NOTES AND COMMENTS.

A jury composed entirely of negroes was empanneled last week to try a colored brother for a breach of the peace. They fined him $3.50 and costs.

A paragraph is going the rounds that Senator Jno. W. Daniels, of Virginia, has decided to resign his senatorship which does not expire till 1899, and enter the ministry.

The Legislature or some thirty-two States will be in session during the present month of January. The Chicago Herald calls upon them to instruct the Federal Senators from their respective States to vote for such a revision of the absurd Senate rules as will permit the Senate to transact business. Attorney General Osborne, in his be ennial report to the governor, which has just been made, states that there have been eight lynchings in North Cirolina during the past two years. while there were only two for the two years previous. Mr. Osborne says that no indictment for lynching has been prosecuted to conviction in that State for years past, and suggests that the governor in his forthcoming message to the Legislature recommend that changes be made in the law governing the trial of persons charged with the crime of which lynching is the almost universal sequel.

Senator Peffer has done one distinctly good thing, in introducing a bill to limit funeral expenses for dead Senators and representatives, to coffining them decently and delivering them to their friends by a sergeant-at-arms. As these affairs have been conducted they have been infinitely disgraceful. A committee is appointed to accompany the remains, a special train is secured for the purpose, and the steward, cooks, etc. lay in ample supplies. Thus they speed across the country, a corpse in one car sold twenty sets, and everybody who and cards, unlimited wine, etc., in another and the dear people must pay the biil. If any one can show why a senator or representative, who dies when in office, should be buried at the public expense, any more than a town constable or pound master, let him do so .-

A Progressve Reform. The Boston Herald says: "Very few people realize the significance of the additions recently made by the President to the classified civil service. The places affected by them number thousands, and, particularly in the internal revenue department, have been among the plums most coveted by the humbler order of political workers about election time. The entire departmental service at Washington is now classified, except messengers, laborers unskilled workmen and watchmen. So is the custom service at eleven ports down to the places paying $900 a year, always excepting, the confidential posi-tions and those whose incumbents are subject to confirmation by the Senate. The classified postal service embraces all positions above the grade of laborer, except superintendents of money order divisions and postmasters. The railway postal service has been classified so as to embrace all its employes. Classification has gone as far as is practical in the Indian service, and a very de cided advance has been made toward taking the internal revenue department out of politics."

COLUMBIA, S. C., January 16 .- At

Edgefield yesterday afternoon, in the narrow confines of Attorney G. Me-Gowan Simpkins' law office, two young men, members of the closely allied and politically powerful families of Tillman and Evans, fought an impromptu duel, discharging their pistols at each other three times each, and shedding one another's blood. One of the young men was Captain James H. Tillman, a nepew of the ex-Governor and son of ex-Congressman George D. Tillman, formerly the clerk of the congressional committee on patents, and the other was the youngest brother of Governor Evans—Banard B. Evans, an insurance agent. There has been bad blood between the two young men for over a year, each claiming that he had been insulted by the other at a German during the holidays of 1898-94. The men had met at Attorney Simpkins' office to settle a note which Evans held against Tillman, when, it seems that Tillman referred to the old trouble. The lie was passed and the duel followed. Fortunately neither of the men are seriously injured. Gov. Evans left for Edgefield last night. There was no politics in it at all. The affair has caused quite a flutter of excitement all over the state.
