Bryan's Commoner is the biggest disappointment of the season. It is a small eight page paper, three colums to the page, and is filled with articles of barely mediocre calibre. Sam Jones says "it is small in size and light in weight," and that he was astonished when he looked over its columns. As usual he has sized up the case pretty well. Hundreds, thousands even, were attracted by curiosity to subscribe for Mr. Bryan's paper, but we will undertake to predict that its circulation during its second year will not be one tenth as much as the first year.

Enters Upon His Second Term as President

MAGNIFICENT CEREMONY

Wonderful Development of the Great Republic Strikingly and Impressively illustrated-Inspiring Scenes and WASHINGTON, March 4. - William Mc Kinley of Ohio today was inducted into the presidential office, being the eighth in the illustrious line of presidents of the United States thus honored by the American people with the second term. Simultaneously Theodore Roosevelt of New York became vice president of the United States. The ceremony that marked this second assumption by President McKinley of the cares of state was impressive and full of suggestion of the development of the republic during the past four years.

On the whole, the weather promised to redeem the pledge of the weather bureau that the weather would be glorious, the temperature being mild and broad stretches of blue sky appearing as the sun forced its way through the clouds. Magnificent Parade. The parade that followed President McKinley today on his return from the capitol to the White House and passed in review there before him was different from all its predecessors in the majestic predominance of the military feature. The civil contingent was quite up to the average in numbers, yet by actual count made by the marshals the soldiers outnumbered the civilians in line by more than three to one. In blue were many soldiers who had carried the country' flag far out into the world and had waged a war which was all in the future when the last inaugural procession marched along Pennsylvania avenue. With these young veterans, and in the place of honor, as the president's escort, marched another contingent, made up entirely of soldiers of the civil war. At letter, which will give a pretty good their head marched the Rough Rider

From White House to Capitol. It was 10:30 o'clock when the presi dent entered the White House carriage. With him were Senator Hanna, Representatives McRea and Cannon. Secretary Cortelyou and the members of the cabinet took their places in their ewn carriage, and with a trumpet blast the processian started. In one of the carriages Admiral Dewey and General Miles were seated together, in full dress uniform. The carriages turned west upon Pennsylvania avenue to reach tho rear of the escort column, and then countermarched, passing the White House again at 10:50 o'clock. Grand Marshal Greene and staff were at the head of the line. One of the most notable and impressive features of the whole day's ceremo-nies was when, like veterals at the word of command, the Porto Rican battalion swung into the line of march They had been resting on Pennsylvania avenue, near Eleventh street, and as the redcoated artillerymen passed them, they wheeled with beautiful precision their place, without causing a second's delay in the marching line.
