Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood. If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work. Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries. It is used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble. If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail. Some of them send free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

AN INTERESTING LETTER.

Travels Through Texas, Oklahoma,
Kansas, New Mexico, Indian Territory and Arizona By a Former Carrurus Man.

EDITOR TIMES:—According to promise I write concerning my travels through Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, New Mexico, Arizona, reserving California for a more convenient time.

On my arrival in Texas, which was Fort Worth, I found my funds completely exhausted. After spending my last penny for a cup of coffee and a doughnut one morning, I began to realize my situation, and soon arrived at the conclusion that it was a very serious one indeed; however, I did not despair, notwithstanding the "gas route" suggested itself to me occasionally, I was abandoned as readily. So I finally "looked" my watch for an X at a pawnbroker's, and got a square meal, a shave and a shine, and then I began a tour of the city looking for a clerkship in a store. After calling at a few business houses I was successful in securing a position at fair wages for a short time. After that I went to Austin, the capital, situated on the Colorado river, about 18,000 population then, which was 1894. Austin can justly boast of having one of the very finest capitals (with, but one or two exceptions) in the union. All the granite used in its construction was from the quarries of the state.

On Sundays I used to go out in the country about six miles east of Austin to a well known "rancher" by the name of Davis, who had lots of fine mules, broncos and Texas steers. He and his son would lasso them at a full run on the head, fore or hind leg, or even their tail. They informed me that they could lasso a jack rabbit with equally as much ease. One feature that made this sport so very interesting to me was the oaths, etc., he would use to such great advantage, also the continuous masticating of tobacco and the frequent "pit-toos."

Texas is very largely populated by the Irish, Swedes, and Mississippi and Louisiana guinea negroes. There is a great many Mexicans or half breeds there also. This latter class is almost worthless, and barely live by peddling candies, pecans, tamales, etc.

The weather there is almost as changeable as lightning. For instance you might go out some morning in February when it would be a perfect Indian summer, and in less than three quarters of an hour a gale would come off the Gulf of Mexico, blowing at about the rate of 60 miles per hour, and very cold. I came near going to Galveston, and had I done so, no doubt I would have met the same fate hundreds of others met in that awful West India hurricane.

I want to say that no better or nobler people ever lived than the native born Texans. They treated me privately, and I shall never forget their hospitality.

From Texas I went through the Indian Territory. Along by the little stations I could see crowds of Indians congregated there to get a glimpse of the train and its passengers. As they were the first Indians I had ever seen, they looked quite savage to me.

I passed on into Oklahoma Territory, arriving at Guthrie, the capital, which is almost a new city of about 10,000 people. I stopped over there for a few days, and while there formed the acquaintance of a genuine Tar Heel, who was a lawyer. He had just been out in the country and brought in two fine large bears, and nothing would do, but I must dine with him and his family. Well, I did, and you may rest assured that I did justice to Mr. Bear.

My next stop was Newton, Kansas. While in that state I did not come in contact with any grasshoppers, neither did I see any "twisters," (cyclones), in fact, I rather consider myself lucky to escape them both, and was glad to know when my train was speeding down the Santa Fe via La Junta, and Trinidad, Colorado. Trinidad is situated right in the midst of a mountainous region, and much coal is mined near the city. It seemed to me that there was a saloon for every dozen inhabitants there. Colorado has long been noted for her labor troubles, and Trinidad has furnished her share recently. Continuing my journey I passed by Santa Fe, the capital, of New Mexico, and arriving at Albuquerque, a city of about 25,000 people. The ordinary hotels and cheap boarding houses there were well supplied with consumptives, evidently from the eastern states, just hanging around and

A PERILOUS PIECE OF FOLLY.

Atlanta Constitution.

The father of United States Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, was recently assassinated by a negro named Alfred Daniels. There was no excuse whatever for the foul murder, and but for the efforts of Senator Simmons himself the negro would have been lynched as soon as his crime was made known. The son of the murdered man stood before the people in the neighborhood and appealed to them to let the law take its course in the interest of peace and good order.

The senator's advice prevailed. The negro was placed in jail and his case has been tried in the courts, with the result that he has been condemned for his crime, which was cold blooded and wanton in the extreme. He has been condemned, but he has not been executed; there has been a stay in the proceedings. His lawyer, at last accounts, had gone to Washington to apply to the supreme court for a writ of error, on the ground that there was discrimination against Daniels on account of his race, the application for the writ of error alleging that the commissioners of the county in which the trial took place had failed to place the names of negroes in the jury box.

The Washington Post, commenting on this proceeding, suggests that the delay in the execution of the law on such frivolous excuses is provocative of lynching. Our contemporary would not have been far wrong if it had gone a little farther, for there can be no doubt that the law's delay in many instances amounts to an invitation to those members of a community who are ready to take the law in their own hands. There is no claim that the North Carolina negro had not been fairly tried and justly condemned. All the facts of the wanton and cold-blooded crime were notorious. There were no mitigating circumstances whatever, and there can be no doubt that the negro would have been condemned by a jury of respectable and law-abiding men of his own race.

Nevertheless, application has been made to the supreme court for a writ of error on the ground that there were two negroes on the jury that condemned Daniels; and justice is delayed until the point has been decided. It is difficult to discover any reason for the application save that of delay, and delay on such terms merely feeds and fattens the lynching spirit. The Washington Post deals with the affair somewhat impatiently, and yet we are bound to say that its impatience is justified. Negroes who have no respect for themselves may be able to pay attorneys to create delays of this sort, but a lawyer's fee is a high price to pay for the peril of such foolish proceedings.

Woman's Home Companion.

A gentleman who had occasion to go to an inland New England village ten miles from a railroad was met at the station by an old fellow who looked as if he might have just awakened after a Rip Van Winkle sleep. His horse and buggy were in keeping with their owner's ancient appearance.

"Here we air at last," said the driver, when they finally came to three houses and a blacksmith's shop.

"This isn't much of a place, is it?" said the depressed stranger, looking around.

"Oh, you don't see all 'o' it from here," was the reply. "Thar's two more houses over behind that hill thar, an' a cooper's shop just 'round that bend in the road thar. Come to bunch 'em all together an' it's consid'able o' a place—but o' course it ain't New York."

A Love Letter.

Would not interest you if you're looking for a guaranteed salve for sores, burns, scalds. Otto Dodd, of Ponder, Mo., writes: "I suffered with an ugly sore for a year, but a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured me." It's the best salve on earth. 25 cents at all drug stores.

It's Come to This.
Mrs. Cortnessel (reading letter)—"I declare, Jaber, I call this downright cruel."

Farmer Cortnessel—"Well what's the matter?"
Mrs. Cortnessel—"Why, here's a letter from Amelia, tellin' me she gets help in raisin' her children from a Mother's Club. 'Tis believe in a slip-train, an' I assure you it was quite an experience to exchange thought and conversation with that good old westerner."

Trusting, dear Mr. Editor, and old Tar Heel friend, that this way, to some extent may amuse and interest the many readers of your very valuable paper, I remain,

Very truly yours,
JOHN H. JENKINS.
Stockton, Cal., April, 1904.

BLACK'S EULOGY OF HILL.

Sunny South.

When the monument to Senator Hill was unveiled in Atlanta in 1886 Colonel J. C. C. Black, of Augusta, Ga., delivered the address of the occasion. We select from the speech of Colonel Black this magnificent paragraph, which pictures the condition which existed in Georgia during the dark period of federal usurpation and shows how Senator Hill, in this crisis of the state's history, became the man of the hour. Turning from an eloquent description of the scenes that followed the surrender, he said:

"But there are trials severer than war and calamities worse than the defeat of arms. The south was to pass through such trials and be threatened with such calamities by the events of this period. . . . What little of property remained was held by no tenure but the capricious will of the plunderer; liberty and life were at the mercy of the conqueror; the sanctity of home was invaded; vice triumphed over virtue; ignorance ruled in lordly and haughty dominion over intelligence; the weak were oppressed, the unoffending insulted, the fallen warred on; truth was silenced; falsehood, unblushing and brazen, stalked abroad unchallenged; anxiety filled every heart; despair shadowed every hearthstone; society was disorganized; legislatures dispersed; judges torn from their benches by the strong arm of military power; statutes subverted, arrested, made, trials held and sentences pronounced without evidence; madness, lust, hate and crime of every hue, defiant, wicked and diabolical, ruled the hour, until the very air was rent with the wail: 'Alas, our country sinks beneath the yoke!' . . . Among all the true sons of Georgia and of the south in that day one form stands conspicuous. No fear blanched his cheek, no danger daunted his courageous soul. Unawed by power, unbribed by honor, he stood in the midst of the peril that environed him, brave as Paul before the Sanhedrin, ready for bonds or death, true as the men at Runnymede and as eloquent as Henry kindling the fires of the revolution. His crest helmed waves high where the battle is fiercest. The purrs of the sun reflected from his glittering shield are not purer than the fires that burn in the breast it covers. His clarion voice rang out louder than the din of battle, like the bugle blast of the highland chief, resounding over hill and mountain and glen, summoning his clans to the defence of home and liberty. It was the form and voice of Hill."

Col. Black has several times represented the tenth district of Georgia in congress of the United States. He is now practicing law at his home in Augusta.

Sciatie Rheumatism Cured.

"I have been subject to sciatie rheumatism for years," says E. H. Waldron, of Wilton Junction, Iowa. "My joints were stiff and gave me much pain and discomfort. My joints would crack when I straightened up. I used Chamberlain's Pain Balm and have been thoroughly cured. Have not had a pain or ache from the old trouble for many months. It is certainly a most wonderful liniment." For sale by M. L. Marsh.

The Usual Thing.

"Pa!"
"Well!"
"Pa, what is an expert?"
"An expert, my son, is a man who talks about it in a way that none of the rest of us can understand."

Broke Into His House.

S. Le Buinn, of Cavendish, Vt., was robbed of his customary health by invasion of chronic constipation. When Dr. King's New Life Pills broke into his house, his trouble was arrested and now he's entirely cured. They're guaranteed to cure, 25 cents at all drug stores.

Cause and Effect.

Mrs. Goodwin—"I heard that your father was dangerously ill."
Ella Fay—"Yes ma'am, he was."
Mrs. Goodwin—"Is he now out of danger?"
Ella Fay—"Yes, ma'am, he is; the doctor has stopped coming!"

"Circumstances Alter Cases."

Mrs. Nerviss—"Oh John, John, the baby has just swallowed ten cents!"
Mr. Nerviss—"Ten cents? Oh, I guess it won't hurt him."
Mrs. Nerviss—"I'm afraid it will. It was all in pennies!"

RELIGIOUS REVIVAL EXTRAORDINARY.

Evangelical Campaign for World's Fair Time That Will Retain Anything Ever Before Attempted.

The Inside Inn, the hotel inside the grounds of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition will be unique field for evangelistic work during the Fair period. Plans are being perfected to have a series of Sunday services celebrated there that will out-rival the days of Moody and Sankey, when the singing of stirring gospel hymns in the early eighties of the nineteenth century resounded throughout the civilized world. All ministers of St. Louis have agreed to sink lines of denominational difference and work for the church universal in what cannot fail to be the most profitable field from which a religious harvest has ever been gathered. To this end they have offered their services and have appointed committees to definitely arrange plans of procedure. These services will be in most capable hands and will be addressed by leading clergymen, scholars, theologians and other learned men prominent in their several fields throughout the United States and Europe.

A committee has been appointed to procure speakers of all denominations from St. Louis and the country at large, who will be in attendance at the Fair.

The services will partake of popular talks and sermons on live topics of a generally religious nature and will be further enlivened by the best music. The musical features promise to be unusually attractive and to that end the musical bureau of the Exposition will lend every possible assistance.

In brief, they will be attractive, interesting, short and to the point. The clergy welcome this opportunity to give visitors from all points of the compass a chance to hear the greatest of the country's pulpit orators.

Most important is this general Evangelical Campaign. The religious organizations are making plans to take special care of the crowds that will be free to give attention to religious services owing to the closing of the Fair on Sunday.

Participation in these services will be shared only by men of acknowledged reputation and standing. To that end it is earnestly requested that all such persons who contemplate visiting the exposition shall send their names to Rev. C. Folk Goodson, of St. Louis, in whose hands are the general arrangements.
