A WITTY PREACHER.

The Rev. Hugh Peters, who from 1636 to 1641 was settled in Salem, Massachusetts, combined his duties as a minister of religion with the business of trading so successfully that he was spoken of in the colony as "the father of our commerce and the founder of our trade." He was also a man of so much humor that after his death a collection of his witty or humorous sayings was published in book form. It is interesting to recall that the Rev. Mr. Peters was executed as a regicide. He was not directly implicated in the death of Charles I, but was accused of encouraging the soldiers to cry out for the blood of the king, whom he had likened to Barabbas.

Mr. Peters had preached one morning for two hours. The sands in the hour-glass had run out. He observed it, and turning it over, said to his hearers, "Come, let us have another glass!"

Preaching on devils entering into swine, he said that the miracle illustrated three English proverbs:

One. That the devil will rather play at small game that sit out.

Two. That those must needs go forward whom the devil drives.

Three. That at last he brought his hogs to a fair market.

It was a favorite saying of Peter's that in Christendom that there were neither scholars enough, gentlemen enough, nor Jews enough; for said he if there were more scholars there would not be so many pluralists in the church; if there were more gentry, so many born would not be reckoned among them; if there were more Jews, so many Christians would not practice usury.

Once he preached, "Beware, young men of the three W's—wine, women and tobacco. Now tobacco, you will say, does not begin with a W. But what is tobacco but a weed?"

Discussing one day on the advantages Christians had in having the gospel preached to them— "Verily," said he, "the Word hath a free passage amongst you, for it goes in at one ear and out at the other."

Again, from the pulpit: "England will never prosper till one hundred and fifty are taken away." The explanation is LLL—Lords, Lawyers and Ladies.

Preaching on the subject of duties, Peters said, "Observe the three fools in the gospel, who, being bid to the wedding supper, every one had his excuse:

"One. He that had hired a farm and must go and see it. Had he not been a fool, he would have seen it before hiring it."

"Two. He that had bought a yoke of oxen and must go to try them. He also was a fool, because he did not try them before he bought them."

"Three. He that married a wife, and without complement said he could not come. He, too, was a fool, for he showed that one woman drew him away more than a whole yoke of oxen did the former."

One rainy day Oliver Cromwell offered Peters his greatcoat.

"No, thank you," replied his chaplain. "I would not be in your coat for a thousand pounds."

For the Daughter that Wasn't Married.

Atchison Globe.

There will be a very unique social affair in Atchison early in July. A certain girl has never been married, and as all her sisters married and carried pretty clothes and wedding presents her father announces that he wants to do as well by her and will give her a mock wedding.

She will have as much money to spend on clothes as if she were to be a bride, and after she has them all made her father will give her a party and notify all the kin that they must carry presents as if to a bride. Then he will send the girl on a trip to the seacoast, where she can wear her new clothes and have more fun than if there were a man tagging along.

HEED THE WARNING.

Many Concord People Have Done So.

When the kidneys are sick they give unmistakable warnings that should not be ignored. By examining the urine and treating the kidneys upon the first sign of disorder, many days of suffering may be saved. Sick kidneys expel a dark, ill-smelling urine, full of "brick-dust" sediment and painful in passage. Sloggy kidneys cause a dull pain in the small of the back, headaches, dizzy spells, tired, languid feelings and frequently rheumatic twinges.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys only; they cure sick kidneys, and rid the blood of uric poison. If you suffer from any of the above symptoms you can use no better remedy.

Concord people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. L. M. Moser, 240 N. Spring St., Concord, N. C., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills with such beneficial results that I am glad to recommend them. I had had symptoms of kidney trouble for a long time and when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention, I procured a supply at Gibson's drug store. They soon relieved me and thus encouraged, I continued their use until cured. I would advise anyone similarly afflicted to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

NEGRO FIREMEN ON SOUTHERN RAILROADS.

Baltimore Sun.

While sympathizing with the demands of the white firemen employed by the Georgia Railroad for redress for just grievances; public opinion in the South has not approved the agitation in certain quarters for the dismissal from that railroad's service of all negroes employed as firemen. While the board of arbitration was not called upon to meet that issue directly, the effect of its decision, however, will probably be the retention in the railroad company's employment of all negro firemen who have the intelligence and efficiency requisite to the satisfactory performance of their duties.

The arbitrators were all representative Southern men. Two of the three members of the board voted against arbitrary discrimination against negro firemen. They were Hon. Hilary A. Herbert, of Alabama, and Dr. Barrow, the chancellor of the University of Georgia. Under the award of the majority of the arbitrators, the negro firemen will receive the same pay as the white firemen. Up to the present time their wages have been less. Being placed on an equality as to pay, they will be required to maintain as high a standard of efficiency and industry as the white firemen. In brief, they will be compelled to stand on their own merits.

It is significant that the most influential newspapers in the South and conservative public opinion in the South, while insisting that justice should be done the white firemen, were also outspoken in condemnation of any unjust discrimination against the negro. And one of the strongest arguments which they presented was that it would be harmful to the South to curtail the negro's opportunities for employment along lines of work in which he has been employed for many years, thus adding to the number of the unemployed black men and increasing the difficulties of a wise and safe solution of the race problem in the South.

The Windsor Hotel, Philadelphia.

No clearer demonstration of the virtue of fair dealing and enterprise could be presented, than that afforded by the success which has come to the Windsor Hotel, Thirteenth and Filbert streets Philadelphia, under the management of W. I. Brubaker.

Mr. Brubaker assumed the management of this Windsor Hotel in 1907, and every year since that date has seen the hotel add to its facilities and advance in public esteem.

The Windsor is advertised as being "midway between the two great railroad terminals," and this in itself is one reason why this comfortable and inviting house claims such a general patronage of among the commercial men of the country. Being near to the city vortex, the Windsor is yet in a quiet, clear neighborhood, while traffic roars and rumbles on all sides not a square away.

Success in a large measure has come to the Windsor through the personality of Mr. Brubaker. The prime component of success is, we believe, courtesy. Mr. Brubaker has the tact and way in his treatment of all those doing business with the hotel, from guest down to the veriest office boy, and consequently none ever have fear of getting the "icy shivers" or the "I-don't-know-you" sort of stare when they enter the Windsor exchange.

Mr. Brubaker has surrounded himself with thorough and efficient staff from the front to the kitchen. The dining room is a joy to partake of a meal in, while the rooms in the house have an air of downright home comfort, thoroughly kept with the most elegant and honorable reputation of the house of Brubaker.

Five Buried Infants Found.

Something in the nature of a sensation was sprung in Wilmington police circles Friday when it was reported that a fisherman digging bait across the river from the city on an isolated island known as Point Peter had unearthed the body of an infant, buried only a few inches under the earth. Subsequent investigation by an officer and the coroner disclosed that four others, three white and one colored, had been likewise buried in the same locality. A colored undertaker's helper has been arrested charged with criminal knowledge of the interments, but none of the infants has been identified.

WORK OF A NOBLE WOMAN.

Work of Miss Frances E. Ufford at White Hall in This County.

Wednesday was the 30th anniversary of the beginning of Miss Frances E. Ufford's noble work in the South, commencing at White Hall, where now is located the Jackson Training School for boys, near Concord.

This noble Christian woman, with an unwavering faith and steadfast purpose, has during these years raised over $20,000 in giving school advantages to over 500 boys and girls.

One of these boys is now a leading lawyer of the State, having been a prominent member of the Legislature some years ago. Miss Ufford is a sister of Rev. E. S. Ufford, author of the famous Gospel hymn, "Throw Out the Life-Line." This noble woman has been doing this for many years in the parishes of New York, at White Hall, Cabarrus county; Asheville, Lenoir and Albemarle, in Stanly county. She has been and is still a great W. C. T. U. worker and has been instrumental in breaking up distilleries, saloons and reforming drunkards. Many are the homes that have been blessed by a cheerful visit from this godly woman, who by song, prayer and reading of the Scriptures have caught new visions of a higher life. Miss Ufford's girls are known wherever they go.

They are making Christian homes, trained nurses, school teachers and mission workers; only eternally will unfold the work of this untiring Christian worker. Her faithful companion, Miss Helen J. Northrop, has been associated with her for twelve years this coming August. Often has Miss Northrop had to lie on her couch and have her classes sit around her; but she has never given up. It only costs a girl $2 a week, or 9 cents a meal, to attend the college founded by these noble women.

For $2 a week a girl can get three meals a day, room, fuel, light and class-room instruction. There are only eleven vacancies for next year, and over sixty girls are clamoring for these places. Miss Northrop leaves in a few weeks for a year's rest at Goldsboro. Miss Ufford is enjoying good health and will assist in the domestic department, also as one of the instructors of Bible in the Albemarle Normal and Collegiate Institute, which opens September 14.

A CLEAN HEAD MEANS A COOL HEAD.

Good Thing to Know in Warm Weather.

Better to know what will make the head clean and cool.
Only one answer.
Parisian Sage.
You've heard of it of course.
You knew it was the only real dandruff gorm killer worth while.

You knew Gibson Drug Store guaranteed it to stop dandruff, falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

That this wonderful hair rejuvenator, Parisian Sage, turns harsh, faded, lustreless hair into silky, beautiful, lustrous hair in a few days.

You know that it is extensively used by women of refinement.

But you didn't know that it would keep the scalp nice and cool in summer.

Well, now you know it, so get a large bottle and if you aren't satisfied get your money back—50 cents at Gibson's Drug Store.

Loading druggists everywhere in America now sell Parisian Sage, and for your own good always remember that the girl with the Auburn hair is on every package. Made in America by Gironx Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

"ONTO THE JOB."

At the recent meeting of the Press Association Rev. Plato Durham, pastor of one of the Methodist churches in Concord, was called upon to address the editors, and this he did in an excellent manner. In the course of his remarks he referred to the great facility with which people criticize, applying the observation to his own habit of regarding newspapers at a former period of his life. Later, Mr. Durham said, he had himself entered into the editorial sanctum and found out from actual experience just what a newspaper man is called upon to confront.

And so it is with us all. In the language of the street we are "not on to the job" in most cases, except in our own very narrow sphere of action. If we were "onto the other fellow's job" in most cases we would not be so free with our criticism, and the mantle of Charity would envelop us more completely. Newspapers are the special object of popular criticism, for everybody knows how to run a newspaper and will make a brilliant success of it—until he tries it. But when one gets "onto the job," opinions will change frequently with great rapidity.

This same principle applies with no less certainty to the career of men in public life. The recent storm of criticism of our congressmen at Washington for their position taken regarding a Republican tariff is a case in point. The criticism, we believe, was unnecessarily severe in certain quarters; and in most cases criticism would have been withheld no doubt, had the critics been "onto the job" of the honest, faithful and capable men whom they assayed to criticize.

Unless we are "onto the job" wild criticism not only stultifies us, but is grossly unjust to men who are trying to do the best they can for the interests of all concerned. We should allow public men a considerable degree of latitude in dealing with governmental questions at Washington. We should elect honest, capable and intelligent men imbued with a burning desire to provide the greatest good to the greatest number, men who have been tried and not found wanting; and when this has been done we should be slow to condemn. And in any event we should not condemn, in the excess of which we are now speaking, except under the compulsion of very much better evidence of their ineffectiveness than has yet been produced.

How a Snake Eats Eggs.

Stateville Mass.

We have often heard of snakes eating eggs—hen eggs—but we never knew until Saturday when we learned the secret from an eye witness. It was in Rowan county where the black snake swallowed four hen eggs. He found the nest under an apple tree, and although the eggs were larger around than the snake's head, his neck or even his body, he had no trouble in getting them pushed down the narrow passage. You could see them go without any trouble and when the four eggs were in the snake you could see the four knots on the snake. But how did he digest them? Well that was an easy question for Mr. Blaskanake. He crawled up the body of the tree, wrapped himself around it and tightened himself until pop, pop, pop, pop—and all the eggs were broken.

Nervous Women

For nervous, tired women, we recommend Cardui. Cardui is a woman's medicine. It acts specifically on the female organs and has a tonic, building effect on the whole system. It contains no harmful ingredients, being a pure vegetable extract. If you suffer from some form of female trouble, get Cardui at once and give it a fair trial.

TAKE CARDUI

It Will Help You

Mrs. W. W. Gardner, of Paducah, Ky., tried Cardui and writes: "I think Cardui is just grand. I have been using it for eleven years. I am 48 years old and feel like a different woman, since I have been taking it. I used to suffer from bearing down, aches, nervousness and sleeplessness, but now the pains are all gone and I sleep good. I highly recommend Cardui for young and old." Try it.

NO CHINAMEN CONVERTED.

Referring to the recent murder of Elsie Sigel in New York by a Chinaman she was trying to convert, one is tempted to ask whether the business of missions among the Chinese is worth while, since the history of the movement shows that the Chinaman is more likely to convert the mission worker to opium than the mission worker is to convert the Chinaman to Christianity.

Sir Robert Hart, for many years in charge of the Chinese customs, on behalf of the British Government and probably better acquainted with China and the Chinese than any other white man, has made since 1890 the statement that, no matter what missions aries may believe and say, not one Chinaman has ever been really converted to Christianity.

He contends that the sole object of attending English speaking schools is to learn English and pick up foreign methods, and that John Chinaman's pretense of conversion is pretense and nothing more.

There are more white beathen in New York than all the Chinamen mission will ever convert, here or in China. And such girls as Elsie Sigel can find better employment for their energies among the children of the American poor than among the almond-eyed devils of the Chinese hells infested by the very worst of the underworld.

War Time Prices.

Charlotte News.

Mr. J. P. Ritch, an old Confederate veteran who runs a store at No. 700 North Davidson street, has in his possession an old account of supplies made out by a merchandising firm, April, 1866. It has several items on it but the most striking are kerosene oil, soap and tobacco.

The bill shows that he paid the enormous sum of $1.25 per gallon for kerosene oil. Since then the price has been going down, until it is now 15 cents. This leaves open a debatable question as to the exact cause of this reduction. Some day the Standard Oil Trust has caused oil to be cheaper. Of course everything has been reduced in price since the dreadful days following the war, but the price on oil has been out of proportion to the other things. Mr. Ritch paid $1.50 for two plugs of tobacco and $1.20 for two bars of soap.

The paper is in a good state of preservation and the handwriting is clear and plain.

WOMAN—TWO PICTURES.

What the True Man Wants in the Woman that God Made.

Take the suppleness of the serpent, and the grace of a willow, the white brow of a lily, and the slender neck of a swan, two bewitching, pink shells from the ocean depths, and two dashes of blue from an azure sky; take two crimson rose petals from Paradise, and two rows of pure pearls, the circle of the horizon, the velvet touch of the warmest fur, a sheaf of shining gold, two soft carresses; take these, with some sunlight and the soft ripple of the rivulet, and the sparkle and reflection of divine intelligence and grace, and mix them all together with the life and love of God, and lo, the mysterious marvel—a woman!

By take—
A dachshund waist or the waist of a spider, a straight jacket, a flower garden in bloom set on straw; a dash of darkness, vermilion blood, and some enamel from a charnel house, thread spun by worms, some silver and gold, the skins of dead animals, a double portion of unique attractions, and of the lust of possession and display; take these, mix well together, and lo, a woman as the milliner and fashion and vanity have made her!

Look on this picture and on that. Young women that are deceived by the gaudy dash of the milliner and man-made women are misled, indeed. For what the true man wants to-day is a woman as God has made her, with the light and purity of divine beauty on her brow and all graciousness distilling from her lips.

His Little Dog Was Faithful.

Buried upright in an abandoned mine in Mitchell County by debris which covered him to the chin, so that he could not move, John English a young man of Mitchell County, remained two days, when he was taken out by rescuers attracted by the constant yelping of his little dog, which remained steadily at the mouth of the shaft.

His companion, Henry Woody, who was completely buried by the fall of earth, was dead when taken out, and English died six hours after being rescued. The dog had remained at the shaft for thirty hours.

Fence-rail philosophy may be good enough in its way, but we pin our faith to the man who climbs down and goes to work.
