THE TRIALS OF A MILLIONAIRE.

Life.
John D. Pocketfiller, the notorious multi-millionaire, was in Magistrate McShamrock's court yesterday on the charge of trying to give away money on the street corners. It appears that Mr. Pocketfiller, disguised with a chestnut wig, stood on the sidewalk at a busy downtown corner, carrying a large sack filled with bank bills done up in bunches of one hundred dollars each. He would hold one of these bunches in his hand and offer it to passers-by in an offensive way muttering: "Please help me, kind people, I am very rich; take this little gift and make me happy." That Mr. Pocketfiller was a nuisance of the most irritating description could not be denied. Ladies gathered up their skirts and swept disdainfully past; busy merchants elbowed the millionaire contemptuously aside, street urchins thumbed their noses at him; and one fat-necked policeman into whose hand Mr. Pocketfiller attempted to thrust a package of bills was thrown into such a rage that he not only hurled the money back in the millionaire's face, but which pulled from his own pocket. The coins scattered over the sidewalk, where it was noticed that people kicked them into the gutters like scraps of orange peel. The very idea of money had been rendered distasteful to the populace by Mr. Pocketfiller's presence and his insolent behavior.

The millionaire was finally taken into custody, much to everybody's relief, at the instance of a well-known clergyman, Rev. Sainly Longface, of Brooklyn, who deposed that Mr. Pocketfiller had rudely offered him a hundred thousand dollars for the foreign mission fund. After listening to the testimony, Magistrate McShamrock promptly sentenced the prisoner to hard labor for life at No. 36 Broadway with the injunction that he must not cease to let his wealth accumulate. "I have no patience with these un-American notions," remarked the magistrate. "What would this country come to if our capitalists persisted in giving away even a small fraction of their fortunes without expecting something in return? It will be a gloomy outlook for the future of our magnificent trusts if such things are suffered to continue. Public sentiment demands that this donation business be stopped here and now. I understood that this is not Mr. Pocketfiller's first offense, or I should have let off with a term in the United States Senate."

A brief interview was subsequently granted with Mr. Pocketfiller at cell No. 26. The prisoner looked cheerful, despite the onerous condition of the sentence. "I cannot for my remarkable lapse," he said. "I am told I have been occasionally taken with similar fits before, though this is the first time I was dragged into court for it. The public seems to be getting unusually fastidious nowadays. I am sincerely sorry for what I have done, and trust that the wholesome austerity of life in this institution and close application to business will make me a better man!"

Battle-snake in His Bed.
Sioux Falls, S. D., Chicago Tribune.
G. C. Conant, a homesteader in the ceded portion of the Rosebud Indian reservation, in the Bonesteel country, had a thrilling adventure with a rattlesnake which invaded his home.
Conant had been absent from his farm for several days, returning home in the evening. As it was raining, he decided to go to bed early. He did not notice anything strange about his bed at the time he retired, but about midnight he was awakened by a movement near his body, under bedclothing. He lost no time in springing from the bed, and, lighting a match and turning down the bedclothing, was horrified to find that he had a huge rattlesnake as a bedfellow.
That he was not bitten was doubtless due to the fact that the pressure of the bedclothing did not give the snake the necessary space required by this species of reptile to coil and strike.
The snake, which was killed by the frightened homesteader, had eight rattles, and these are now worn as an ornament by Conant as a memento of his midnight experience.

In Mad Chase.
Millions run in mad chase after health, from one extreme of faddism to another, when if they would only eat good food, and keep their bowels regular with Dr. King's New Life Pills, their troubles would all pass away. Prompt relief and quick cure for liver and stomach trouble. 25c at all drug stores; guaranteed.
A woman doesn't object to a man making a fool of himself over her but she does emphatically object to him making a fool of himself over other women.

SOME RICH ARE SLOW PAY.

Notorious Fast Deceives Writer That Many in Society Haggle Over Their Bills.
It is notorious that the rich are often scandalously slow in paying their bills. I recall one instance where the wife of a multi-millionaire (she was afterward divorced), took no notice, month after month, of a bill amount to over $30,000 for her daughter's wedding trousseau, and this bill was not paid for more than a year after the ceremony, and only then because the resourceful collector "held up" the multi-millionaire himself in the street one day, and finally got his check, declares Cleveland Moffett, in Success.

I have been told of several rich women in the smart set, two of them very rich, who are wont to haggle over prices in the shops as if they were in genteel poverty. One of these ladies, whose showy Newport fetes are widely proclaimed, tried on a certain occasion, to "beat down" an estimate for candle shades, favors, etc., that she wanted in a hurry for a dinner dance, and, having failed in her effort, she finally exclaimed: "Why, you oughtn't to charge me a cent for these things! Think of the advertising you can get out of it! If you treat me right I'll see that your place is mentioned by all the reporters!"

And another, whose husband is one of the richest men in the world, usually wept before a Fifth Avenue dressmaker in her pleading for a reduction of $15 on the price of a certain garment that she simply had to have but could not afford, she declared, out of the small allowance made her by her husband.

When I was in Newport last summer people were laughing at the latest petty economy of this same husband, who is certainly one of the "clearest" of our idle millionaires. He had heard of a new aluminum paint, warranted to keep shiny without much rubbing, and he had forth with given orders that the brasses on his beautiful yacht be smeared over with this paint so that it might reduce his pay roll by the wages of two sailors previously needed to clean these brasses! This gentleman's income must be at least $4,000,000.

Queer Ways of Chinamen.

The ways of the Chinaman are very different from those of any other nation. When two or more friends meet they shake hands with themselves, not with their friends. The men wear the dress and the women wear the trousers. In walking they never keep step. At their meals they all fill their mouths full and then begin talking. If fruit or dessert of any kind is on the table they eat that first. The Chinaman has as many wives as he can afford to buy, and the more he pays for them the more he is looked up to. A Chinaman always buys his wife and if he has not the money to buy one he wants he must buy a cheaper one. A Chinaman never walks beside his wife or sweetheart; he walks in front and she follows him. It takes a Chinaman about a week to get married. A very common wedding present is a coffin.

The Woman was Ahead.
Senator Depew, at a dinner in Washington, was praising the wit of women. "Against this wit," he said "we men are powerless. Even when all the right and logic of an argument are on our side, women, with her wit, will, nine times out of ten, put us to shame."

"Thus a man once found that his wife had bought a few puffs of false hair. This displeased him. He hid in the hall one day, and just as the lady was fixing the false puffs upon her brow, he darted in upon her. "Mary," he said reproachfully, "why do you put the hair of another calf on your head?" "Why," his wife answered, "do you put the skin of another calf on your feet?"

A Fearful Fate.
It is a fearful fate to have to endure the terrible torture of Piles. "I can truthfully say," writes Harry Colson, of Massachusetts, in "that for Piles, Blood-itching, Itching and Protruding Piles, Rockwell's Arnica Salve, is the best cure made." Also best for cysts, burns and bruises. 25c at all druggists.

The total agricultural area in the United States, it is estimated, is 941,000,000 acres—an area larger than France, Germany, Austria, Spain, Japan, England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales and Transvaal. There are engaged on agricultural pursuits 14,439,000 persons.
Feminine philosophy is the most interesting kind because it is oftentimes so inexplicable.

SENDING HIS OWN BUSINESS.

Inquisitive Traveler Evened Up Scores with Stage Driver Who Was Trusty.
Wallace Cummings used to drive the old stage which ran between Bridgeton and Portland, relates the Boston Herald. One day Wallace had as a passenger out of Portland a young city chap or dude, as Wallace called him. The scenery along the stage route was both beautiful and diversified; the young man was much interested, and as he sat on the box, or post of honor, beside Wallace, literally piled him with questions as to what mountain that was and what river this was, etc.

The old driver, who detested this sort of interrogation, stood it as long as he could. Finally he blurted out: "Say, stranger, if you'll mind your business I'll mind mine." Thus snubbed, the young man relapsed into silence. The had driven about ten miles farther when they came to a long hill, where the driver was obliged to apply the brake. As he shoved his foot toward it he immediately noticed that the mail bag, which always lay there, was gone. Evidently it had dropped off along the road.

Wallace stopped his horses; then, breaking the long silence, he said: "Say, stranger, did you see that mail bag slide off?" "Yes, I did; some ten miles back," calmly remarked the young man. "Well, why in thunder didn't you tell me?" gasped the astonished driver. The "dude" looked him squarely in the eye for a moment, and then he drew, imitating Wallace's tone: "Say, driver, you mind your business and I'll mind mine."

The rest of the journey was driven in cold silence.

A Woman's Plan to Economize.

Dr. Miles Standish, of Boston, was describing a drive of a week or more that he takes each September through some of the wildest and most picturesque districts of New England. "I see much that is memorable, I hear much that is memorable," he said, "on these excursions. Clever and wise and witty speeches are made to me in many a remote place. I remember an elderly justice of the peace in a beautiful New Hampshire village near Lake Sunapee. I stayed there all night with this fine, keen old man. He amused me and impressed me with his mordant humor. "The unreasonableness of woman-kind came up for discussion at one moment.

"Ah, woman is unreasonable, truly," said the justice. There is no living creature so unreasonable as woman. My wife and I talked over our affairs one day and agreed that we must both economize. "Yes, my dear, we must both economize, both," I said to my wife. "All right, James," she said to me. "You save yourself and I'll cut your hair."

"Do a Terrapin Ever Die?"
Charlotte Observer.
The latest query that is absorbing the attention of the wise men and philosophers of this section is: "Do a terrapin ever die?"

June 4, 1883, 'Squire Thomas Douglas, of Long Creek township, caught a terrapin in his field and carved his name and the date upon the shell of the reptile. Years to the number of 23 passed and the winters and summers have had their effect on 'Squire Douglas. Neighbors, who, like Mr. Douglas, were then young men and boys, have passed away; landmarks have changed, and a quarter of a century has wrought other changes. But the terrapin still remains the same. A few days ago 'Squire Douglas found it 50 yards from the spot where he had caught it 23 years ago and easily made out the words he had carved in the shell. The animal was not a bit larger than it was the day the inscription was cut on its back, and there was no other indication of advanced age.

Found a Cure for Dyspepsia.
Mrs. S. Lindsay, of Fort William, Ontario, Canada, who has suffered quite a number of years from dyspepsia and great pains in the stomach, was advised by her druggist to take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. She did so and says, "I find that they have done me a great deal of good. I have never had any suffering since I began using them." "If troubled with dyspepsia or indigestion why not take these Tablets, get well and stay well." For sale by M. L. Marsh and D. D. Johnson.

One reason why women don't take a more active interest in the female suffrage question is that they suffer enough already.
Women who discuss the divorce question among themselves, but they are willing for the men to do the talking for publication.
