To Safeguard Swimming Pools.

Durham, N. C., July 31.—INS.—Members of the Durham County chapter of the American Red Cross were gathering data this week to be presented at the next meeting in its drive to have all swimming pools in this county safeguarded from drowning.

Life-saving appliances will be installed in all pools and lifeguard stations at each pool during hours when bathers are allowed to swim. declare members of the chapter who are directing the campaign.

The recent drowning of a citizen in one of the pools has prompted the action of the Red Cross, members say.

Chas. Flowers Leaves Rich Estate to Family.

Durham, July 30.—Will of the late Charles E. Flowers, who died last week as the result of a fall from a window in a Philadelphia hospital, filed for probate in the office of W. H. Young, clerk of the court, leaves the estate to his brothers and sisters of the deceased after the death of both parents, who received the income while either lives. The estate is valued roughly at $100,000.

Paris, Aug. 2.—Perhaps it was the Queen of Spain's recent visit to Paris or just the natural whirl of fashion that has brought the shawl back into prominence. At any rate, this graceful feminine article has once more blossomed into rich luxuriance and is to be seen on many occasions.

There are silk shawls beautifully embroidered in countless patterns and there are plain ones depending on their long handsome fringe for all their trimming. A few are arranged with tiny collars of osprey. Others are the real Spanish variety in handsome color combinations.

A new kind of shawl for semi-dress occasion is patterned after the popular Spanish kind, but is made of worsted crocheted in a plain color and ornamental with circular motifs of different colors forming a wide border and finished with a long fringe. One in lavender has insets of discs in shaded purple and mauve and still another in bright green has the discs in red, mauve and yellow. Black and white make a striking combination and different tones of yellow with orange and tangerine. These shawls are exceedingly cosy on a cool summer night and have the advantage of being much cheaper in price than the real Spanish kind.

Another pleasant shawl comes in white kasha cloth with motifs of brightly colored wool crocheted set in an all-over pattern and finished about the edge with a long fringe of bright green worsted.

Another use of this crocheted work comes for a scarf of tango-colored kasha with set-in motifs of crocheted in beige, tan and tango color and there is a little soft, round hat of the same material ornamented with the same crocheted motif.

Norma Shearer Here. Probably the widest range of characterization and emotional interpretation ever afforded Norma Shearer is seen in "The Devil's Circuit," her latest picture, which opened today at the Concord Theatre. It's a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and the first American production of the Danish director, Benjamin Christianson.

In this opus Miss Shearer is first presented as a girl on the brink of womanhood, just out of an orphan asylum, a shabby, shy, forlorn, little creature, her only friend in the world her nondescript dog, which she carries under her arm.

The awakening of love carries her into womanhood, and as the stirrings of passion effect the transformation there strike the pangs of separation. Her love is torn from her by the police and an emotional scene of rare realism and convincing fidelity takes place.
