ALL READY FOR THE INAUGURATION

WASHINGTON TODAY IN READINESS FOR TOMORROW.

The First Chief Executive the Democratic Party Has Had in Sixteen Years to Be Inaugurated Tomorrow—Thousands of Visitors Are Pouring Into the Capitol.

Washington, March 3.—Washington today is in readiness for tomorrow's inauguration of President Wilson, the first chief executive that the Democratic party has given to the nation in sixteen years. Delegations of Democrats and thousands of other visitors are pouring into the capital, and the streets and hotels are crowded with strangers. Streets and buildings are decorated until hardly anything except flags and bunting is visible.

All the mass of plans, worked out in detail by a small army of committees, among whom the labors were divided, are complete, and all that is now needed is propitious weather. In all the leading features of the day's ceremonies the etiquette and precedents established in previous years will be followed. The programme may be summarized as follows:

At 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning members of the congressional committee will wait upon Mr. Wilson at the Shoreham Hotel to escort him to the White House. A similar party will wait upon the Vice President-elect, who is also stopping at the Shoreham. The incoming President and Vice President will be greeted by President Taft and in a few minutes will begin the trip to the capitol.

The President-elect will have as a special guard of honor the Essex county troops of Newark, N. J., and the Vice President will have a similar escort consisting of the Culver Black Horse troop from Indiana. President Taft, the President-elect and Senators Crane, of Massachusetts, and Bacon, of Georgia, will occupy the first carriage. With the Vice President-elect will ride Senator Overman, of North Carolina and Representative Rucker, of Missouri.

On arriving at the Senate of the capitol the President and President-elect will go immediately to the Vice President's room. Committees will then escort the President and President-elect and the Vice President-elect to the Senate chamber, which will be filled with the members of both branches of Congress and the judges of the Supreme Court of the United States.

The oath of office as Vice President will be administered to Mr. Marshall, who will then deliver his inaugural address and administer the oath of office to the Senators-elect. With the organization of the new Senate completed all of the participants in the ceremonies will march to the platform erected at the east front of the capitol, where the big event of the day, the actual swearing in of President Wilson, will take place. The oath of office will be administered by Chief Justice White. President Wilson will then deliver his inaugural address.

When the inaugural address has been concluded and the last cheer has died away President Wilson, Vice President Marshall and ex-President Taft will proceed to the White House for luncheon. Meanwhile the inauguration parade will be forming at the capitol. By the time the luncheon at the White House is completed it will be time for the leading figures of the day to take their places on the reviewing stand erected in front of the executive mansion.

From a spectacular point of view the parade will be the big feature of the day. It will be viewed by several hundred thousand American citizens, or as many as can pack themselves along the line of march. Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the United States army, will act as grand marshal of the procession.

The first grand division of the parade will be composed of the regular military and naval forces, including picked men of the army, navy and marine corps and the cadets from the West Point and Annapolis academies.

The next division will be given over to the militia. The entire National Guard of President Wilson's home State will be in line. Other States which will be represented are Massachusetts, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Georgia, Maryland and Virginia. The Governors of a dozen or more States will be in line.

The third division of the parade will be given over to the G. A. R. and other patriotic organizations, while the fourth division will be composed of civic organizations, mostly political, from all parts of the country. In the lead will be 1,500 Tammany broves in shining silk titles. Prominent Democratic organizations of Chicago, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities will be represented.

The college men's division will be headed by practically the entire student body of Princeton University. Other institutions which will be represented are the University of Virginia, Johns Hopkins University, the University of Wisconsin, George Washington University and Georgetown University.

Fifty bands and as many fire and drum corps will be in line. All along the route will be stationed Boy Scouts, render to render first aid to any of the marchers or spectators who may become ill. Ambulances and hospital attendants also will be stationed at intervals along the line of march.

MANY VACANT DESKS AT RALEIGH.

Fight Over Bill to Allow Employees Additional Pay.—Only Local Bills Considered Today.

Raleigh, N. C., March 3.—The Legislature took up the work of the final week of sixty days' session today with numerous vacant desks. Members are off for the inauguration ceremonies at Washington, consequently only local bills were considered today. Great numbers applying, many sensations being passed on public local calendars.

Bill by Hannah in Senate would allow all employees of Legislature seventy-five cents a day additional, and asked for immediate passage. Senator Johns strenuously opposed and forced consideration over another day. He and others insisted they were willing to allow some extra, but nothing like the amount proposed. Special to The Tribune.

Raleigh, N. C., March 3. — Both branches of the Legislature passed a joint resolution lamenting the death of J. A. Bizins, State supervisor of teacher training, which occurred suddenly last night.

The House discussed at great length the compulsory schools attendance bill with numerous amendments. Dillinger cut out school district officer to serve process, and another by Bowie that these officers receive fee only for convictions and not for every service for process.

MRS. VAN NESS' DEATH WAS DUE TO GAS.

Body Exhumed and Experts All Agree on Asphyxiation Theory. Charlotte Observer, 2nd.

In order that an inquest might be held over the body of Mrs. James H. Van Ness, Jr., whose death occurred late Saturday night, January 4 and in order that the public might be apprised of the facts in the case, in view of the many wild and startling rumors in circulation from time to time, Solicitor George W. Wilson, acting under instructions from the grand jury of Mecklenburg Superior Court at its recent sitting in Charlotte, had the remains exhumed yesterday afternoon and an autopsy performed by seven of the city's leading specialists and physicians last night. This corps of experts consisted of Drs. C. S. McLaughlin, Addison G. Brenzler, Clarence N. Peeler, and H. P. Barrett, who conducted the autopsy with Drs. E. C. Register, Thomas H. Wright and William Allan also present. The verdict of these specialists, after a minute examination, was that there was nothing disclosed to justify any other conclusions save that Mrs. Van Ness had met her death from the causes heretofore assigned and that there was nothing discernible, although thorough tests were applied, that would indicate in the least degree anything untoward in her demise.

Solicitor Wilson was seen last night and asked for a statement as to the case. He replied that the autopsy was made in response to the presentment of the grand jury ordering such a course. This he said had been done, a thorough and scrutinizing investigation had been made and that the complete report would be turned over to the proper authorities in due time and proper form, at which time it would be available for publication.

FORM NEWS CIRCUIT.

Afternoon Papers Meet to Discuss Service From Raleigh. News and Observer.

Nine afternoon newspapers, interested in a Raleigh service which would cover the State from this distributing center, sent representatives here yesterday to perfect the plan.

President C. D. Lee, of the United Press Association, met the afternoon men and discussed his news organization without them. The plan of the afternoon men is to receive here, distribute it over the State by leased wire and to furnish to each other the news that develops in the various sections of the State.

The papers represented were the Sun, (New Bern); Telegram, Rocky Mount; Times, Wilson; Observer, Fayetteville; Record, Greensboro; Post, Salisbury; Tribune, Concord; and Sun, Durham; John D. Gold, of Wilson, J. M. Oglesby, of Concord; W. W. Weaver, of Durham, and J. L. Horne, of Rocky Mount, attended the meeting. An accident to Mrs. Owen Dunn, of New Bern, prevented Mr. Dunn's attendance and Editor Hurley, of the Salisbury Post, missed his train.

This organization was created in the fall and has taken up the matter with a view to putting it into practice. It is known as the North Carolina Association of Afternoon Papers and its purposes are the dissemination of North Carolina news largely.

BRYAN STALS MARCH ON FRIENDS.

Arrives An Hour Ahead of Time.—Is Wildly Cheered.

Washington, March 3.—William Jennings Bryan today stole march on thousands of expectant Democrats, who had planned a royal reception, when he arrived at nine instead of ten o'clock as was expected. However the crowd quickly recognized the Nebraskan and cheered wildly, "hurrah for new secretary of state," "God bless our great leader," "Bryan," etc. It was said to Josephus Daniels, of Governor Craig, of North Carolina, "I'm glad to have Washington feel that way." At the hotel he said "he came just to attend the inauguration, and to have a good time."

HABEAS CORPUS FOR BARNHARDT

Writ Will Be Argued Before Judge Justice at Lexington Tomorrow.

Attorney T. D. Maness will go to Lexington tomorrow to appear before Judge M. H. Justice in habeas corpus proceedings to secure bail for George Barnhardt charged with attempting criminal assault on Mrs. Sam Kirby. There was an error in the judgment written by Squire C. A. Pitts, who tried the case Friday. After the trial the Squire withheld judgment until the next morning but when he wrote the commitment it stated that Barnhardt should be committed without bail until the May term of Superior Court, when he intended to decide the matter of bail the next morning. Under the circumstances it is likely Barnhardt will be granted bail.

HON. W. J. BRYAN SPEAKS IN RALEIGH.

Hon. Josephus Daniels Leaves for Washington.—Gov. Craig and Personal Staff Will Also Attend Inauguration.

Special to The Tribune. Raleigh, N. C., March 3.—Hon. William Jennings Bryan and Hon. Josephus Daniels, slated respectfully for the portfolios of secretary of state and secretary of the navy in the cabinet of Woodrow Wilson, left Raleigh on the 12:45 train this morning for Washington for the inaugural ceremonies. Along with them went members of the Senate and House of the General Assembly and numerous other prominent citizens.

Mr. Bryan was here to deliver an address last afternoon under the auspices of the North Carolina Peace Society. He was greeted by an audience for this occasion that taxed the great auditorium to its utmost capacity—eight thousand and more people. "World Peace," was the theme of Mr. Bryan's address and he took the bold stand that the government of the United States, because of her peculiar position as a world power and location that makes invasion so difficult and improbable, should set the other nations of the world a shining example of disarmament in the interest of the furtherance of the world movement for peace. Hon. Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy to-be, sat close to Mr. Bryan while he spoke and joined approvingly in the applause.

Mr. Bryan depicted that wild rush of rivalry there is now among the nations in the creation of armies and multiplication of the battleships of the navy, charging that much of this is due to subtle influences of a mercenary character, set on foot by the interests that live on the contracts for the building of the monster ships. He could see nothing but bankruptcy ahead for the nations if this thing is not stopped.

He declared this absorbing ideal for the government of the United States and its rank among the nations and the peoples of the earth is that her flag shall be loved rather than feared. He declared that all the nobler forces of the earth are making for universal peace. The interests of commerce, the growing intelligence of the peoples of the earth and the ever increasing feeling of brotherhood are special factors in this direction. Then there was the great expense of warfare which has evolved during the ages from the bow and arrow period to the present age when the purchase of one cannon ball and the powder to fire it would bankrupt the average man and the nations are rushing into debt for the building of monster guns and other armament.

Col. Chas. E. Johnson, of this city, has been invited by S. Davis Warfield the prominent railroad man and financier of Baltimore, to come to Baltimore March 6 for a conference to be held there on that date by leaders in railroad and commercial circles all over the South. It is understood that one of the principal matters to be discussed will be effective co-operation in inducing desirable people in the north and northwest who are looking for new homes where there are better climatic conditions, to come into the Southern States and buy farms. It is expected that a formidable plan for the colonization of desirable people of this character to come South will be adopted and put in operation speedily.

Governor Craig and his personal staff left last night for Washington to attend the inauguration and will have with them three companies of the National Guard, two of the naval reserves and one of the coast artillery. The companies of the Guard will be Company D, Third regiment, Louisburg; Company F, Third regiment, Franklinton; Company T, Second regiment, Edenton; the Wilmington Coast Artillery; the naval reserves at Elizabeth City and the reserves of Windsor.

The boy attached a spool of thin wire to the kite to prevent it being carried away by high winds. A sudden gust of wind caused the kite to pitch and it fell across an electric wire. The boy fell dead. It is said that 11,000 volts of electricity passed through the boy's body by means of the thin wire he used to hold the kite.
