so full of significant changes in the spirit and purpose of our political action. We have sought very thoughtfully to set our house in order, correct the grosser errors and abuses of our industrial life, liberate and quicken the processes of our national genius and energy, and lift our politics to a broader view of the people's essential interests. It is a record of singular variety and singular distinction. But I shall not attempt to review it. It speaks for itself and will be of increasing influence as the years go by. This is not the time for retrospect. It is time rather, to speak our thoughts and purposes concerning the present and the immediate future.

"Although we have centered counsel and action with such unusual concentration and success upon the great problems of domestic legislation to which we addressed ourselves four years ago, other matters have more and more forced themselves upon our attention, matters lying outside our own life as a nation and over which we had no control, but which, despite our wish to keep free of them, have drawn us more and more irresistibly into their own current and influence.

"It has been impossible to avoid them. They have affected the life of the whole world. They have shaken men everywhere with a passion and an apprehension that they never knew before. It has been hard to preserve calm counsel while the thought of our own people swayed this way and that under their influence. We are a composite and cosmopolitan people. We are of the blood of all the nations that are at war. The currents of our thoughts as well as the currents of our trade ran quick at all seasons back and forth between us and them. The war inevitably set its mark from the first alike upon our minds, our industries, our commerce, our policies, and our social action. To be independent of it was out of the question.

"And yet all the while we have been conscious that we were not part of it. In that consciousness, despite many divisions, we have drawn closer together. We have been deeply wronged on the seas, but we have not wished to wrong or injure in return; have retained throughout the consciousness of standing in some sort apart, intent upon an interest that transcended the immediate issues of the war itself. As some of the injuries done us have become intolerable, we have still been clear that we wished nothing for ourselves that we were not ready to demand for all mankind—fair dealing, justice, the freedom to live and to be at ease against organized wrong.

"There are many things still to do at home, to clarify our own policies and give new vitality to the industrial processes of our own life, and we shall do them as time and opportunity serve; but we realize that the greatest things that remain to be done must be done with the whole world for a stage and in co-operation with the wide and universal forces of mankind, and we are making our spirits ready for those things. They will follow in the immediate wake of the war itself and will set civilization up again. We are provincials no longer. The tragic events of the thirty months of vital turmoil through which we have just passed have made us citizens of the world. There can be no turning back. Our own fortunes as a nation are involved, whether we would have it so or not.

"And yet we are not the less Americans on that account. We shall be the more American if we but remain true to the principles in which we have been bred. They are not the principles of a province or of a single continent. We have known and boasted all along that they were the principles of a liberated mankind. These, therefore, are the things we shall stand for, whether in war or in peace.

"That all nations are equally interested in the peace of the world and in the political stability of free peoples, and equally responsible for their maintenance;

"That the essential principle of peace is the actual equality of nations in all matters of right or privilege;

"That peace can not securely or justly rest upon an armed balance of power;

"That governments derive all their just powers from the consent of the governed and that no other powers should be supported by the common thought, purpose, or power of the family of nations.

"That the seas should be equally free and safe for the use of all peoples, under rules set up by common agreement and consent, and that, so far as practicable, they should be accessible to all upon equal terms;

"That national armaments should be limited to the necessities of national order and domestic safety;

"That the community of interest and power upon which peace must henceforth depend imposes upon each nation the duty of seeing to it that all influences proceeding from its own citizens meant to encourage or assist revolution in other states should be sternly and effectually suppressed and prevented.

"I need not argue these principles to you, my fellow countrymen. They are your own, part and parcel of your own thinking and our own motive in affairs. They spring up native amongst us. Upon this as a platform of our purpose and action, we can stand together.

"And it is imperative that we should stand together. We are being forced into a new unity amidst the fires that now blaze throughout the world. In their ardent heat we shall, in God's providence, let us hope, be purged of faction and division, purified of the errant humors of party, of private interest, and shall stand for the days to come with a new dignity of national pride and spirit. Let each man see to it that the dedication is in his own heart, the high purpose of the nation in his own mind, ruler of his own will and desire.

"I stand here and have taken the high and solemn oath to which you have been audience because the people of the United States have chosen me for this august delegation of power and have by their gracious judgment named me leader in affairs. I know now what the task means. I realize to the full the responsibility which it involves. I pray God I may be given the wisdom and the prudence to do my duty in the true spirit of this great people. I am their servant and can succeed only as they sustain and guide me by their confidence and their counsel. The thing I shall count upon, the thing without which neither counsel nor action will avail, is the unity of America—an America united in feeling, in purpose, and in its vision of duty, of opportunity, and of service. We are to beware of all men who would turn the tasks and the necessities of the nation to their own private profit or use them for the building up of private power; beware that no faction or disloyal intrigue break the harmony or embarrass the spirit of our people; beware that our government be kept pure and incorrupt in all its parts. United alike in the conception of our duty and in the high resolve to perform it in the face of all men, let us dedicate ourselves to our hand. For myself, I beg your tolerance, your countenance, and your united aid. The shadows that now lie dark upon our path will soon be dispelled and we shall walk with the light all about us if we be true to ourselves—to ourselves as we have wished to be known in the councils of the world and in the thought of all those who love liberty, justice and the right who exalted."

GRAND PROCESSION AT INAUGURATION OF WOODROW WILSON

KHAKI, BRONZED GUARDSMEN, JUST HOME FROM BORDER GUARD LINE.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. WILSON RIDE IN AN OPEN CARRIAGE

Long Line of Military Organizations, Guardsmen, Sailors, Cadets, Veterans, Governors, Women and Civilians Make Up the Inaugural Parade.

Washington.—The mighty procession which marked President Wilson's second inauguration marched with wind-whipped flags over Pennsylvania avenue from the Capitol to the White House between open lines of khaki, bronzed guardsmen from New York, home from service on the border. It was the first time since the inauguration of Lincoln in 1861 that troops had guarded the line of march.

Despite the wind and lowering clouds, which early in the day darkened the city with threats of a continuation of the downpour, almost every foot of vantage space along the mile-long way was occupied, and the great reviewing stands, windows, balconies and housetops held thousands more.

The crowd waited patiently behind the stout steel cables stretching from the White House to the Capitol, hundreds of early comers being in position at 7 o'clock, four hours before the President and his party left the White House. Ten hours later, when the last of the marchers was nearing the reviewing stand, the line still held.

Presidential Party. President Wilson and his escort, Squadron B of the Second Cavalry, left the White House at 11 o'clock, the President and Mrs. Wilson riding in an open carriage drawn by four horses, preceded by mounted police and cavalry and flanked by secret service men. The Vice President followed in another carriage, with his smart-looking escort of cadets from Culver Military Academy, mounted on black horses.

As the procession left the Court of Honor, opposite the White House, the cavalry formed a hollow square, with the President's carriage in the center. It was shortly after 1 o'clock when the inaugural parade started up the avenue, the President and his escort leading.

Meantime the sun had come out, drying the sand sprinkled over the way. The line moved slowly between two New York regiments—the Twelfth and the Sixty-ninth—standing at attention. They were the visible evidence of elaborate steps taken to insure the President's safety.

With bands blaring many tunes and flags whipping, the parade got under way—a long line of brilliant color. First came the West Point cadets, overcoated, a marching mass of gray and white whose clock-like movements were as of one man. They were followed by the Annapolis cadets, 1,200 strong, wearing their deep blue overcoats.

Military Organizations. Then came the long line of military organizations, guardsmen, sailors, coast artillerymen and cadet schools which formed the first, and second divisions, under command of Major General Tasker H. Bliss and Brig. Gen. Williams A. Mann. As the head of the line reached the Court of Honor the marchers stopped and remained at attention for 20 minutes while the President prepared to take the place in the reviewing stand.

A bugle gave the signal, and the long line moved again. The inaugural parade was on, with the President standing where Presidents long have stood on inauguration day to review the marchers. For nearly four hours they filed past—sailors, soldiers, guardsmen, cadets, veterans, Governors and their staffs, thousands of civilians in civic and political organizations, Indians here and there, a line of women, and hundreds of brass bands.

The crowds in the reviewing stand and on the streets were chilled by the wind. The paraders marched stoutly in the face of it. In sudden gusts, it picked up the sand and blinded them, swept their colors from their grasp and sent their hats high in the air.

At times, whole organizations had to halt while a particularly severe gust sent its force, musicians had to empty the sand from their instruments in the midst of playing and color-bearers by the hundred had to turn their colors. But the crowd was more orderly than usual, and the paraders took it all in good part.

It was after 5 o'clock when the parade ended. Pennsylvania avenue no longer looked its customary spick and span cleanliness. Instead, it resembled a dusty road, with the wind whirling the dust and the litter of torn papers into the spirals.

PAIN? NOT A BIT! LIFT YOUR CORNS OR CALLUSES OFF

No humbug! Apply few drops then just lift them away with fingers.

This new drug is an ether compound discovered by a Cincinnati chemist. It is called freezeone, and can now be obtained in tiny bottles as here shown at very little cost from any drug store. Just ask for freezeone. Apply a drop or two directly upon a tender corn or callus and instantly the soreness disappears. Shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it off, root and all, with the fingers.

Not a twinge of pain, soreness or irritation; not even the slightest smarting, either when applying freezeone or afterwards.

This drug doesn't eat up the corn or callus, but shrivels them so they loosen and come right out. It is no humbug! It works like a charm. For a few cents you can get rid of every hard corn, soft corn or corn between the toes, as well as painful calluses on bottom of your feet. It never disappoints and never burns, bites or inflames. If your druggist hasn't any freezeone yet, tell him to get a little bottle for you from his wholesale house.—adv.
