can be raised profitably only in soil containing plenty of Potash. All vegetables require a fertilizer containing at least 10 per cent. actual Potash.

Without Potash no fertilizer is complete, and failure will follow its use. Every farmer should have our valuable books on fertilization—they are not selling anywhere but by mail. Send for them today. Large profits to the farmer. Send for the books.

CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY

It is a fact that the most common cause of cough, cold, croup and whooping cough is a sore throat. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is perfectly safe for children to take. It contains nothing harmful and for coughs, colds and croup is unsurpassed. For sale by M. L. Marsh and D. D. Johnson.

An old bachelor says a man is lucky at cards and unlucky in love if he wins in both instances.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Raleigh, Jan. 26.—In the Senate bills were introduced to require the use of broad wire and not barbed along the sides of roads; to prohibit the sale of liquor in five miles of Green Hill. Bills passed abolishing the three days of grace and making negotiable laws uniform; for the relief of county commissioners regarding the verification of claims. The Senate then took up the special order, namely, the bill increasing the salaries of judges to $3,500 and repealing the act allowing Superior Court judges $250 for expenses for traveling. Mr. Williams asked what had become of the bill allowing $1,000 to the Governor for expenses, saying if this were not allowed, he would oppose the bill. Mr. Scales said the present bill was a unanimous compromise. Considerable debate followed.

In the House a petition was filed from 2,500 members of the Baptist Association and 500 voters, that the Waits law remain as at present, or if changed, be made more stringent. Bills were introduced to allow Spencer to issue bonds for schools and electric lights, and to establish graded schools; to amend the law regarding deeds of trust; to amend the law so that the executor of an estate shall not be executor of the first testator.

New Suez Canal.

The London Times notes a proposal to construct a second Suez canal, owing to the excessive high charges made for passing ships through the existing canal. There is much discontent on the part of shipping circles in Great Britain in view of the high dues, and the great prosperity of the canal company is cited as a reason for some abatement. It is proposed that this second waterway shall be a British enterprise strictly, partly for commercial and partly for imperial reasons, being required for communication with India and the colonies.

No doubt the existing canal will after a time become inadequate for the great traffic of the East. But a handsome reduction of present rates would go far to paralyze the new enterprise. Besides, England is a large holder of shares in the present canal and would lose income by the creation of a rival.

Asking for a Law to Compel the Doctors.

Monroe Equizer.

Some time ago the physicians of this country organized and got up a "black list." All who had refused to pay doctors' bills were put on the list and medical men agreed not to visit any who was on the black list until the account of the physician who had put him on the black list was settled. The doctors have stuck to their agreement pretty well, so well that a petition is now being circulated asking the Legislature to enact a law which will compel a physician to attend the sick when money is tendered for his services, if the physician has no other reason for refusing to answer the call than that the one calling him owes another physician.

It Wasn't the Sermon, After All.

New York Sun.

A young preacher in an uptown church was much struck last Sunday by the seeming effect his sermon was having upon one of his congregation, a shabby-genteel man with white hair, who, throughout the entire discourse, sat with head bowed in deeply reverent attitude. After the service the minister pushed his way to the man and proudly said:

"I am glad to note that my sermon affected you. Did it make you see the error in your ways?"

"Oh, it was 't that," said the man sheepishly. "You see, my waistcoat is too short and I had to bend over to hide my shirt."

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

It is a fact that the most common cause of cough, cold, croup and whooping cough is a sore throat. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is perfectly safe for children to take. It contains nothing harmful and for coughs, colds and croup is unsurpassed. For sale by M. L. Marsh and D. D. Johnson.

Don't Speculate.

Thirty years ago Albert Bennett was a daring and successful trader in the pit of the Chicago board of trade. He made thousands, but the price of wheat went against him one day and he left the pit penniless. Today, an old man, he walks about with a cane, finds seats for women who visit the gallery, and acts the part of a sort of combination usher and janitor.

This old man, who, as a young man, tried to convert $100,000 into $1,000,000, thus philosophizes after it is too late for him to benefit by his own philosophy: "To make a million should not be the aim of every young man. There are many things that are better than great wealth. But it is hard to make anybody believe that. I didn't believe it at one time myself. But if a young man is going to set out in this life to make a million or any great part of it he should resolve to leave all speculation alone. He should resolve that the wealth he is going to acquire will be wealth that is all made not only honestly, but upon substantial basis. One might say that all money made in speculation is fictitious. It is only the money that comes to one through hard work and genuine dealings that amounts to anything in the world. Money made in speculation comes too easily and goes too easily to amount to anything. Gamblers always die poor. So the young man who wishes to win success should never begin to gamble. He should work hard for what he gets and he should be satisfied a long way this side of the million mark."

Moderation and Longevity.

Kansas City Journal.

Lord Strathcona, Lord High Commissioner of Canada, recently completed his eightieth year. Except on set occasions he has eaten but two meals a day for sixty years—breakfast and dinner. His lordship is the largest landholder in the world, owning millions of acres in the Canadian Northwest, besides a vast estate in Scotland, the place of his birth. He said recently: "I see no harm in smoking a little, and in drinking a little, but I believe in temperance—yes, temperance in all things, whether food, drink or tobacco. At the same time, in my opinion, there are none more temperate than those who insist on total abstinence. I am not aware that I work harder than other men. I have congenial work and attend to every detail of my business. In assiduity and concentration lies the secret of success."

A Plan to Route the Bears.

To the Editor of The Observer:

Here is a good way for the farmer to rout the "bears" in the cotton battle that is on: Let the farmers plant a very large acreage of cotton this year. Let them cultivate it with great care and have the prospects for an enormous crop. Let the cotton grow until it is too late to re-plant. In the meantime, let the farmers buy on the cotton exchange millions on millions of cotton futures. This accomplished, let them begin and plow up at least one-half of all the cotton that was planted.

This would at once make cotton soar heaven-high, and the farmers could come up and close out their futures and be millionaires forevermore. And this would do away with cotton speculation for a generation, at least.

A BOLL WEEVIL.

Concord, Jan. 22, 1905.

In a certain town of Connecticut a deacon of the church charged with soliciting subscriptions for a charity recently experienced considerable difficulty in getting the townsmen to contribute.

To one of his neighbors the doctor said:

"Oh, come, Richard, do give something."

"Sorry, deacon," answered Richard, "but I don't see how I can."

"Why not? Isn't the cause a good one?"

"Oh yes, the cause is good enough; but I owe too much money."

"But, Richard, you owe God a larger debt than anyone else."

"That's true, too," drawled Richard, "but God ain't pushin' me."

Brutally Tortured.

A case came to light that for persistent and unmerciful torture has perhaps never been equalled. Joe Golobick, of Colusa, Calif., writes, "For 15 years I endured insufferable pain from Rheumatism and nothing relieved me though I tried everything known, I came across Electric Bitters and it's the greatest medicine on earth for that trouble. A few bottles of it completely relieved and cured me." Just as good for Liver and Kidney troubles and general debility. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by all Druggists.

A rich wife isn't apt to agree with a dyspeptic husband.

Tom and the Tomato.

Thomas E. Watson, late Populist candidate for President, describes in "Bethany," his novel just published by the Appletons, the feelings of a public man at a formal dinner. After celebrating the lavish hospitality of the South before the war, where all the viands were set on the table at once, he says:

"It has happened to me several times in my life to be arrested, convicted and sentenced to dine with other well-dressed convicts, male and female, at a swell dinner—one of those formal functions where solemn flunkies bring you one thing only to eat at a time. When you have pecked a while at that one thing, whatever it may be, solemn flunkies take it away and bring you another plate and some other thing to peck at awhile."

"Sometimes it happens that this one thing is a big, defiant-looking tomato. To sit in one's chair, gazing at the last course which the flunky has just put on; to realize that this entire course consists of a solitary tomato, looking fiercely red and raw; to glance along the table and to realize that all the convicts, male and female, have one tomato apiece, and are trying to look cheerfully at the convict boss—the host—has overwhelmed me every time it got the chance. The scene is heart-rending."

A Reminiscent Appetite.

Houston Post.

I think I'd like to stop the pigs the way I used to do, and bring in wood and hunt for eggs and bring the cows home too; and grease the wagon and hitch up the horses every day, and water all the cows and calves and give the horses hay; and pump wash water and stay in and churn, and churn, and churn, while other boys down by the creek were having fun to burn. I'd like to salt the sheep, I would; I'd like to milk the cows; I'd like to man a cross-cut saw and have a wild carouse, with dad the other end of it to pull me through the log. I'd love to curry off the team and feed the cat and dog. And when I'd got the chores all done and had got through the rush, I'd love to take a lush hook and go out and cut some brush. I'd do these things again. I would, and never heave a sigh, for long about this time of year I'd get my fill of pie—good home-made mince and pumpkin pie, and hen's eggs newly laid; salt-risin' bread and biscuits like the kind my mother made; and good backbone and spareribs too; and corn-bread spread with grease—these things to have again would bring my spirit lasting peace. And so I'd like to stop the pigs and feed the critters too, and churn, and churn, and churn, and churn just like I used to do.

FOR SHAME.

Charlotte Observer.

We are not willing to believe that the dominant white race of North Carolina, as represented in the General Assembly in session at Raleigh, will take a step toward cutting off the educational prospect of the negroes. We owe much to these people. Their value to the State is not to be computed by the figure they cut on the tax books. They are our labor. They dig out of the soil a large part of the wealth which we enjoy, and surely they are entitled to a part of that which they make. It is not right to shut the door of opportunity in their faces. As a race they are not capable of high intellectual development, but, child for child, they should have equal chance with the other of our population, and we do not understand how a person who would consign them to mental oblivion can sleep well at night. The negro race is full of frailties and infirmities, but it has also excellencies and the superior people owe obligations to it which are by no means to be disregarded. For the credit of the white people of North Carolina let us have done with the talk about dividing the school tax upon the basis of what each race pays."

Good Advice for Girls.

Charlotte's People's Paper.

Girls, don't hang around the depot unless you are going away or are there to meet friends. Don't go to the post-office and shove about in a miscellaneous crowd. Don't go to church and take a back seat with your escort, then whisper and giggle throughout the sermon. Don't be loud and boisterous and slangy. Stand on your dignity and don't form acquaintances quickly. Don't carry your heart on your sleeve and don't throw yourself into the arms of every good looking drummer or every well dressed stranger that comes to town.
