CAROLINA MAN'S HEIRS START TREASURE HUNT

A. F. Bobbitt, Halifax County Farmer, Believed to Have Hidden Fortune in

New York, April 28 .- A $40,000 treaure hunt which started today, revealed the story of a North Carolina farmer who speculted in cotton futures 16 years ago and made a profit of $24,000 on a $16,000 investment in three weeks. Then he hid the money in New York but failed to reveal its hiding place before he died last fall.

The cotton planter was A. F. Bobbitt, of Halifax county, North Carolina. Befor he died he confided to J. M. Johnston, Littleton, N. C. and to his sister that his estate in North Carolina would be more than $200,000 and that "he had as much more in New York."

His heirs today engaged lawyers and private investigators to find the money They believe only $40,000 is hidden here.
