NEWS OF THE CHURCHES

REVIVAL INTEREST DEEPENS

Dr. Rowe Preaches Fine Sermon at Forest Hill Methodist Church.

Dr. Gilbert T. Rowe, of Nashville, Tenn., in the revival at Forest Hill preached another sermon of great power Tuesday night. The congregation practically filled the large auditorium of the church. A number of people from the various churches of the city and Kannapolis were noted in the congregation.

The attendance upon the morning service today was much larger than Tuesday, and great interest was plainly manifested. Pastor Armstrong announced that Friday night would be "Young People's Night." All the Epworth Leaguers and other young people will sit in a body.

The singing Tuesday night probably surpassed that of any previous service. The sermon Tuesday night was based upon the beginning of the 27th verse of the 25th chapter of Matthew, and was a plea for moral and spiritual consistency. The word "therefore," which occurs so frequently in the Bible is a word of reasoning and indicates a conclusion reached or a line of action to be followed. There are three kinds of logic—mental or formal physical or material, and moral or spiritual logic. The first is the process by which mental conclusions are reached; the second is the kind used in the practical affairs of life; and the third is indicated by the words, "Thou oughtest therefore," and is based upon responsibility to God.

While all kinds of logic are disregarded, it is the violation of the moral and spiritual that is so alarming and appalling. Men everywhere are violating the principles of morality, sobriety and spiritual wellbeing. And yet it is not their judgment that is at fault, rather men know the better and do the opposite, or neither. Many people do as they please rather than as they ought, ignoring the demands of duty and following their inclinations.

Every man has his convictions. The man who buried his one talent had his, though they were not true. He said he knew that his master was "an hard man."

but instead of acting in accordance with that conviction by doing his best to meet the demands upon him, he simply buried his talent and did nothing. On his own premises he ought to have used the talent to the greatest possible advantage. Some men think of God as stern and exacting. For thirty-six years John Wesley thought of God in that way, and during that time he lived the life of a slave, hoping that his toll would win him a place in heaven at last. When he learned that people are saved by faith, he worked just as hard as before, but his motive was gratitude and love instead of fear. The aspects of the sternness of Sinai and the gentleness of Calvary are both presented in God's revelation of Himself, and some see one and some the other, while some see both.

However much people may differ in their convictions on many things, there is a general agreement upon the fact that a great contest is going on between good and evil, and moral consistency demands that each man put himself upon the side of good.

This is the only consistent thing to do, and every man who fails to do it finds himself tangled in inconsistencies, like the one talented man, who attempted to excuse himself, or speechless, like the man who did not have on the wedding garment. And the tragedy is that when a man misses this moral and spiritual consistency he misses all, for the success of life is made up on conscientious choice and earnest action. How pitiful it is that so many people simply dream and drift, drift and dream, until they go over the falls and down the cataract and on out into eternity. Before men scarcely realize it, life is over, the record is made, and the books are closed and sent on to the judgment. When there is no sowing there can be no reaping. When there is no labor there can be no reward, where there is no cross, there is no crown.

Big Crowds Hear Dr. Rowe.

Dr. Gilbert T. Rowe, Book Editor and Editor of the Quarterly Review, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, with offices in Nashville, Tenn., is doing some great preaching at the Forest Hill Methodist Church in this city.

Dr. Rowe, upon the urgent invitation of the pastor, Rev. J. Frank Armstrong, came to Concord for a ten days' revival meeting.

Sunday night a crowd that jammed the big auditorium and filled the two large

Sunday school rooms and necessitated the use of extra chairs in every available space heard him deliver a wonderful sermon, the subject of which was "Joy." The profound impression made upon the congregation may be imagined when it is stated that perhaps three hundred people rushed forward at the close of the service to pledge themselves to a better Christian life.

Monday night Dr. Rowe preached to an audience large and appreciative from three passages of Scripture on the subject of Confession: Matt. 10:32; Matt. 7:21, and I John 1:8,19, were the basis for another outstanding sermon. Visiting preachers were in attendance, among whom being noted: Rev. T. W. Smith and Rev. G. W. Rollins, of this city, and Rev. W. A. Swearingen, of Kannapolis.

Services are being held every morning at 9 o'clock and every night at 7:30 o'clock. Mr. Armstrong desires us to say that the people throughout the city have a most cordial invitation to attend these services.

Bishop Denny Preaches Dedication Sermon at Salem Church.

Several hundred persons were present at Salem Church, Stanly county, Sunday when the Church was formally dedicated. The services were held Sunday afternoon and the sermon was delivered by Bishop Collins Denny, of Richmond, Va. In addition to the sermon by Bishop Denny there was a sermon in the morning and a picnic dinner served in the grove at the Church.

Dr. Voight to Be Here Next Sunday.

Much interest is being shown in the coming of Rev. A. G. Voight, D. D., LL. D., dean of the Southern Lutheran Seminary, on Sunday, October 7th. Dr. Voight is one of the leading scholars in the Lutheran Church, and will be heard here with much pleasure. He has just returned from Germany where he had gone as one of the twenty delegates from the United States and Canada to attend the World Lutheran Conference at Eisenach. Dr. Voight will speak on world conditions as he interprets them and on the conference in particular.

This service will be held in St. James Lutheran Church Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. This will be a rare opportunity for the public to get first hand information from a scholar of the problems of the church as they now are to be faced.

New System of High Schools for County Mapped Out by Board

If plans mapped out by the county board of education go through Cabarrus county will soon have a new system of high schools throughout the county. Monday the education board presented to the county commissioners a petition endorsed by nearly every white school in the county asking for an election for school development throughout the county. The commissioners favored the petition and ordered the election to be held on Tuesday, November 20th.

The plan the board of education is working out provides for system of high schools placed throughout the county so that each child will have access not only to public school branches but also to a full high school course. The plan as tentatively made will create nine central high schools in the rural territories which will make ten for the county counting the one in Concord. It is planned to conduct the school, elementary and high, for a term of 8 months.

Such a scheme, one member of the board stated, will call for a given amount of transportation in order to carry those pupils who live beyond walking distance to the schools.

Enough local tax will be voted on to put on such a program. It is thought that the program can be financed, if conditions remain as now, for about 25 cents on the $100. Should this program be put on as a result of the vote in November the districts now having special tax will automatically drop the local tax and go on a flat rate with every other district in the county.

This entire plan, it was stated, is being complimented by people who are thoroughly interested in education in the county because it provided efficient elementary and high schools for every child in the county, whether he live in hamlet or village or in the most remote rural section.

Colorado Penitentiary Has Put Ban on Women Smokers.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 1.—Female prisoners in the Colorado State penitentiary are no longer permitted the solace of smoking within the walls of the institution, according to Warden Thomas Tynan. The male prisoners are to be allowed to continue the use of the weed, however. In answer to protests against his action, Warden Tynan said: "It doesn't look well to see women smoke. If they want to smoke, let 'em keep out of the penitentiary."

Four-fifths of the women inmates of the Colorado penitentiary smoke, according to statements made by investigators. A regular tobacco ration is issued to the male prisoners.

$100,000 Worth of Gems Taken by Robbers.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 1.—Two armed men today held up Henry Hirschberg, member of a Fifth Avenue, New York, firm of diamond merchants and his assistant, Walter Beal, in the doorway of the factory in Irvington, N. J., of Weigand and Company, jewelry manufacturers, and escaped with diamonds valued at $100,000. The highwaymen forced Beal to give them a special vest he was wearing in the lining of which the gems were concealed. Hirschberg and Beal had taken the diamonds to Irvington with the intention of selling them to the jewelry company, they told the police.

May Block Road Building Program.

Raleigh, Oct. 1.—Frank Pags chairman of the State Highway Commission, today expressed concern about further progress in the building of two state roads in Mitchell county, work on the roads having been temporarily halted by the forced deportation of negro laborers by citizens of the county, following an alleged attack on an aged white woman by a negro thought to be John Goff, escaped convict, who was later captured and placed in the State's prison here.

Governor Morrison in Charlotte.

Charlotte, Oct. 1.—Governor Cameron Morrison arrived in the city late this afternoon and will remain for a day or so with his sister, Mrs. Ada Neetall.
