ONE DEFEATED BILL

One Requiring Newspapers to Publish Amounts Received for Political Ad-

Raleigh, March 16 .- Among the meaures defeated on the floor of the general assembly was that introduced by Representative Neal, of McDowell county, and championed by Representive Connor, of Wilson county, designed to require newspapers to print the names of persons inserting political advertisements, together with the amounts paid. Under the present election law, candidates for office are required to file with the secretary of state their expense accounts, which are limited by statute. The secretary of state, in turn, releases these for publication in the various newspapers Under the terms of the Neal bill, candidates' obligations for publicity would be shared by the newspaper who would be required to publish, within ten days following any primary or election state-ments showing the amount of political advertising carried and the names of all persons paying for such advertising. During his fight for the repeal of the primary law Representative Connor stated that he advocated such a measure as that introduced by Representiive Neal. He said it was known that candidates and their friends paid to newspapers large amounts for political advertising and he thought the public ought to be advised on this point, in detail.

A few days later the Neal bill came up on its second reading in the house and was defeated by a substantial majority. Representive Connor again declared that he favored such a law and stated that, while he did not claim that newspapers favored the statewide primary for the money they received for po-litical advertising—yet they favored the rimary.

There was a sharp debate, which resulted in the defeat of the bill. Representaive Turlington, Representative Poole, of Hoke, himself a newspaper publisher, and others took a view opposite to that held by Representive Con-

Mansfield, O., March 14.-The deermination of a traveling salesman has turned the rare trick of causing a woman to change her mind after it had been absolutely and concretely set.

A middle-age woman boarded a Pullman sleeper after dark. Although her reservation called specifically for an upchampagne and imported liquors packed per berth, she centered her desire on a "lower" and all of the prevailings of the porter and the conductor could not prevent her from clambering into the bed of her choice and going to sleep. The stated fact that a "party down > the train. He was confronted by the tale of woe of the porter and conductor.

Discarding his hat, coat, collar ander shoes, he threw them in the berth and Heath, State Senator from Union, in said in effect: "Lady, that's my berth tends to come back to the legislative and I'm sure going to take it. You can do as you like about staying there." Even the famed ladder was not necesary to aid the woman to the "upper."
