GOVERNOR McLEAN SPEAKS TODAY AT SESQUI-CENTENNIAL

The State of North Carolina Has Always Believed in Doing Things With Precision, He Says. (By Staff Correspondent) Philadelphia, Oct. 11.—North Carolina has always believed in doing things with speed and decision; once it was decided, whether it be building highways in 1926 or preparing for war in 1775, according to Governor A. W. McLean who, in speaking today at the North Carolina Pylon at the Sesqui-Centennial grounds in connection with the ceremonies attendant to the celebration of North Carolina day, devoted most of his address to the early history of North Carolina, the intense love for freedom which developed there and the outstanding part the State played in the events leading up to the Revolutionary War and the Revolution itself.

38 PERSONS KILLED IN TRAFFIC WRECKS DURING PAST WEEK

Total Was Four Less Than for Previous Weeks.—19 More Hurt Than During Week Before. (By the Associated Press) Thirty-eight persons were killed, and 241 injured in eleven southern states during the last week, in Automobile, rail and other traffic accidents, a survey conducted by the Associated Press showed. The death total is ten below the figures for the corresponding period of a week ago, while last week's injured total was swelled by nineteen in the last seven-day period. Of these, four were killed in grade crossing accidents, and two deaths were recorded in North Carolina following bicycle accidents. Reporting a total of ten deaths, North Carolina led in casualties for the week. Florida was second with six deaths, and South Carolina, Kentucky and Georgia each reported five. No deaths were caused by traffic accidents during the week in either Alabama or Virginia. Florida led in the number of injured with 46, while Georgia reported 43 and Louisiana 40.

GEORGE TOMS KILLED WHEN CAR OVERTURNS

University Junior Met Instant Death in Wreck on Durham-Chapel Hill Road. Chapel Hill, Oct. 10.—George N. Toms, of Durham, a junior in the University of North Carolina, son of Clinton W. Toms, vice president of the American Tobacco Company, was killed instantly in an automobile accident near here on the Durham-Chapel Hill highway shortly after midnight last night when a Jackard sedan in which he and a fellow student, Jack Cobb, also of Durham, were returning to Chapel Hill overturned down a six-foot embankment. The cause of the accident probably will remain a mystery. Toms was driving the car and Cobb was asleep when the accident occurred. The crash is believed to have killed Toms instantly, his chest being horribly crushed when he was extricated from the wreckage. Cobb was badly stunned but recovered sufficiently to pull himself out of the wreckage and go for help after he found it impossible to extricate Toms. He reached a nearby farm house and telephoned to Chapel Hill. There was no liquor in the car and no evidence that the students had been drinking, according to the police. The car was the property of Garrett Morehead, of Charlotte, a member of the Carolina football team, Cobb escaped with minor injuries.
