COWARDICE AS A FOREIGN POLICY

Under the above caption the New York World says editorially: In foreign relations Mr. Harding is afraid of everything.

HOLDING OUR OWN

The Department of Agriculture, according to a late report, places the value of all crops grown in 1922 at $8,501,395,000.

LATE STARTING

The Journal of Commerce, noting the shortage of calcium arsenate, which is needed to fight the boll weevil, says it is a case where the Departments of Agriculture and Interior are "frantically locking the stable after the horse has been stolen."

HIGH TRIBUTE TO SOLDIERS

The American troops who had been stationed on the Rhine since the signing of the armistice in 1918, are en route home.

MEETING OF MERCHANTS ASSOCIATION

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Merchants Association was held at their rooms in the Dixie building on Monday night.

MOTHER'S AID BILL

his failure to appoint one of the three eligibles on the civil service list. At last reports he was still waiting for a reply.

This is a typical case of how the Civil Service law is administered by the Republican party in the Southern States. The President made it possible for any one of the three highest candidates to be appointed so that he could slip in a Republican who might make the third highest record on the examination, but he evidently did not figure on such cases as have arisen in Bedford.

COUNTY AGENT'S METHOD OF KILLING WEEVIL

Some of His Methods Are: Plant Fever Acre, Not More Than Five to Seven to the Acre.

Monroe, Jan. 22.—Taking the best features of plans successfully used in Georgia and South Carolina, T. J. W. Broom, Union county demonstration agent, has prepared a simple, but effective, method of boll weevil control for cotton planters of North Carolina, who are now engaged in their first tussle with the cotton pest.

Mr. Broom tried out his plan in this county last year and the results that he obtained prompts him to pass it along to other farmers with his recommendation.

Briefly stated his "compilation" of the best methods, is: 1. Plant fever acres, not more than five to seven to the acre.

2. Prepare the seed bed early. This is important so that the land may be well settled by planting time.

3. Plant early fruiting varieties, varieties which while setting fruit yearly will continue to set fruit throughout the season.

4. Plant early, but not too early. I believe that the best date to plant on most soils in this section is April 25 to May 1.

5. Fertilize liberally. Liberal fertilization is necessary in order to get the plant off to an early start.

6. Cultivate intensively. The crop should be cultivated every week.

7. Kill the weevils when they first emerge from winter quarters.

8. Gather infested squares and destroy them. This method combined with poison as outlined above can be employed by every farmer, and at a profit.

9. Poison with calcium arsenate. This applies to those who are going to raise cotton in the open.

10. Destroy the weevils' food, gather cotton early and then plow up the green stalks.

11. Encourage the farmer in his fight is given by Mr. Broom. "It is our brain and brawn," he says, "against a boll weevil's bill."

12. Destroy the weevils' food, gather cotton early and then plow up the green stalks.

YOUNG BRIDE HAS TO GIVE UP HER DIAMOND

Also Loses Automobile She Thought Was Hers After She Had Married a Soldier.

New Bern, Jan. 21.—To have the jeweler demand the surrender of his bride's diamond ring and the garage man refuse to deliver his new car, and then a banker decline to advance two or three hundred dollars on a $1,200 draft that he might protect his creditors would be enough to annoy the average man.

Sergeant Lawrence came to New Bern with a detachment of soldiers sent over from Fort Bragg in charge of government property which was loaned the Red Cross in its first relief work.

He had met and fell in love with a local girl who had been at work in the emergency hospital. If nothing else had happened in his life, events began to crowd him after that.

Within ten days the soldier was engaged to the girl and on Sunday before Christmas they were married. He bought the band from the jeweler who was later to embarrass him; the license from the register of deeds, and Rev. J. A. Vache, Presbyterian minister, married them in a town near here.

A few days after the marriage Lawrence began to look about for a bride present, and for it he selected a well known automobile sold by the Fowler Company.

As initial payment he tendered S. H. Fowler a check for $1,000 and told him to rush the delivery of the machine.

Everything went well for a few days, then trouble started.

One morning Mr. Hibbard opened a letter from an Oklahoma city and pulled out Lawrence's check. It bore that fated legend, "no such account," and he set out to find the man who had given it.

He finally located him during the afternoon. Lawrence and his wife were at the garage waiting for their car which had just arrived, and at the very moment was being washed.

The soldier was called aside and shown the check. He said there must have been a mistake, and went on to assure the jeweler that he would take it up by 6 o'clock.

"Never mind that," said Hibbard, "you can take it up now with the cash or with the ring; I'm not particular which."

"It will be very embarrassing for me to take the ring from my wife," Lawrence answered, "and I don't have the money in my pocket."

The soldier stopped across the street where his wife was admiring the new machine, and "borrowed" it for the jeweler who wanted to send it in as a sample for another ring, he told her.

Bad news travels fast. And so, a few minutes later Mr. Fowler advised Soldier Lawrence that he had decided to hold the car until he heard something from his check.

More embarrassment for the soldier. But he was not inclined to let it bother him. He had a "straighten out his business," and a banker was next in line.

Oscar Lane, president of the New Bern Banking and Trust Company, was called on by the soldier. He presented a draft for $1,200 and when Mr. Lane agreed to send it in for collection asked for an advance of two or three hundred dollars to tide him over until the collection was made.

He still has the paper, as it was returned from Oklahoma. "No such account."

Lawrence is still in New Bern with his bride whose family lives here. But he is not in charge of government property. A few days after the check episode he was called back to Fort Bragg, but begged to be returned, and finally was—as recruiting officer. Nobody has offered to prosecute him, because nobody lost anything by his check-writing.

Hibbard has the ring; Fowler, the car, and Lane a piece of paper that cost him nothing.

Checks For Co-Operatives. Raleigh, Jan. 22.—Checks totalling more than $7,000,000 were mailed to members of the Tobacco Growers' Co-operative association in western North Carolina and the bright leaf belt of Virginia from the associations' headquarters here.

The checks represent the second payment on tobacco delivered to the association up to December 1.

Children No Exception. In Concord as elsewhere youth and age suffer alike from kidney weakness.

Is your child weak, frail and pale? No control over the kidneys' action? Kidney weakness is a serious thing—far too serious to overlook.

It may mean a life of sickness. Profit by Concord experiences. Use Doan's Kidney Pills.

Endorsed by Concord parents. Read this Concord mother's endorsement: Mrs. Sallie Little, 40 Crowell St., says: "I know Doan's Kidney Pills are a splendid remedy for kidney trouble."

My little boy had awfully weak kidneys and could not control their action either during the day or night. His kidneys acted too freely all the time and I gave him Doan's Kidney Pills. I never saw anything so much good. His kidneys were regulated and he is not troubled at night now."

Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for "a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Little had. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.
