Hotels Filling Up.

The hotels here are already filling up rapidly with press men, lawyers, friends and even onlookers moved only bycuriosity. The lobbies were spotted with groups tonight with the approaching trial the center of interest. In fact this case has been tried many times over in almost every home in this community since that memorable afternoon of August 15th when W. B. Cole shot out the life of W. W. Ormond on the streets of Rockingham. Arriving here tonight from Nashville were Rev. A. L. Ormond and three of his children, Allison and Misses Myra and Ophelia. His other daughter Miss Edith remained at that she saw him leave the house must dat W. B. And so the stage figuratively speak ing is all set for what is generally considered will be the greatest legal battle in the criminal annals of the State, even eclipsing the now famous Peacock and Means trials.

Even the walls of the county ja: were not immune today against curiosity seekers with scores of people filtering by at intervals merely to get a morbid view of the iron barred window from which Mr. Cole is permitted to talk to friends who come into the fenced enclosure. And such still is the morbid sense that the local photographer has sold numbers of pictures at one dollar each of the flowercovered grave of young Ormond taken on the afternoon of his burial. a thrifty young man at Roberdel Mill has placed an order for 500 additional copies of a leading state daily with all other dailies figuring largely in increased sales.

With the Associated Press having a wire directly into the court room within five feet of where Judge Finley sits with the other big news gathering agences well protected and every leading state daily having a special staff man here, the case will be fully covered and the public can be assured in advance that they will have an abundance of sensational reading.
