And here is room for mastery. But to be masters in the church and its work affords men and women the most splendid field for service, to awake for the church her latent powers and to lead men into the service of the kingdom of righteousness. But the fundamental mastery, the one that is the very root and ground of all masteries, is the mastery over self. The greatest race of life is from sin to God. The destiny of life depends upon the mastery man attains within himself, and the greatest problem of life is how to attain mastery for human happiness, progress and prosperity and over self. The grace of God in the heart is the first essential. The strength of all men who have coursed for righteousness and progress have been men who had the grace of God in the hearts:
