Yet, the remarkable progress made in America in the last century is sufficient to inspire us with the hope that in the generations to come music will more nearly approach its rightful place in the hearts and lives of our people. A very encouraging sign is the growing interest in music clubs, music The pupils of the High School depart- festivals, and concerts, manifested in various parts of the United States. But that which promises to yield the most nning to give the play, "Landing of fruitful results is the establishment of music departments in so many of the public schools of our country.

Some may consider it a waste of time and money, Robert Bost, of Statesville, spent but as the days come and go, these same peoeple will begin to think of it as one of Bendal and Gladys Biggers, of the best investments the citizens of Concord have ever made.

Concord is privileged to claim as one of her most treasured possessions an abundance of musical talent. She is much more blessed in this respect than are many other towns. Indeed, in a certain sense, Concord is a musical town Our music teachers are earnestly striving to prepare the future generation to fill the vacancies which must be left, and to carry on the work with ever greater success than their forerunners have enjoyed. Our various music clubs, togethand Mr. Litaker are going er with the Fine Arts Department of the Woman's Club, are doing much to create and maintain a real interest in music. And a goodly portion of our people have responded whole-heartedly to their-efforts by manifesting a willingness: to co-operate with them and to help them wave on high the banner of music. But after visiting Chimney Rock if we consider a musical town one in parents at Caroleen, which the large majority of people are so deeply interested in music that they place its advancement on an equal footing with other forms of educational progress, we are forced to admit that in the past Concord has fallen short of the ideal.

> Concord's development into a musical town is much to be desired; we admire citizenship; but our hearts are stirred much more deeply by the presence of those whose lives and characters are so noble and so beautiful that contact with them lifts us above the things of this world to realms of joy and peace. The effect public school music will have on the lives of the children will mean more to the town of Concord than one can dream of. Truly is music the speech of the angels. Each ringing note is a message sent straight from heaven to the hearts of men. The message is, "Let your lives ring true—as true as the vibration that is ringing in your ears.
