SAN JONES' LETTER.

Big, flashy headlines have announced that the citizens want Sam Jones suppressed. A letter addressed to the chief of police signed by five persons, one of which is a saloon keeper, asking that Sam Jones be suppressed. The chief replied that he could not do anything. That I had violated no law I told the audience last night that the mayor of Savannah found himself in the same condition when he wanted me suppressed and called the city attorney in to consultation to know how it could be done. The city attorney replied: "How are you going to do it? It would take a standing army to suppress him." While my right hand hath its cunning and my tongue shall wag, I propose to fight everything that ever wrecked human life or broke a mother's heart.

I see Clark Howell has formally announced and that the joint debate will begin between the two "moguls" in January. I am sure the people will enjoy seeing the fur fly, but I am afraid the boys will get out of fur before the season is over and will look more like Mexican dogs than Newfoundlanders. But in the meantime the people will get information. The more intellectually and conscientiously we vote, the better it is for government. When a man puts his intellect and his conscience into the ballot box he is doing the best voting it is possible for him to do.

I am sorry I cannot attend the session of the North Georgia conference at Newnan. Among other things, I suppose orthodox and heterodox will be on trial this week. After all, isn't it well enough occasionally to take our bearings and see where we are "at" theologically, and no one, perhaps, will be hurt in the scuffle. A fellow may move along smoothly and get out of line with his crowd in the theological world as well as in the political world. Tom Watson is out of line with southern orthodox, which is altogether democratic, and his political views have outlived him with many. I have noticed this much in my rounds, that there is a mighty narrow territory that divides orthodox and heterodox, and it is a very easy matter for the picket lines to get into the engagement, but really it will be only a fight along the picket lines. The great rank and file of the army ain't going to fight. It is the business of the Army of the Lord to fight the devil and all his works. It is a sort of a bad war that sets the soldiers of the army fighting each other, but there always have been civil wars and family fights, and I suppose they will continue until the end. The Bible teaches us that offenses must be whom they come." It is not so much the row, but the question is who got it up. I suppose the man who did it would be hard to find. But this will be a bloodless war, and I suppose they will shoot at one another's heads and not at each other's hearts.

I keep up also with the cotton reports and prices current. Nine million and a half bales, perhaps, is a little low in estimate, but an eleven million-bale crop ought to bring anywhere from 10 to 12 cents a pound. The ginners' report was a little surprising. Whenever cotton leaps $5 a bale in five minutes there has something dropped, and it has dropped on somebody. But, after all, the vantage ground the southern farmer has today is his ability to hold and his unwillingness to sell when things don't go his way.

More and more the farmer will command the situation, if he has the ability first, and secondly the wisdom. But I don't care however much sense a fellow has got, if he must pay his bills to the merchants or his note at the bank, the old saying holds good: "Solomon with all his wisdom, or Samson with all his strength, could not pay a dollar unless he had it to pay." I am glad to see the growing fact in the south that the farmer is no longer a pauper, but is in position to take care of himself.

We are looking forward to the Christmas holidays now. The tempting show windows and bulks of Christmas toys and presents were never so large in the history of America. For the next thirty days millions and millions will be invested in Christmas gifts. I am glad to note also that less is being spent for fire-crackers and foolishness, and more of the gifts are substantial and useful. We ought to exercise common sense in gifts and presents as much as anything else. A package of fire-crackers, a painted doll and a toy pistol is a poor gift to remind a child that this is the best friend that the children ever had.

I am first and last and always for a good time, but in having a good time, let's not hurt our conscience or character.

Yours truly,
SAM P. JONES.

THE COLORED COOK LADY.

Surprising Number of People Are Said to Almost Live on Canned Goods. Raleigh Cor. Charlotte Observer.

We here in Raleigh have bewailed our fate from time to time as regards the negro cook. She is named in the singular rather than in the plural. The other evening the writer got fresh insight into what a lady very touchingly referred to as "the cook trouble." She said, "I can assure you that some of the best families in this town are cooking on little oil stoves, etc., and cutting out their kitchen stoves. You ask me why, and I answer that it is because it saves the trouble of making the fire, cleaning out the stoves and keeping the kitchen clean. So in this town there are scores of kitchens unused. You would be surprised if I were to tell you of the number of people who almost live on canned goods. No doubt the grocers could give you a tip on this if they would do so. I see only one remedy for the trouble, and that is the almost total abandonment of negro servants and the taking hold of the kitchen by the lady of the house and her daughters, as in the case in say rural New England. I do not for myself see any prospects of getting white girls to help in the kitchen and about the house. I wish they could be had. I wish tidy Swede or German girls could be brought here to take hold of this sort of thing, for I tell you they are worn out with the irresponsible negro cooks, many of whom make it a matter of pride not to work."

A lady from Durham, to whom this conversation was repeated, said, "Bad as I understand the conditions are in Raleigh, I want to say that they are worse in Durham. There are some amusing features among all the annoyances. Not very long ago a lady of my acquaintance started out to look for a cook and as she passed along the street met two gorgeously-attired mulatto women. When she asked one of them if she knew where she could get a cook, the mulatto replied with a toss of her much befattered hat and head that they were out looking for cooks themselves, whereupon the other colored lady, in the slightest way imaginable, said to the unfortunate white woman, "Do you want to hire?" The white woman was so flabbergasted that she fairly ran all the way home and when she got there was ready to cry from pure annoyance."

The colored lady is the mistress of the situation. She works or not as she chooses, while the white woman has to work. Now this is said not in jest, but in earnest, and just as the tale was told, but there is a graver side still to all this business. Labor conditions have changed wonderfully in the last few years, and if they get to be worse, what are the people going to do?

Herb W. Edwards Injured.

Herb W. Edwards, of Des Moines, Iowa, got a fall on an icy walk last winter, spraining his wrist and bruising his knee. "The next day," he says, "they were so sore and stiff I was afraid I would have to stay in bed, but I rubbed them well with Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after a few applications all soreness had disappeared." For sale by M. L. Marsh and D.D. Johnson.

Blood poison creeps up towards the heart, causing death. J. E. Stearns, Belle Plaine, Minn., writes that a friend dreadfully injured his hand, which swelled up like blood poisoning. Bucklen's Arnica Salve drew out the poison, healed the wound, and saved his life. Best in the world for burns and sores. 50c at all drug stores.

SAYS WASH IS ANTIQUATED.

Charlotte Chronicle.

Mr. Wade H. Harris, the versatile and prolific editorial writer of the Evening Chronicle, had this to say yesterday afternoon:

"And here is Red Buck who was 'raised' in Providence township, writing 'quail are plentiful.' Get out! Go into the country and talk about 'quail and the people will rock him. Red Buck is 'taking on too much style.'"

Seventy years ago, when the editor of the Chronicle was a little boy, the good people of Cabarrus said "partridge," but a few years later they began to say "partridge," but now Col. Hal Puryear, one of the wisest hunters in the land, says "quail."

Things have changed since Brother Harris was a boy. As a half-grown lad he went about in his shirt tail, but now the boys wear store clothes and "billed" shirts. See!

When Mr. Brother Harris was a boy they had "school breakings" in Cabarrus, but later they were "exhibitions" and today "conference-mins" are all the go. Yes, Brother Harris, you are living too close. You are working too hard? You must travel more!

When Brother Harris was a boy the country people had "parties" but now they have "entertainment." As a boy Brother Harris danced, but if his sons were back in the rural districts of Cabarrus they would play "Charlie" or "Real partners." Things have changed since the editor of the Chronicle was a boy.

If Brother Harris were to go to the country and say "there goes a partridge" when a quail flew up, the boys would laugh at him. He is living in the past.

Terrific Race With Death.

"Death was fast approaching," writes Ralph F. Fernandes, of Tampa, Fla., describing his fearful race with death, "as a result of liver trouble and heart disease, which had robbed me of sleep and of all interest in life. I had tried many different doctors and several medicines, but got no benefit, until I began to use Electric Bitters. So wonderful was their effect, that in three days I felt like a new man, and to-day I am cured of all my troubles." Guaranteed at all drug stores; price 50c.
