Lightning Plays Strange Freaks With This Person.

Greensboro, June 21.—Lightning striking J. C. Matthews, at his home here late yesterday afternoon, while working in a field with his wife and five children, behaved in a very freakish way, cutting his overalls into ribbons, two inches wide, not missing a spot of cloth. The cloth was not buried, nor was the man. Another peculiarity was that the bolt came from a distant cloud. There was no storm on any rain, only the black cloud in the distance, with an occasional fork of lightning showing in it. The children were the first to see their father struck. He was working some little distance from his family—and when his terrified wife rushed to him his eyes were blazing in death.

HURLEY ADDRESSES THE EDITORS OF THE STATE

Says North Carolina Needs a Positive Expression of Good Citizenship.

Blowing Rock, June 21.—North Carolina needs a very positive expression of good citizenship," declared J. F. Hurley, of the Salisbury Evening Post, speaking here tonight as the orator of the North Carolina Press Association convention. "Conditions in county, state, and nation would be better if we had a universal expression of good citizenship from all men classed as good citizens.

"We have too much passive, too little positive citizenship. Too many of our citizens are on vacation. We are not living the citizenship we profess. We are too busy to bother with the duties of citizenship; the details do not interest us, we are busy with other matters, to us more important. We trust the other fellow to meet the demands of good citizenship."

Speaking of the resolution adopted last year by the association pledging itself to an earnest effort to combat in every possible way the era of lawlessness then believed to be prevalent, the speaker declared that he believed the newspaper men of the state had lived up to their promise and urged the publishers to a still "higher and better display of citizenship."

"Drifting is so easy, and responsibility takes one far more than one desires," continued Mr. Hurley. "Good citizenship sometimes costs; we are not always ready to pay the price, though we are always ready for the reward. The newspapers must bring men more and more to where they will see themselves in civic duties and accept unto themselves full responsibility. America is calling for the man who knows what to do, how to do it, and is willing to do it."

"This wonderfully beautiful state was not given us to exploit or neglect," he concluded. "It is ours to develop, to enrich, to glorify and hand on to a succeeding generation more lovely in God's eye than when we first received the trust. North Carolina is lovely in mountain grandeur and in lowland simplicity. She is truly a 'summer land where the sun doth shine' and you and I must give an account of our stewardship. This then is a great and pleasing duty for us—helping our people to a higher living, the expressing of a better citizenship day by day. Before we can do this we must catch the vision."

New Prohibition Complications.

Philadelphia Record.

The latest decision of the Supreme Court on prohibition is quite important. Under it American ships can sell intoxicating beverages beyond the three-mile limit as well as foreign ships. Under the law also, as interpreted by the Supreme Court, foreign ships cannot bring liquor, even in sealed compartments, within the three-mile limit.

The decision is in harmony with the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act, and the reading of it will convince every fair-minded person that the Court had nothing else to do.

What the result will be is open to discussion. Our impression is that it will make further trouble in the enforcement of the Volstead act. It will also probably increase the price of intoxicants upon the ships which carry liquor, the reason for this being that it will cost more to provision the vessels with wet stuff beyond the three-mile limit. It will also result, no doubt, in many of the ships which now carry liquor from foreign ports changing their destination, or their papers in such a way as to create an impression of doubt as to what their destination really is. Many of the rum-laden vessels hereafter found beyond the three-mile limit will in all probability carry papers indicating that their cargoes of liquor are intended to supply foreign ships, or American ships, as the case may be, at some point beyond the three-mile limit. Every new decision on disputed points regarding the Volstead act appears to increase the possibility of an alibi for the bootleggers.

The foreign view of the law as finally determined on this point remains to be discovered, since some foreign countries whose ships touch our shores have laws requiring them to carry liquor intended for the members of their crews. They may get around it, if their law provides that each member of the crew be given a half pint of liquor a day, by forging the members of the crew to drink four or five days' rations just outside the three-mile limit. But that, too, might lead to complications heretofore unthought of by the friends or opponents of the Volstead law.

Asheville, N. C., June 23.—A. S. Storrs, administrator of the estate of Mrs. Lillian Storrs, has entered suit here for $75,000 damages against the Southern Railway Company as the result of the killing of Mrs. Storrs when with her bile in which she was riding with her husband was struck by a passenger train at a crossing near Statesville on January 8th, last.

HISTORY OF GROWTH OF EFIRD ORGANIZATION

Business Which Amounted to Only $100,000 Per Year Six Years Ago Reached a Total of $15,000,000 Now.

The following history of the growth of the Efrid organization appeared in the Efrid Chain Sale Special, which was recently edited and published by the head offices of the company in Charlotte:

"The story of Efrid performance has few equals in the mercantile history of America.

From one small store, doing less than $100,000 a year, to a mighty chain of 33 large mercantile establishments, doing over $15,000,000 in business each year—that is the story of Efrid performance in the short span of 15 years.

An unusual record, to say the least.

The reason forms the basis for this issue today, which is a Carolina booster edition, financed by the Efrid stores.

No success of this character could have been founded on selfishness. No success of this character could have been achieved by cutting the corners, by sharp practices or by questionable trading. The profiteer could not have accomplished this result.

What happened was this: Five boys, who a little over a decade ago were raising five-cent cotton on an Anson county farm, and who a little later on were clerking in a Charlotte store at $15 and $25 a month, have simply succeeded in carrying out an ambition in a fair and praiseworthy manner.

J. B. Efrid, head of the business today, believed that a big mercantile business could be established right here in the Carolinas—both wholesale and retail. Each year he saw thousands of merchants go north to buy goods from commission houses and pay extra freights and additional heavy commission charges. He saw no reason why these costs could not be saved to the merchant and to the ultimate consumer. So he began to put his ideas into practice. He and his brothers got hold of a Charlotte store. Later they secured another, and later another until today they have 33 of the largest stores in the Carolinas on their list.

How well this theory has worked is shown by the fact that these 33 stores last year sold over $15,000,000 worth of merchandise.

The month of June has marked the annual Efrid chain sale. Efrid reports in his own management expect to reach their goal of two million dollars worth of goods sold in that time.

The Efrid policy from the outset has been to be a part and parcel of Carolina's development, to aid in this development in every possible way.

Fifty years ago there was not a solvent bank in North Carolina. Twenty-five years ago there was only a handful of mills and other industries in the Charlotte territory.

Today there are over 700 cotton mills within a radius of 100 miles of Charlotte. Seventy-five million dollars worth of automobiles and tires are sold through Charlotte distributors each year. Over a half million hydro-electric power is being developed in the piedmont section today from streams which 20 years ago were not serving Carolina.

No states in America have recorded such a wonderful tale of industrial expansion as have the Carolinas during the past ten years.

Carolina prosperity and Carolina progress is the talk and the wonder of America today. North Carolina alone is spending one hundred and twenty million dollars for good roads, while her schooling system and her broad system of charities requires the addition of many more millions. But she is making money fast.

North Carolina pays to the federal government in taxes today more than the total paid by Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi and Louisiana.

The Efrid business which has had such wonderful success finds its own records of expansion outdistanced by its native state, and no business in the Carolinas is prouder of Carolina's growth than the 33 Efrid stores.

The Efrid idea is to try and keep pace with the wonderful growth of the Carolinas—a growth without a parallel in American history.

Ask Investigation People's National.

Salisbury, June 21.—Several hundred depositors of the People National bank, which closed last week, met at the county courthouse tonight and formed a permanent organization for self protection. W. H. Hobson was elected chairman, R. E. Tuttle, secretary, and an advisory committee composed of C. H. Klutz, R. E. Tuttle, T. A. Ludwick, J. R. Maynard and B. M. Cauble was formed. This committee is to investigate and ascertain conditions of the bank as it affects depositors and report at a called meeting of depositors.

It was the sense of the meeting and a resolution was offered that the department of Justice be asked to make an investigation into the affairs of the bank and take necessary action for the punishment of violations of the national banking laws, if any violations are discovered. The mass meeting was advised of two plans, one by C. H. Klutz and one by a group of citizens looking to the taking over of the affairs of the bank and the establishment of a new state bank in the city.

Splendid Shoot at Gun Club.

The Concord Gun Club on Thursday afternoon held a splendid shoot at the club grounds, near the home of Mr. George W. Means, on South Union Street. About twenty-five persons took part in the shooting. Rev. Jesse C. Rowan, as usual, led the contestants with his high score.

Plans are already being laid by the members of the club for a big shoot here on July 4th, at which will be visitors from Charlotte, Salisbury, Monroe and Albemarle to take part in the contest. It is expected that there will be fully a hundred or more contestants for the prizes which will be offered to the A, B and C classes. The shoot will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning, and last through almost the entire day. During the day a barbecue will be served on the grounds, and indications are that it will be a big event.

As one of the attractions at this meeting, there will be an exhibition of rifle and pistol shooting by Mr. W. F. Hall, representative for the Winchester Arms Company, who makes his headquarters in this city.

Bricklayers, masons and plasterers of West Virginia have perfected a State organization with a membership of nearly 1,000.

TEXTILE LEADERS HEAR AN ADDRESS BY GAMEWELL

Opening Session of Southern Textile Association Held in Asheville This Morning.

Asheville, June 22.—Abolition of the village system of homes owned by textile companies, and substitution of home ownership by the individual worker, if practicable, might be welcomed by mill owners, B. M. Gamewell, general manager of the Erlanger Cotton Mills, Lexington, N. C., said in address before the 30th semi-annual meeting of the Southern Textile Association, at Kenilworth Inn.

The convention was opened with an address of welcome by Mayor W. S. Carley, of Asheville. More than 300 delegates from the chief textile states of the South are present. George W. Murphy, superintendent of the Dixie Cotton Co., LaGrange, Ga., made a response to the address of welcome.

Mr. Gamewell's address was a concise statement of a few first hand observations of the textile industry, as made by him, and outlined many of the things it has accomplished toward bettering working conditions for its employees, and some of the things it wants to accomplish in the future.

On the question of home ownership he pointed out that the textile mill as a whole has found it difficult to encourage thrift among its workers as a rule, while as to home ownership, this problem is being given general study and discussion. He urged greater efforts on the part of the association to encourage savings banks and thrift clubs among employees.

JUDGE COLLINS ADMITS JOINING KU KLUX KLAN

Declares He Was One of "Original Suckers" Who Parted With Ten Dollars.

Greensboro, June 21.—One judge, David H. Collins, of the Greensboro court, has admitted he was one of the "original suckers" inasmuch as paying Ku Klux Klan organizers the $10 admission fee is concerned. Recently Judge Collins has been accused of being a member of the Ku Klux Klan and he promptly made denial. Today the charge was repeated that he had joined and he admitted it.

"Yes, I was a sucker—I listened to the organizer, thought there was nothing wrong with the order, and gave him my $10. Right there is where my connection with the Klan ceased. The man told me to go to a local merchant and order my robe, but I never went. I have never had any connection with the order since I paid the $10, but like most men, hated to admit my suckership."

Canals to irrigate the Plain of Jordan, round the Dead Sea, are proposed; wide areas covered with fertile soil could then be cultivated.
