STORIES OF SNAKES.

Compiled by N. Y. Sun.

BIG BLACKSNAKE CAUGHT BY CHILD.

Buffalo News.

Zama, the 8-year-old daughter of O. C. Sigworth, of Canal township, was going through a field near her home one day this week when she encountered a blacksnake. In childish innocence she picked up the reptile and, running up to her father, asked him to see her new "plaything." The snake measured 5 feet 8 inches.

SNAKE THAT SWALLOWED GLASS EGG.

Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Mrs. R. T. Southall, of Quinton, had been missing eggs from her henry for several days, and when she went to gather the eggs yesterday she was surprised to see coiled up in the nest a big blacksnake. She went to the house, got her husband's rifle and with unerring aim the snake was killed.

When measured it was found to be 8 feet 4 inches long and of enormous size.

The snake was cut open and there were found 10 eggs, one of which was a large china nest egg.

IT WAS NOT A MOUSE.

Philadelphia Record.

What Benjamin F. Becker, a carpenter of Gogelsville, thought was the nest of a mouse behind the old school house blackboard at Kuhnsville was something else.

Mr. Becker jokingly said to his fellow employe, Mr. Kuder: "Watch me bring out a nestful of young mice." To his utter astonishment a copperhead snake sprang out and made a strenuous effort to fasten its poisonous fangs in the frightened man's hand, but the reptile was killed.

The men were engaged in putting up a new school house at Kuhnsville and wanted to take down the blackboard in the old building. Mr. Becker was so scared at the unexpected appearance of the snake that he was almost prostrated.

SNAKE SPRING IN WESTERN OHIO.

Columbus Dispatch.

A Southerner who returned from his summer vacation a few days ago narrates an interesting story of a spring in Western Ohio, known as the Snake Spring.

The name is said to be due to the fact that it has proved a mecca for thousands of water snakes who rendezvous in a shady pool within a few feet of the spring. Snake spring is situated in the midst of a comparatively primitive section of the Buckeye State and is surrounded by a settlement of persons who are materially influenced by the superstitions of their forefathers, and, consequently, are not disposed to disturb the legions of slimy creatures and their favored resort.

SNAKE AS A ROOMMATE.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

M. F. Doherty, a Jeffersonville druggist, at 227 Spring street, made the unwelcome discovery yesterday morning that he had been rooming with a snake two and a half feet long, but for what period he does not know. He heard the reptile on the floor Wednesday night and supposing it to be a rat threw a pillow in the direction of the sound.

Mr. Doherty lives with his brother, J. B. Doherty, over the store, and yesterday morning Raymond Doherty, a son of J. B. Doherty, discovered the reptile under his uncle's bed.

Several persons went to the room and captured the snake alive, placing it in a glass jar. The reptile showed no fight and appears to be of a harmless variety, but no one has been able to tell exactly to what class it belongs. How the reptile came to be in Mr. Doherty's bedroom is as much of a puzzle as is its species.

FIGHT BETWEEN SNAKE AND EEL.

Detroit Tribune.

Capt. George Blizard and a party of pleasure-seekers out in a launch on the Cobansey river, Illinois, saw a fierce fight between a snake and an eel. The snake had caught the eel by the end of the tail and was trying its best to throw the slippery tid-bit ashore for a meal. The eel, however, had no such notion. It seemed to know the snake's game of trying to get it where there was water in which it would be utterly helpless, and it wriggled and twisted as only eels can, and kept the snake guessing.

So intent upon its prize was the snake that it paid not the slightest attention to the party in the boat, and thus it fell a prey to its own appetite, for Captain Blizard killed the snake and let the eel go.

At the moment of his birth every man has a brilliant future before him—and it usually remains there.

A TRIP TO THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Two young men left Concord several weeks ago to take in the big fair at St. Louis, and give us the following account of their trip:

We left Concord April 25, 1904, to work our way with two view cameras to St. Louis and return.

Our first stop was at Cowpens, S. C., and we have since worked and visited the following towns and cities: Spartanburg, S. C., and Inman, S. C., from there to Asheville, N. C., the "Land of the Sky," on to Dal Rio, Tenn., in the mountains of East Tennessee. We spent some time in around Dal Rio, and went from there to Newport, a flourishing little town on the French Broad river; from there we came to White Pine, and stopped with Mr. Jude Williams and wife, had a delightful time, and the cameras came very handy, as our funds were getting short. Next we visited Knoxville, a real city, but it was too large for us to "tackle" with view cameras, so we went out to Powell, eight miles from Knoxville, and spent some time. We enjoyed our stay very much with Prof. and Mrs. N. M. Murray and made a good many pictures in Powell, and many friends.

We next stopped at Pleasant View, Ky., which is in the coal-mining section of Southern Kentucky. We visited a coal mine and went five hundred yards through a tunnel where they were digging out coal. They get $2.10 a ton f. o. b. at the mines. We visited Livingston and Lebanon in the Blue Grass region, and spent Sunday in Louisville, and were surprised to see saloons wide open, and dry goods and grocery stores and many other places of business open on Sunday. We also witnessed a game of ball Sunday afternoon between Chicago Lady Stars and Louisville.

Now on to Henderson, which is a beautiful city on the Ohio river. Owensboro is another pretty place, and here we saw some of the largest distilleries in the country.

We crossed the Ohio river at Henderson, and were in Indiana, which is a farming country—we saw five thousand acres in corn in the low-lands of the Ohio river.

We came on to Evansville, Ind., a large city, modern and up-to-date. Mt. Vernon, Ind., is a pretty little city, which is surrounded by fine farms.

Now we crossed the Wabash river into Illinois. First we came to Hawthorne, then to Carmi, from Carmi to Mt. Vernon, Ill. Like her sister, Mt. Vernon, Ind., is very much alive and a nice, clean town. We stopped at Belleville, which is about the size of Charlotte.

Arriving at East St. Louis, Ill., we crossed the Mississippi river into St. Louis through another tunnel, which makes 13 we have passed through since we left home.

We stopped with Mrs. Sheehan, on Sixteenth street, near City Hall, and spent four days at the Fair one day in the city. The Fair is just simply grand. Of course one has to see it before he can draw any idea as to its splendor and beauty, as it's so large that it would take a month for anyone to see it all.

We put in the most of our time visiting the Foreign Exhibits. The Fair is about the same as taking a trip through the old country, as almost every nation has an exhibit there. It is well worth one's time and money to visit the Fair, where millions and millions have been spent to make it the largest and grandest fair that has ever been held. Five days in the city of St. Louis and at the fair-grounds, we are tired and worn out.

We never saw a person we knew out of all the thousands of people we met. We saw where Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Houston and Miss Pattie Adams had registered at the North Carolina Exhibit the same day we did, but never saw them.

We returned home by Louisville, Ky., Jellico and Knoxville, Tenn., and Asheville, N. C., and arrived at home with good shoes and half-soles.

Has Sold a Pile of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for more than twenty years and it has given entire satisfaction. I have sold a pile of it and can recommend it highly.—Joseph McKimney, Linton, Iowa. You will find this remedy a good friend when troubled with a cough or cold. It always affords quick relief and is pleasant to take. For sale by M. L. Marsh.

Venezuela has passed a law that foreigners who "come to the Republic and want to be admitted into its territory are obliged to present to the highest civil authority of the place where they arrive the documents identifying their personality and attesting good conduct, signed and legalized by the authorities of the last place from which they come."

LEARN A TRADE.

The great majority of the successful men of the country are the men who were brought up to a trade; the most successful men are those who have followed closely one trade. Men without a definite purpose, a settled business in life, rarely ever succeed. Traders, drifters, are generally failures in life. Men of humble birth and very limited opportunities have often attained both great eminence and success in life, but they were men of settled and fixed purpose, while on the other hand men of splendid opportunities and fine talents have been comparative failures. Success involves an element that cannot be substituted by either native or acquired ability or by both. The law of apprenticeship holds good today, and it will not be supplanted by brilliant talents, abundant means and the very best opportunities—in service and service only men learn the secrets that insure eminence and success in life.

The general tendency to specialization is the recognition and expression, in another form, of the law of apprenticeship. What was at one time essential to individual success is imperatively demanded now as an indispensable qualification for efficient public service. It is a question of competency rather than of intelligence—one trade and the mastery of it is a universally recognized demand and a condition precedent to the bestowal of public confidence.

In every profession and calling this great principle has become a popular demand. The dentist, the physician, the surgeon, the lawyer, the preacher, the teacher and others must be specialists. In the industrial realm the same rule applies: the manufacturer, the financier, the railroad manager, must be experts—men who have made their business a specialty—served their apprenticeship. What is true of the exalted positions and relations in life is equally true of the more humble—the man who has a business and understands and follows that business will succeed. In every line of work there is a demand for competent men at fair and profitable compensation for their services. In everything competition is sharp, but the man who has mastered his trade will win, while he who has tampered with many things and mastered none of them will fail.

Give your child a trade. Find out what he has a talent and fondness for and then cultivate that talent and develop that taste. Do not suffer pride or an unwise ambition to thwart nature or antagonize the essential conditions of success in life. In so doing it is possible to make a third rate doctor, lawyer, preacher or teacher by spoiling a mechanical genius and robbing the world of the great benefits that would have been born of his talents. Give your child a trade and fit him for the sharp conflicts of life, good citizenship, usefulness and happiness.

Plot to Kill White Men.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Sept. 9.—Isum Edwards, the negro who shot and killed N. W. Epps, a prosperous farmer, Saturday night, has admitted that a number of white men have been selected by negroes to be killed. The negroes belong to what is known as a "Before Day Club," the object of which is to wreak vengeance on enemies of the members of the organization.

Edwards made the admission as to the existence of the organization during the progress of the coroners inquest over the body of the man he had killed. The acknowledgment has stirred up a good deal of feeling and several negroes implicated by Edwards have been arrested and placed in jail.

Trouble at State A. & M. College.

RALEIGH, Sept. 7.—There is trouble at the State Agricultural and Mechanical College, here. The faculty is now in session and is expelling the seniors as rapidly as they are brought before it. There are 44 seniors. It is said all will be expelled. Forty-six juniors and 69 sophomores had pledged themselves to stand by the seniors and leave, if the latter were expelled. The trouble grows out of the reduction of privileges here before given the seniors.

Mr. Henry Warlick's 15 room house near Shelby, was struck by lightning during an electrical storm late Sunday evening and was almost a total wreck, and the household furniture was torn to pieces. The occupants of the house were not killed but severely shocked. The house was insured.

The collection of portraits of secretaries of the navy since the organization of that department in 1789 has practically been completed by the addition of an oil portrait of Hon. Geo. Badger of North Carolina, who was secretary during the administration of President Wm. Henry Harrison in 1841.

Lessee Howland, of the Atlantic & North Carolina Railroad, was interviewed before leaving for New York. He said he had contracted for 50,000 cross-ties, and was buying a like number in lots, so as to make the road safe until the new rail is laid. He will begin laying heavy rail in February at the rate of fifteen miles per month. It will require nearly a year to get all done, as 250,000 ties will be required.

Through the intercession of Judge Fritchard, formerly of the District Supreme Court, and W. H. Green, an attorney of Washington, the acting Secretary of War directed a suspension of sentence in the case of Hampton Abernethy, formerly a private in the Third North Carolina volunteer infantry. During the Spanish war, while his regiment was encamped at Macon, Georgia, Abernethy killed another private in the regiment during a fracas.

Bird Cure For Boll Weevil.

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 9.—Col. Isaac W. Brown of Rochester, Ind., reached Dallas yesterday to study the Texas boll weevil situation and try to find a remedy in the bird creation. Col. Brown believes that for every insect dangerous to vegetable life God has created a bird to exterminate it.

After meeting and listening to him, Miss Helen Miller Gould requested Col. Brown to try to discover the bird that naturally should feed upon and destroy the boll weevil. She offered to pay all his expenses to Texas and the expenses of his investigations. Col. Brown is, therefore, in Texas as the philanthropic proxy of Miss Gould.

He spent all yesterday afternoon in the country around Dallas looking at birds, insects, and vegetation. Tonight he delivered a lecture at the Second Presbyterian church. To-morrow he will go back to Indiana on personal business, but will return to Texas in a short time.

Public Confidence

is a valuable thing to have. It is enjoyed to the fullest extent by the Lake Shore Railway. The public have learned that this great trunk road spares no effort and no expense to give them high speed, all the comforts of home and absolute safety when traveling. Thus it is that all experienced travelers are careful to see that their tickets read "Via the Lake Shore." Take care that yours do too.

The Boy at the Mill.

Representative Wade, of Missouri, tells a story to illustrate his views as to the time it will take to prosecute and abolish all the trusts of the country. A small boy he once knew went to a mill with a sack of grain. It was out of the mill in Iowa. The boy became tired watching the slow turning of the stones, and, turning impatiently to the miller, asked:

"How long is this thing going to take? I am in a hurry."

"Oh," replied the miller, "this is as fast as it can go."

"Well," retorted the boy, "I can eat that flour faster than it is grinding there."

"You might," quoth the miller, "but how long could you keep it up?"

"I could keep it up," the boy answered, "until I starved to death."
