* Fair Play *

Little Bill had got the craze for using a slung shot. He had played hooky from school one day to cut the "crotch." He had crept softly into his father's library, opened the table drawer and extracted a rubber band to furnish the March of 15 cents. I am still holding Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and shooting force. He had cut the palm my crop, though I am sympathizing out of his sister's kid glove to make the "stone holder." and now he had left the schoolhouse behind him once more and was off in the green meadow after some frogs to shoot.

> "Jug-a-rum, jug-a-rum!" croaked the frogs along the bank. "Knee-deep, knee deep!" piped the "peepers." Bill lay upon the bank and waited.

"Hope they's a big bummer here," wished Bill to himself. "I've got a dinky round stone here to soak him

SAM JONES LETTER.

Atlanta Journal

I have just returned home from a short trip, with symptoms of grip, and a general cold in the head. With me, like most of other people, a bad cold always settles in the weakest point.

I come back and find cotton is leaping and bounding. I told you so. Cot ton selling for 121 cents today in Cartersville, with prospects by 1st of with the bears, yet, I won't help them by rushing my eight bales on to the market. Since I have looked over the otton fields over many southern states the first of October, I have been convinced that there would not be a 10,000, 000 bale crop this year, and I am still of the opinion that the first of March will see the price of cotton going up to 15 cents. I see they were talking about 25 cent cotton yesterday in New Orleans, but that means the factories will boycott the whole business at that price. I am willing to take 15 cents for my whole crop. Maybe I would sell at 14 3-4. In any event, cotton is king in the financial world today.

Christmas will soon be here again My, how the days and weeks and months fly by us. ## CLEVER STUDENT HAD SPRECH THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE. READY. Charlotte Ogserver

An undergraduate student at Johns Hopkins University made a decided hit at a banquet not long ago in the presence of a small though very select body of distinguished railroad men. The young man in question had been invited to the dinner by virtue of his intimacy with the son, also a Johns Hopkins boy, of the president of a large ailroad in the middle west. There were not very many gentlemen present. t being only an informal affair, and the toastmaster decided to call on everybody at the table for a speech.
