THE ONE SURE WAY

to have money is to save it. The one sure way to save it is by depositing it in a responsible bank. You will then be exempt from the annoyance of having it burn holes in your pockets, and aside from the fact that your money will be safe from theft, the habit of saving tends to the establishment of thrift, economy, discipline and a general understanding of business principals essential to your success.

To those wishing to establish relations with a safe, strong bank, we heartily extend our services.

COUNTY GROCERIES.
Charlotte Chronicle.

It has been recorded in this paper that at several places throughout Cabarrus county, rude shacks are being put up from which near-beer is being dispensed. That means that out in the country away from police protection, with no restrictions and under no license—joists for the sale of crooked drinks, vile drinks, poisonous concoctions, are to be opened—for no one will contend that the owners of these isolated shops could expect to make expenses merely from the sale of the stuff known as near-beer. Just what defense the authorities of Cabarrus county will make for permitting the opening of these shops is hard to imagine. We do not know that they will permit this traffic. Our remarks are based on the newspaper statement that such shops are being opened. It is a practical return to conditions that prevailed up to the year 1880, when country groceries were legalized. These were typical hell-holes, and in the light of present day civilization it is amazing to think that their existence was ever countenanced—but as a matter of fact, it was. At different points in Cabarrus and Stanly counties, these groceries lived and flourished. They had existed in Mecklenburg, but in this county they were rooted up several years before they were abolished in the two counties named. The location was generally at a cross roads, or on a well-traveled highway, but remote from other habitations and here the vicious element of the community would congregate, carouse, gamble, fight and in some cases murder, and all in no fear whatever of the law. But an aroused public sentiment finally rid the country of these institutions, and now the opening wedge is being driven. The springing up of near-beer shops in the country can have no other meaning. That the authorities of any county in the State should permit such a traffic to get a start passes belief.

Glowing Report of the West.
Walter Scott, vice-president of one of the largest general merchandise concerns in the country, has returned to New York City with glowing reports of the prosperity of the West, through which he makes a yearly tour of inspection.

"Never in my life before did I see such optimism as now prevails everywhere among farmers, bankers, railroad men and all others. The crops are booming, corn and wheat notably. They are the staple products, of course, and I believe both of them will make the largest crops in history. Greater than ever is the demand for men to harvest them. They can't get enough. All the farmers have money.

"But as to prosperity, I can speak of it beyond the Northwest, though not so personally. I believe there is an avalanche of it coming, east, west, north and south. It can't be stopped. "We sent out one hundred men all over the South to look over the field and report on general business and industrial conditions. Those reports have just come in. I never have met anything like them. From every hand they report prosperity."

JUDGE BOYD ON RECEIVERSHIP CALAMITIES.
News and Observer.

The judges, if permitted to, could soon regulate this question of scandalous wrecking of industries. This paper, when it stated the other day that the bankrupt law and the law relating to receiverships should be amended or abolished in toto for the protection of estates, and for the judges themselves, was not only so impressed by what a good many judges have said privately, but by the excellent advice and fine sentiment born of sad experience, no doubt, of Judge Boyd, delivered from the bench two weeks ago, while considering the application for the appointment of a receiver for an embarrassed corporation.

Among other things, Judge Boyd said:

"I do not want to embarrass the corporation and its business by the appointment of a receiver even temporarily. The court is anxious to give the company and its creditors every chance possible of themselves administering on these assets and getting together and settling this matter between themselves. It is impossible, unless something like this is done, the court will have to act. From the showing made, this company owes $44,000, and yet has assets, which if liquidated in the regular course of private business, well managed, would yield $64,000, and yet you get this corporation in the hands of a receiver, with the consequent demoralization on the value and prices of its property and product, with the expenses of receivers, trustees, attorneys, etc., and you will wreck it, with the chances that even the creditors will get nothing. Besides, these things have a tendency to damage every industrial enterprise in the country. Take these matters under consideration, gentlemen, until tomorrow morning, when the court will further consider it."

That was fine, and so far has escaped criticism from Receiver Duncan's paper, and has not evoked a "stinging rebuke" from Orator Poo.

It does not require so much courage to live the life we can afford; to be genuine, true, indifferent to what neighbors think or say. Even those who are wealthy will think more of us for this manly, this womanly independence.

Every one owes it to himself to live a real life, whether he is rich or poor; to be, and not to seem. He owes it to himself at least to be genuine.

"Paint me as I am, warts and all or I will not pay you for the picture," exclaimed Oliver Cromwell to the painter who was smothering his rude features in a portrait. This is the sort of rugged honesty that is sorely needed today.

Does the College Graduate "fit"? The question has often been raised throughout the United States, "Does the college graduate 'fit' into life? However, attention is here called to the fact that the question is never raised concerning the graduates of a technical college such as the Georgia School of Technology.

On the contrary, it is a question of how to fill the demand, for it is a fact that the demand is greater than the supply of technically trained young men, and it is to train our Southern boys for exactly this opportunity that the Georgia School of Technology is striving.

The new era of prosperity and development in the South which is so widely and enthusiastically predicted by the leading men of the country, is purely technical and textile, and the richest rewards await the young men most capably trained to "fit" into the demand. The Georgia School of Technology is better prepared and equipped than ever before in its history, offering advanced courses in Mechanical, Textile, Electrical and Civil Engineering, Engineering Chemistry, Chemistry and Architecture. The cost is very reasonable, placing within reach of any ambitious young man knowledge which enables him to take full advantage of a period of unprecedented opportunities. STRAIN TO KEEP UP APPEARANCES.
Orison Sweet Marden In Success.
News and Observer.

There are plenty of people, in all our large cities, who do not allow themselves enough to eat, and practice all sorts of pinching economy at home, for the sake of keeping up appearances in society.

What terrible inconvenience, hardship and suffering we endure on account of other people's eyes and opinions! What slaves, what fools we make of ourselves because of what other people think! How we are other people's eyes that are expensive. It is other people's eyes that make us unhappy and discontented with our lot, that make us strain, and struggle, and slave, in order to keep up false appearances.

The suit, the hat must be discarded, not because they are badly worn, but because others will think it strange that we do not change them.

The effect of all this false living, this constant practice of deception in appearances, in our manner of living our dress, is undermining the American character, ruining our genuineness, making us superficial, unreal, false.

No man can really respect himself, while he is conscious that he is sailing under false colors.

If you are wearing clothes and living in luxury which you can not afford, these things label you all over with falsehood, and are perpetual witnesses against you. There is only one possible result upon the character of a falsehood, whether acted or spoken, and that is perpetual deterioration. It does not matter whether you wear lies, tell lies, or act lies, the effect upon your character is the same.

Trying to make people think that you are better off than you really are is a boomerang which strikes back with a fatal rebound. It is impossible for you very long to pretend, successfully, one thing and be another, for your reality is always asserting itself.

Do not deceive yourself into thinking that good clothes, that a palatial home, can make a man or a woman. All the wealth in the world could not give the manhood one degree in the scale of excellence. It is spending upward, living upward, living in honesty, in simplicity; living the real life that is worth while, that will produce the finest character and give the greatest satisfaction.

Not long ago I was visited by a dear friend who has the courage to live the simple life, even in the midst of the pyrotechnical social life in New York. The man, who has not laid up a thousand dollars, has a magnificent character, strong, vigorous, yet sweet, gentle and kind. He envies no one; bows to no one; he has a superb independence; he walks like a conqueror. He has no anxiety about the future. He lives a full, complete life as he goes along. The moment one enters his atmosphere he is conscious that he is in the presence of a rich personality.

It does not require so much courage to live the life we can afford; to be genuine, true, indifferent to what neighbors think or say. Even those who are wealthy will think more of us for this manly, this womanly independence.

Every one owes it to himself to live a real life, whether he is rich or poor; to be, and not to seem. He owes it to himself at least to be genuine.

EXTRAORDINARY HAIR TONIC.
It Won't Grow Hair on Bald Heads.

Unlike all other hair restorers, Parisian Sage neither will grow hair on bald heads, door knobs or hitching posts.

One claim is about as sensible as the other.

If your head is bald and you want to cover it with hair, get a wig.

Parisian Sage, the quick acting hair restorer, is of no use to bald headed people; but for people who have thin hair, falling hair and dandruff, and where the bald spot is just beginning to show, there is nothing in this wide world that will give such satisfactory results as Parisian Sage.

Parisian Sage is guaranteed by Gibson Drug Store to drive out dandruff and stop falling hair in two weeks or money back. It stops itching scalp in two days, and keeps the scalp cool and free from odors in warm weather.

There is nothing on earth that will so quickly turn dull, faded hair into lustrous and luxuriant hair as Parisian Sage.

Try a bottle of Parisian Sage at Gibson Drug Store's risk. Use it for a week, and you will have no use for the ordinary tonics. Parisian Sage is delightfully perfumed, free from grease and stickiness, and a large bottle costs but 50 cents. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle.

THEY HOGGED IT ALL.
News and Observer.

In the framing of the new tariff bill, the New England and Middle States Congressmen gave to their rich constituents the right to tax all the people more than in the past. Aldrich and Lodge and Payne and McCall and Hale and the others from that section looked out only for the trusts. They did not hesitate to sacrifice the West and the South or their own average constituents to add to the wealth of the trust magnates. Mr. Carnegie had told them that steel needed no protection, but that trust got a big bonus as usual. The cotton farmers of the South were sacrificed to the bagging trust. The trusts, through their special representatives, "hogged" it all.

Governor John A. Johnson, of Minnesota, speaks out plainly about this sectional injustice. In his address at Seattle on Minnesota Day, that popular executive declared that "it is time that the West throw off the shackles of the East. I would preach no sectional divisions and no sectional strife, but Minnesota and Washington and the States between them, with those to the South of us, should rise in their might and claim for themselves that fair share of influence in the halls of Congress and in the administration of national affairs to which they are entitled by every law of common sense, as well as of political economy."

Governor Johnson is no narrow sentimentalist but is truly national and is demanding only that there be no special favor to the section that has so long enjoyed bonuses as to believe them to be vested rights. "We," he said, "as an integral part of the American people, should cast our influence and our votes not only to advance the material interests of our own particular section, but we should be broad enough and big enough to labor for the common good of our common country."

Governor Johnson believes the call is for the West to lead in emancipation from every form of old world and new world caste and privileges, from the tyranny of the dollar, the domination of the trust and the dictation of the political machine.

WOMEN AND CIVIC IMPROVEMENTS.
Charlotte Chronicle.

Whenever the women of a town band together for the improvement of that town, results are bound to follow. We could cite dozens of cases outside of Charlotte. Two years ago an improvement league was organized in Roanoke, Va., and as a result of the work in that short time, the World says Roanoke to-day has better sewerage disposal, purer food, a new system of garbage collection and a free medical dispensary. Commenting on this The Richmond Times-Dispatch says that "these achievements have opened the eyes of the Roanoke press. If there were ever any doubts on the subject, the work of the Roanoke Civic Betterment Club has shown that women, banded together and enthusiastic for a good cause, can accomplish more than half a dozen mass meetings among the business men. From the published accounts we should say that the chief reason for the signal achievements of the Roanoke club was a definite and clear cut policy. They decided upon what they wanted to do—and did it. Believing that improved health was the greatest desideratum of their town, they took up, one by one, measures to bring it about." The Times-Dispatch is only repeating history when it says that the success of this work in Roanoke should inspire the women of other Virginia towns and cities to similar efforts. The same means will produce the same ends anywhere. Co-operation and a definite plan of civic betterment, if followed by the women of almost any other city or town, cannot fail to bring equally valuable municipal improvements. The policy of these clubs must vary according to the conditions, but several fields of work are manifestly open to them in all communities. One of these is a united effort for municipal beauty.
