

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs.

This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling how to get all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

UNCLE HIRMAN ON CITY LIFE.

Yes, it's lively in the city, where they've got their electric lights, and the people seem to have wrinkles from their slayin' out o' nights; they've got shows and things to keep 'em from a gittin' lonesome there, and they look all-fired stylish in the costly clo's they wear.

But I guess they have their troubles just the same as you and I, and I reckon that they're often rather worse'n our's, too.

We've got wood piled in the woodshed that'll lag a year or so, and there's more out there that come from and more saplin's still to grow; we ain't worried over coal strikes, let the cold winds blow away;

While they're shiverin' up yonder here we've got so much to see we can heat up for the babies that the Lord sent you and me.

There is always somethin' doin' to make city people sad;

If it ain't a sausage famine, why you'll hear the water's bad;

When the strikers stop the street cars then the kids is to pay, and the people have to foot it, gittin' clubbed along the way.

And the fever epidemics and the smallpox every year.

Keep the city people stevin', and I'm glad to live out here.

Oh, it's quiet in the country and there's few uncommon sights, and God's moon and stars up yonder here to do for festive lights,

But with 'aters in the cellar and with wood piled in the shed,

When there's hay stacked in the hay-mows for the stock that must be fed.

They can have their noisy-city, with the sights up there to see, and the kind old quiet country will be good enough for me.

- S. E. KISSEL, in Chicago Record-Herald.

SAD POLITICAL CHAPTER.

A Republican Says He Cannot Support a Candidate Nominated by the Methods Adopted by the Wilkesboro Convention.

Car. Charlotte Observer.

One of the saddest chapters in the history of the Republican party in North Carolina is the proceeding of the late so-called Republican congressional convention at Wilkesboro and the various processes of political prostitution that led up to it from the primaries.

The writer has always been a Republican—never voted any other ticket in my life—and ever expects to vote, stand by, and contend for those matchless principles of Republicanism as were defined and defended by the immortal Lincoln and McKinley, but when he witnessed in the Wilkesboro convention the deliberate departure from all that the term Republicanism implies, his contempt for such proceedings was kindled with the righteous indignation of a patriot.

He cannot support a candidate nominated by such revolutionary methods. The utter disregard for all parliamentary methods, the wild, reckless revolutionary movements and the self-evident determination of rule or ruin displayed in that convention would be a disgrace to a band of Fiji Islanders much less a body of men calling themselves Republicans.

The fact that Mr. Blackburn had a firm hold on a large part of the district is undisputed by those who are acquainted with affairs. He had worked like a Trojan. Prior to the primaries, the revenue forces, many of the postmasters, and R. F. D. carriers had been moving heaven and earth, so to speak, in their efforts to manufacture Blackburn sentiment. And there were those fellows who dreamed of the time when they were going to be postmasters, rural carriers, etc., who also spent many weary days and almost sleepless nights toiling in the political pot shop trying to construct vessels with Blackburn handles to them.

But after all the political ingenuity of Mr. Blackburn had been exerted, and the orders to his lieutenants carried out to the work of each private performed, still there remained a large and respectable number of Republicans who were anti-Blackburn men; who believe there are men living within the eighth congressional district who have sense enough to represent it. These men are found in every part of the district, from the banks of the Rocky river in Stany to the summits of the Great Smoky mountains in Ashe. Many of these men favor Mr. Linney, some of them Mr. Price and others were for any good Republican who lived in the district. But they were all Republicans, many of them having voted that ticket long before little Spencer ever "drove his mother's cows up to the milk pail," and have never failed to vote the straight Republican ticket down to this day. These men went to Wilkesboro asking for nothing but fairness. They anticipated nothing but just and fair treatment and, like all true Republicans, they expected to abide by that code of Republican jurisprudence that has made the Republican party a power before which the demons of injustice and oppression have had to flee in terror.

But alas, for all their expectations of fairness. Instead of finding the Blackburn forces ready to hear and be heard, and all meet and act as a band of political brothers, with different choices, they were denounced by Mr. Blackburn himself as Democrats and bolters, and hence unworthy to be found in the councils of a Republican convention. And it is but fair to say that these men were treated worse than Democrats.

In Mr. Blackburn's Quixotic eagerness and haste to have a convention called almost before the snow had disappeared from the summits of the Blue Ridge, this intrepid young knight of Guilford had had his lieutenants name a date that barely permitted the necessary time for the legal notices to be served by the county and township chairmen for their respective meetings, and as a result of this unnecessary haste, work had to proceed regardless of legal notices or anything else; hence it was found by the credential committee that irregularities so flagrantly at variance with the plans of organization had been resorted to in five counties of the district that no legal quorum could be had to proceed with the convention. Knowing all these facts, the Blackburn forces proceeded to make their own organization and nominate their man, as they had declared all the time they could do, regardless of rules or precedent. Then, not content with the nomination, Mr. Blackburn, in his speech of acceptance, displayed his utter lack of political wisdom, by proceeding to lambaste all those Republicans who had not jumped headlong into his political cesspool and gone to

WHAT WILL YOU DO WITH THEM?

Mr. W. H. Felton in Atlanta Journal.

Somebody asks. What are we to do with the gangs of wretched whites and negroes, male and female, who infest every city and country town? They are in the calabosses and petty courts nearly all the time, and are a source of annoyance to every decent person.

Fining them does no good. Working them on the streets and roads might do some good, but the trouble is they are worked in such a slaphash way very little good is accomplished. They are useless as citizens, yet they are allowed to increase like rats, to gnaw on the public. What shall be done with them?

I am sure I do not know. As I sit at my window occasionally and look out on the big road, there are individuals of the class named, sometimes droves of them, strolling along, going or coming from town, and they pursue the same business from January to December, and there seems to be no help for such loafing and no prevention for such laziness, and no remedy for their sorry morals and poorer surroundings.

There are thousands of acres of land on which these idlers and loafers and vagrants could make a good living for themselves and others, but they will not work, and they will prey on the community, and you are unable to compel a better state of affairs.

We have a law on the statute books which takes cognizance of people who have no visible means of support, and yet who prey on those who are more industrious. As for that matter, we have plenty of law to check bad conduct among these wretched people, but the law is a dead letter because it is not enforced.

We need an influx of laborers who will work, and then these idlers must starve, get away or go to work for themselves.

Some time since I chanced to go into a shack of a cabin in the suburbs of a city, and there sat two stalwart negro women, their feet over the embers of a chip fire in the middle of a bright, sunshiny day, both reading novels. Both could easily have earned a half dollar that day by washing and ironing (and yet laundry women are "scarce as hen-teeth"), and unless they stole somebody's wood that night there wouldn't be fire enough in the shack to keep a cat warm until next day. Now, it was easy to be seen that they lived off the public. By fair means or foul, they extracted a support from somebody.

No, I cannot answer. I do not know what can be done with them.

NOT HER CLASS.

Philadelphia Ledger.

Not far from Willow Grove lives a young farmer whose fine stock of horses are admired by all who see them. The other day a friend, an amateur, called on him in search of "something fast."

"There," said the stock farm owner, pointing to an animal in the field, "there, sir, is a mare that could trot her mile in three minutes, were it not for one thing."

"Indeed!" said the friend.

"Yes," continued Mr. S., "she was 4 years old last spring, is in good condition, looks well, and is a first-rate mare, and she could go a mile in three minutes were it not for one thing."

"What is it?" was the query.

"That mare," insisted the owner, "is in every way a good mare. I work her three or four days a week. She trots fair and square, and yet there is one thing that prevents her from going a mile in three minutes."

"What in the name of thunder is it?" cried the friend, impatiently.

"Well," replied the other, quietly, "the distance is too great for the time."

CONFEDERATE REUNION.

Raleigh Post.

Gen. Julian S. Carr, of Durham, and Maj. H. A. London, of Pittsboro, held a conference here yesterday relative to plans for the Confederate reunion to be held in Nashville Tenn., June 14th.

The railroads have announced that very low rates will be put on, the round trip fare from Raleigh being $13. A general order will be issued by Gen. Carr shortly outlining the plans for the North Carolina veterans. The Raleigh drum corps, composed of Messrs. Haynes, Lewis and Johnson, the only corps in the south composed of veterans of the civil war, will attend as representatives from the Gen. L. O'B. Branch Camp of this city. They attracted much attention at the New Orleans reunion.

BEVERLY WAITING.

A Northern man who was traveling through the South, says the New York Times, saw a darky under a tree by the roadside on the edge of a field of corn. The negro was gazing lazily up through the branches, unmindful of a hoe which lay by his side, and of the weeds which grew luxuriantly in the corn-field.

"What are you doing?" asked the Northern man.

"Ah'm out heah to hoe dat cahn," replied the darkey.

"Then what are you doing under the tree?" persisted the traveller. "Restin'?"

"No, sah, Ah'm not restin'," was the drawled answer. Ah'm not tied. Ah'm waitin' f'w the sun to go down so Ah kin quit wuk."

PROOF OF HIS WORTH.

A year ago a manufacturer hired a boy. For months there was nothing noticeable about the boy, says Leslie's Monthly, except that he never took his eyes off the machine he was running. A few weeks ago the manufacturer looked up from his work to see the boy standing beside his desk.

"What do you want?" he asked.

"Want me pay rais'd," he asked.

"What are you getting?"

"T'ree dollers a week."

"Well, how much do you think you are worth?"

"Four dollers."

"You think so, do you?"

"Yes, an' I've been 'inkin' so for t'ree weeks, but I've been so blame busy I haven't had time to speak to you about it."

The boy got the "raise."

THE PANAMA CANAL AND THE SOUTH.

"Throughout American history the exports from the Southern States, the cotton, tobacco, timber, and naval stores, have constituted a large part of the tonnage of our foreign commerce; and recently phosphate, coal, iron and steel, and general manufactures have made an important addition to the outbound trade of that section," says Emory R. Johnson in Everybody's Magazine. The products of the South find their foreign markets mainly in Europe, but they are increasingly in demand in Pacific countries from which they are largely excluded by costs of transportation. The canal will give the cotton industries of the South a more profitable trade in the Japanese market, where there is a keen competition with cotton from East India and China. The new waterway will also aid in the exportation of cotton manufactures to Western South America, Asia, and Oceania, where Great Britain and Germany now control the trade. The effect which the canal will have on the iron and steel industries of the South is illustrated by a statement made by one of the largest firms in Birmingham, Ala.: "The opening of the Isthmian Canal would be of incalculable benefit to us in increasing our facilities for export business, and would warrant the development of our southern property to the fullest extent."

"The canal will open up a large market for southern coal, lumber, naval stores, and phosphate. The coal will be required by the vessels using the canal, and the cooling stations of the eastern part of the Pacific Ocean in the tropical and south temperate latitudes, and also for industrial purposes along the west coast of Central and South America."
