Bible Thought For The Day

CHRIST'S BENEDICTION:—Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.—John 14:27.

TO LOOK AFTER LOCAL ROADS.

We have been informed by reliable sources that the present administration in Cabarrus County intends to devote the greater part of its road energy to repairing local roads, leaving the Highway roads to the State.

The county only recently ordered rebuilt an important road leading from the Harrisburg section to the Mecklenburg county line. The road will connect with the new State highway near Harrisburg, and will give the people of that part of the county a direct connection with Concord over an improved road.

The road leading through No. 5 township also needs attention, and is to receive it, we understand. The road was in excellent shape several years ago, but it has been allowed to go down and is very rough at present.

AT SEAT OF TROUBLE

Chairman Hull, of the Democratic Executive Committee, in discussing the recent announcement by Attorney General Daugherty that President Harding is to seek the Presidency again, gets at the seat of the controversy over the nomination when he declares that if President Harding had been so good as even the average President, there never would have been any doubt about the Republicans giving him the nomination.

The Old Guard members will secure the nomination at the next Republican convention for Mr. Harding, but that does not mean that he will not have serious opposition. The progressives, those Republicans who are inclined to be a little more radical than progressive, and certain of the conservatives even are tired of the present policies in Washington, and they know well enough that Mr. Harding is too old and too learned in the ways of the "bosses" to change now.

The overwhelming majorities enjoyed by Democrats at the polls last November, together with the fact that his party members have not unanimously agreed that he is their candidate, show the weakness and unpopularity of the Harding administration.

HONOR FOR STATE.

A North Carolina county now has the distinction of ranking third in the United States in cotton spindage. This distinction belongs to Gaston County, which, according to a recent survey of the Gastonia Chamber of Commerce, has a total producing cotton spindage of 1,130,675.

The survey shows that the mills of Gaston have a total capitalization of $35,979,600. There are 3,596 looms. The total number of operatives employed is 16,183 and the annual payroll for 1922 was $8,542,836. The mills maintain 5,282 cottages for their operatives. Annual gross sales for 1922 were $57,440,246.27. The mills consumed during the year 212,500 bales of cotton.

The Gaston mills have been among the most prosperous in North Carolina, and they have done much to gain for this State the enviable textile reputation she now enjoys.

BALSON ON THE SOUTH.

Roger Babson, the great statistician, admits that he is "very bullish on the South for the long pull." He also advises the rest of the country to "watch the South" and believes that some time perhaps, the South will wrest the industrial and agricultural supremacy from the North and West, stating that we have the natural resources here and are beginning now to see the great opportunities we have.

"I am very bullish on the South for the long pull," says Mr. Babson. "Alabama may become the greatest industrial state in America, and Florida may become the greatest agricultural state. The South has all the basic natural resources—climate, phosphate, fuel, waterpower and shipping facilities. All the south needs is more vision and more of that indescribable 'something' which makes things go. Moreover, the south is fast getting that vision. Every southern city and every southern state is evidence of this fact. The South is waking up and the North and West must look out or they will some day be outclassed, both industrially and agriculturally."

GETTING SOMETHING DONE.

Judge Stack, of Monroe, is of the opinion that our courts move too slowly, and recently in Greensboro he warned everyone connected with Guilford Superior Court that when a case was called he wanted the witnesses and lawyers to be on hand. And just to show that he meant what he said, he fined a man $80 for being late when he had been summoned to appear as a witness.

We hope some other Judges will follow this excellent example set by the Monroe Judge. It happens a great many times that when cases are called it takes some little time to get the witnesses on hand, and in some instances lawyers themselves have to be sent for, or court has to wait until the lawyers reach the courthouse. Such practices delay the courts and are partly responsible for the great congestion in our courts. The average witness does not like to appear in court, but if he is summoned he has to attend and he might as well be on time as to be there late. And by attending promptly he will assist in the work of the court and save the State some money.

OUR GAIN.

Isadora Duncan has sailed for Russia or some other European country. She lost her citizenship ostensibly because she married a Russian, but really because this country doesn't desire citizens of her type. The woman is a dancer and claims to be an artist. When she was being examined relative to her deportation she handed out some stuff like this:

"I would rather live in Russia on black bread and vodka than in the United States at the best hotels. I am against prohibition, newspapers, and the world in general that lies this side of Paris and Moscow. The people in this country do not want art. They don't know what it is. I came here to give them art and they put me on Ellis Island. No prohibition country for mine. Some of the liquor I drank here would kill an elephant. It would have killed me if I had stayed much longer."

The Greenville, S. C., News says it is "too bad that such a nice young lady shouldn't be allowed to tell this wicked country about art; she would have had an uplifting influence." The News adds that the woman is entitled to her choice, and if she takes Russia, all the better for the United States. There are plenty of such people here and they all can leave for all we care. They help nothing and nobody.

Fruit experts in western North Carolina and Georgia believe much damage was done to the peach, plum and pear crops by the recent cold snap. Apples in the western part of this State had not advanced as far as peaches in other sections, and therefore were not as badly damaged. The exact amount of damage will not be known for several days. In Asheville and other sections of the western part of the State the temperature dropped from 45 to 13 degrees above zero, and in this section the drop was in the same proportion, from about 50 to 20 degrees above zero. Unless the experts are mistaken, there will be a shortage of peaches in this State and in Georgia this year.

ROTARIANS HAVE STRENUOUS DAY

New District Governor to Be Nominated Today; Two Business Sessions Tuesday. Charleston, S. C., March 20.—Rotarians and their ladies, of the 38th Rotary district, more than 600 being registered from South Carolina and the western half of North Carolina, finishing a strenuous day of two business sessions, a luncheon, a dinner, a motor drive about Charleston, a Rotary revue in a theater and the conference ball tonight.

At the business session, Carroll H. Jones, district governor, was in the chair. His annual address was a feature of the forenoon. The dinner session was featured by an address on Rotary International by former United States Senator Christie Bennett, a member of the Columbia club. The theater was filled to overflowing tonight for the Rotary revue, the Greenville club's series of tableaux for work among boys being the chief contribution.

This morning Thomas P. Lessene, president of the host club, welcomed the visitors. The response was made by Howard E. Rondel, of Winston-Salem, past district governor. After District Governor Jones' annual address, R. Jeffrey Lydiate, of Calgary, Alberta, Canada, spoke for Rotary International, being a member of the board of directors. Tomorrow the chief business session will be nomination of a new district governor and a luncheon session, the final conference feature will be an oyster roast at Folly Beach on the Atlantic ocean.

Representatives of 28 Rotary clubs from North and South Carolina were here for the opening session.

Fruit Loss Estimated at About 30 Per Cent.

Statesville, March 21.—The damage to fruit crop in this section, due to the freeze Monday night, is about 30 per cent, according to estimate made by F. T. Meacham, superintendent of the Irrell experiment station. "I believe that just prior to the frost there were at least 30 per cent of the peach, plum and pear trees in bloom," said Mr. Meacham yesterday. "I went over the orchards this morning and found that all those that were in bloom had been killed. Of course the loss may not be as great as 30 per cent, but judging from the apparent condition of the trees, I believe that the above estimate is a conservative one. The crop in this locality is going to be a very light one in my estimation."

SMOKE SCREENS TO PROTECT PEACHES

Dense Black Smudge Hovers Under Georgia Orchard Endangered by Cold. Fort Valley, Ga., March 19.—The Georgia peach belt covering thousands of acres of land which was yesterday a sea of pink blossoms, tonight was being protected by a smoke screen from hundreds of smudge pots in every orchard.

"It is a critical period for the orchardists," declared O. I. Sapp, in charge of the United States Peach Laboratory. "We are expecting a temperature as low as 25 during the night. If the temperature goes to 25 degrees there will be serious damage to peach trees that are in full bloom." The Weather Bureau at Macon, Ga., thirty miles from here, today issued a special warning informing peach growers that a temperature as low as 27 or 29 degrees may be expected during the night.

The smudge pots were touched off late this afternoon. The growers are using sawdust, green pine and cottonseed hulls. A stiff wind from the northwest was carrying a heavy black smoke screen throughout the belt. The growers were using three-pound peach cans packed with cottonseed hulls, then saturated with petroleum. These cans were being placed one to every forty trees, while sawdust and pine fires were kindled to every fifteenth or twentieth row in the orchards.

WHY BUILD A SILO?

Furnish Feed For Winter When Pasture Is Not Available. Raleigh, March 21.—The reason why silos are growing in popularity in North Carolina is because they furnish a feed for winter use that comes nearest to giving the same results as a good summer pasture. Silage furnished succulent food when pasture is not available, it makes possible a cheap feed ration and gives the grower a greater value for his crop. These are some of the reasons advanced by E. R. Rainey, extension farm engineer for the State College and Department of Agriculture, for building a silo this summer.

Mr. Rainey states that the man who is feeding from 10 to 12 cows without using a silo is not feeding as economically as he might. A cow will consume about 30 pounds of silage per day and under North Carolina conditions it is advisable to plan for at least two tons per cow which will carry her about four months. The size of the silo will depend on the number of cows to be fed, says Mr. Rainey, and where a grower has less than fifteen head, his silo should be about 10 feet in diameter; from 15 to 25 head, not over 12 feet in diameter and for 25 to 40 head, not over 14 feet in diameter.

The most common types of silos used are concrete, wooden stave, modified Wisconsin, and wooden hoop. Tarred farmers seem to like the concrete and wooden stave better than all others. The concrete silo can be built for $3.00 to $3.50 per ton capacity and will last indefinitely when properly constructed. The stave silo can be built for about $2.00 per ton capacity and will last from 5 to 15 years.

Mr. Rainey will be available for giving help and advice in silo building during the period extending from June 1 to September 15 and those who should write him now so as to be placed on the list. At the same time, he suggests that those farmers planning to build a silo should also plan their corn acreage figuring one ton of silage for each five bushel yield of corn given by the land.

Crawley, was formerly a pressman for a local newspaper, and when he left town last fall he left a wife and five children. "But the Tanlac treatment has put my appetite in full force again, has done away with the pains in my back and stomach, set my digestion right, and increased my weight a number of pounds. In fact, Tanlac has coupled me up with such good health that I feel like a different man." Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35-million bottles sold.

A committee composed of Mrs. Stacy, Miss Maybelle Penn and A. C. Nash, the University architect, were asked to visit institutions for women in the state and report back to the cost of providing suitable accommodations for women on the basis of the university's present policy as to the co-education. The building committee does not expect, at this meeting, to be able to arrive at any definite decision as to the exact building to be erected at the university.
