Atlanta Journal.

This is the fourteenth day since our meeting began in Music Hall in Cincinnati. The crowds have grown; the interest has broadened and intensified until now the meetings have taken on all the phases of a genuine revival. I am preaching in the morning at South Street Church, in Covington, Ky., and at night in Music Hall. I have never preached to more attentive audiences nor seemingly with better results. We have now engaged the Music Hall until the 23d of November. Am sorry that the meetings must close there, because the Music Hall is engaged after that date. Mr. Exeoll is leading the music and Mrs. Pyron is at the grand piano. Mr. Exeoll is at his best. The waves and tones and swells of music in that great building is one of the features of the meeting. Mr. Exeoll is a better leader today than ever before. He sings more with the spirit and with the understanding, and the people sing the "Glory Song" sometimes, and almost lift the roof from the building. I wish the world could hear the music of these meetings. The pastors are lined up in prayer and effort with the work, and it is good to be here.

Wife finished me here last Tuesday. It is a joy to her to be here. She was in our great meetings here twenty years ago. We all miss Bishop Joyce, who was then the leader of the local forces in those meetings. His charming personality and his enthusiastic spirit lent much force to these meetings. I am sorry that he could not remain and be with us in these meetings, but he went to heaven about three months ago.

I meet hundreds of the converts of the former meeting; they still abide in faith. It is a joy to meet them. Still we are all young men then; we are growing gray now. Twenty years makes a mighty difference in a community as well as in a person.

In company with wife and daughters, I visited the House of Refuge yesterday afternoon by special invitation of Mr. William Magley, chairman of the board of control of that institution. It is a benevolence of this city. There are five hundred children there, between the ages of five and sixteen years. It is the best regulated and best disciplined and the best run institution I think I have ever visited. I saw discipline at its best there. It is an industrial as well as a literary school. It is emphatically a house of refuge, a place for children who have no parents, or have what is worse, a worthless father and mother. It is a place also for children who have fathers and mothers, but who are uncontrollable. It is a place for children who have committed misdemeanors. There are three hundred who have committed misdemeanors. There are three hundred and thirty-six boys and one hundred and sixty-five girls. They are taught handy work of all kinds, in all kinds of woods; they have a shoe factory there and manufacture their own shoes; they have a bakery and they are taught in that line; they have a printing press and do as fine work as I ever saw. They do all their own tailoring, and the building from garret to cellar is the very quintessence of cleanliness. The superintendent remarked that when you got children away from dirt you got them away from the devil. He had all the children come into the chapel, and we spent two hours in there. The first thing was all the children sang with great power "America," my country, 'tis of thee, for they are taught patriotism as well as music. The next thing was a piece by the brass band, and those little boys played that band till they would almost rival Sousa's band. They sang as gloriously as you ever ever heard children sing. They quoted the Bible like an old deacon; they spoke and furnished to us one of the most enjoyable entertainments from start to finish that I have ever witnessed. They go through with the calisthenics like machinery and a little puny child is soon brought up to vigor and health, and I thought and believed, as I left that great building that those children there had better discipline and better training perhaps than 90 per cent. of those in the homes of our country.

That is a strong position taken by science that it takes fifty thousand years for bituminous coal to mature, ready for domestic use. I suppose it takes one hundred thousand years to mature anthracite coal in Pennsylvania. I can get around most anything else better than I can that coal proposition, and that makes me want to see Noah. Maybe a little conversation with Adg on that subject would be better. The truth is the boys have all quit killing bears and snakes, and gone to playing mumble-peg.

Yours truly,
S. M. JONES.

It is awful hard to believe all the things you want your children to.

An Ohio Town Will Not Harbor a Negro Over Night.

The Independent.

In Syracuse, Ohio, on the Ohio river, a town of about 2,000 inhabitants, no negro is permitted to live, not even to stay over night under any consideration. This is an absolute rule in this year 1905, and it has existed for several generations. The enforcement of this unwritten law is in the hands of the boys from 12 to 20 years of age, while the attempt of a negro to become a resident of the town is resisted by the residents en masse.

When a negro is seen in town during the day he is generally told of these traditions, if he is so ignorant as not to know of them already, and is warned to leave before sundown. If he fails to take heed he is surrounded at about the time that darkness begins, and is addressed by the leaders of the gang in about this language:

"No nigger is allowed to stay in this town over night. Get out of here now, and get out quick."

He sees from 25 to 50 boys around him talking in subdued voices and waiting to see whether he obeys. If he hesitates little stones begin to reach him from unseen quarters, and soon persuade him to begin his begonia. He is not allowed to walk, but is told to "go on his little dog trot." The command is always effective, for it is backed by stones in the ready hands of boys none too friendly.

So long as he keeps up a good gait the crowd, which follows just at his heels and which keeps growing until it sometimes numbers 75 to 100 boys, is good-natured and contents itself with yelling, laughing and hurrying gibes at its victim. But let him stop his "trot" for one moment, from any cause whatsoever, and the stones immediately take effect as their chief persuader. Thus they follow him to the farthest limits of the town, where they send him on, while they return to the city with triumph and tell their fathers all about the function—how fast the victim ran, how scared he was, how he pleaded and promised that he would go and never return if they would only leave him alone.

Then the fathers tell how they used to do the same thing, and thus the heroes of two wars spend the rest of the evening by the old campfire, recounting their several campaigns.

The cause of this extraordinary race prejudice is hard to discern. The majority of the inhabitants are not from the South, but, strange to say, are of New England stock.

Since the town was founded, about 1815, not a single negro family has lived in it. About the year 1855 two negroes were employed as domestics by a family in the extreme lower end of the town, practically in the country, but they did not stay long. Since the Civil War two attempts have been made by negro families to settle in the town, but both families were summarily driven out.

AN OCEANIC RAILROAD.

Baltimore Sun.

Mr. H. M. Flagler, who has been very largely concerned in the development of Florida, is about to construct a railway 128 miles long, from Homestead to Key West, crossing from the mainland to Key West over 100 miles of islands and sea. From Miami to Homestead 28 miles have been completed, the whole distance covered by project being 154 miles. The work is remarkable for its "oceanic" character, a large part of it being over portions of the Atlantic on the western side of Florida. There will be five and three-quarter miles of concrete viaduct, says the Manufacturers' Record, 31 feet above sea level. One viaduct, 10,500 feet long will connect Long Key with Conch Key; another, 7,300 feet long, will cross the knight Key channel; a third, 7,800 feet long, will cross Moser Key channel, and a fourth, 4,950 feet long, will cross Bahia Honda Key channel. These viaducts are to be of reinforced concrete in 50-foot spans. Three drawbridges will aggregate 410 feet. Some 55 miles of the distance will be over the islands, or "keys," that lie between Homestead and Key West. At the last-mentioned island there will be ample terminal facilities, looking to trade with Cuba and Panama. As the keys traversed are very fertile, the railway will develop in them a large fruit and vegetable industry. The railway terminating at Key West will be the shortest line, it is held, not only to Havana, but to the Pacific via the Panama canal. From $18,000,000 to $20,000,000 has been invested by Mr. Flagler in his various hotel, canal and railway enterprises in Florida, the route here described being the most recent of his many ventures.

BEE'S HATCH DUCK EGGS.

Minneapolis Tribune.

There is a Minneapolis man who claims to have been nearly as quick to discover a new way to hatch, as Hedy Decker, of Rome, Ohio, who has hatched a brood of chickens by the use of a bee hive.

Cadis Berwith, of Upton avenue, north, has been experimenting on that line for some time and first tried his luck with turtle eggs, which came out nicely. It seems that two years ago, while Mr. Berwith was taking out some honey, he was struck with the peculiar moist warmth of the hive in the lower portions. Now, moist air is a fine thing for hatching and some weeks later, having secured some turtle eggs while at Minneapolis, he placed them in the lower compartment of the hive and hatched a half dozen of them.

This year he made the experiment with some Pekin duck eggs, and out of ten eggs placed in the hive he secured nine healthy ducks, that are now cavorting about the yard as lively as can be. The experiment has also shown another thing, and that is that there is very little in the insistent claim that eggs in the course of hatching must be turned twice every day. It is impossible to do so in the bee hive hatching, yet they appear to hatch as well as if handled daily.

Mr. Decker hatched eighteen out of twenty chicken eggs and Mr. Berwith nine out of ten duck eggs. Mr. Decker used a cushion under and around the eggs and cotton cloths between their tops and the rest of the hive. Mr. Berwith used moss below and a layer of cotton batting over the tops of the eggs, which was taken off on the last day, as the eggs were picked.

Prosperity Progress Plenty.

A great year. Surely the "best ever." Thanksgiving Day will surely mean something this time. Good things everywhere and more coming.

Prosperity, like charity should first make itself felt in the home.

Is your home happier this year than it was last? Is it more comfortable—better furnished? If not, you haven't lived up to your opportunities—your privileges.

We help to make the home happy by furnishing it, without the necessity of a sacrifice. No matter how humble your circumstances, you can have a comfortable home if you want it.

Make Thanksgiving day truly happy by making your home happy. It can be done through us at small cost.

Never before have we had so great a stock of Furniture and House Furnishings to make your selections from.

Just Reckoning.

The pretty girl with the auburn hair had refused him.

"I never dreamed, Mr. Smykins," she said, "that your attentions to me were anything more than those of a friend."

"Oh you didn't!" growled the young man. "You thought I had been coming regularly once a week during the last six months merely for the pleasure of seeing you eat a 50-cent box of candy, did you?"

"Sit Closer Please"

The two girls were having fun with others on their way home on a Madison street car, the other evening after finishing their work in the department store. "My steady," said the one who answered to the name of Mary, "talks shop too much to suit me. I think I'll turn him off and get another." "I like my fellow to talk shop," said the young woman addressed as Lizzie. "What for?" said Miss Mary. "Well, he's a street car conductor, you know, and he's always saying 'Sit closer, please.'"

Caught in the Act.

A minister walking along a brook one Sunday observed a boy fishing. After seeing him catch several fish he approached the boy and said:

"My boy, don't you know it is not right to be fishing on Sunday; and, besides, it is very cruel to insert that sharp hook into that poor beetle."

The boy—Oh, say, mister, dat ain't no beetle; dat's only an imitation bug."

Minister—Oh, I thought it was a real bug.

Boy—(Lifting a string of fish out of the brook)—So did these suckers.

Herb W. Edwards Injured.

Herb W. Edwards, of Des Moines, Iowa, got a fall on an icy walk last winter, spraining his wrist and bruising his knees. "The next day," he says, "they were so sore and stiff I was afraid I would have to stay in bed, but I rubbed them well with Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after a few applications all soreness had disappeared." For sale by M. L. Marsh and D. D. Johnson.

The Parson Explained.

A Scotch minister had forgotten to bring his manuscript to the church and on going into the pulpit gave his congregation this explanation:

"I am very sorry, my friends, to have to tell you that I have mislaid my manuscript. I must, therefore, this morning just say what the Lord has put in my mouth, but I trust I shall come this afternoon better provided."

A Creeping Death.

Blood poison creeps up towards the heart, causing death. J. E. Stearns, Belle Plaine, Minn., writes that a friend dreadfully injured his hand, which swelled up like blood poisoning. Bucklen's Arnica Salve drew out the poison, healed the wound, and saved his life. Best in the world for burns and scree. 25c at all drug stores.

IN offering this large number of manufacturing sites of about 1800 feet front on main line of Southern Railway, and a large number of beautiful residence lots in Salisbury, I am not asking you to buy Great Westermore Mining Stock or any such investment. I am going to sell you something that is the real thing sure enough, and ask you to put your money into something that the winds can't blow away, the fires can't burn, no one can steal and which is bound to rapidly increase in value. In other words, a chance to make plenty of money and be absolutely safe. Exact date and manner of sale will be made known in a few days.

Very Respectfully,
R. A. WHEELER,

Mrs. Newbride—I got some hams here last month that my husband liked very much. Have you any more of the same kind?

The grocer—Yes'm. Got about a dozen left from the same pig.

Mrs. Newbride—Oh, that's nice! Give me six of them.
