FLAG DAY.

150th Birthday of Old Glory Will Be Celebrated Tuesday.

Washington, D. C., June 13.—Atlantic and Pacific shores and the long stretches from Puritan New England to the torrid mezas, where Indian and Spaniard roam, tomorrow will resound with the acclamations of a free people in celebration of Flag Day, which this year marks the 150th anniversary of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes as the national ensign.

In all the large cities and in the town halls and school houses of small villages and hamlets alike the days when the hand-made symbol of a body of united colonists fighting for self-respect and liberty and will be recalled and the story of the struggle for the maintenance of an asserted independence will be told in oration, recitation and music.

For nearly two-score years now June 14th has been recognized in the United States as Flag Day and in the celebration of the day itself the woman who originated the idea of such an occasion has been almost overlooked. Alice B. Sanger, of Indianapolis, is the mother of Flag Day.

The first organized celebration in honor of the flag was held in the post office department in this city in 1908. Miss Sanger not only originated the idea, but the ceremonies by which the day was observed. Since then the custom has spread into all departments of governmental service.

The day is now recognized by a patriotic demonstration almost as great as that of the Fourth of July, with addresses by the cabinet members, who are the heads of their respective departments.

Authenticated tradition tells us that the first United States flag, made after the design adopted by Congress on June 14, 1777, was made in 1776 by Mrs. Elizabeth Ross of Philadelphia, known as Betsy Ross. This flag was made by hand under the personal direction of General Washington, and when completed was used at his headquarters.

It is supposed that the first display of the Stars and Stripes at a military post was at Fort Schuyler, on the present site of Rome, N. Y. The fort was besieged early in the month of August, 1777, and the garrison was without a flag. So they made one according to the prescription of Congress by cutting up sheets to form the white stripes, bits of a woman's red petticoat to form the red stripes and the blue ground for the stars was composed of the army coat belonging to Captain Abraham Swartout.

Paul Jones, as commander of the Ranger, to which he was appointed June 14, 1777, claimed that he was the first to display the Stars and Stripes on a naval vessel. It is probable that the flag was first unfurled in battle on the banks of the Brandywine September 11, 1777, the first battle after its adoption. It first appeared over a stronghold June 28, 1778, when Captain Rathbone, of the American sloop-of-war Providence, captured Fort Nassau, New Providence, Bahama Islands.

John Singleton Copley, the eminent American painter, claimed to be the first to display the flag in Great Britain. On the day when George III, acknowledged the independence of the United States (December 5, 1872) he painted the flag in the background of a portrait. To Captain Moore, of the whaling ship Bedford, doubtless is due the honor of first displaying the Stars and Stripes in a port of Great Britain. His ship arrived in the Downs with "Old Glory" flying at the fore February 3, 1784.

Lazzeri approached the major league record by getting three of his four in one game on Wednesday, while Ruth got two of his quartet Saturday. The Babe is now one day ahead of his record breaking 1921 schedule.

The first three sluggers in the National league, Hack Wilson, Rogers Hornsby and Earl Webb, made two apiece this week. Webb's 10th drive into the bleachers starting the Cubs off to victory today.

The summer campaign for the light harness horses will begin in earnest the week of July 11, when the Grand Circuit season will open at Toledo.

MAIN STREET.

It doesn't matter where it lies: Its vivid lights may blind our eyes, Or may it be a narrow way, That only knows the gleam of day.

It doesn't matter if it seems A pathway bulged out of dreams Or if it is a sombre place Without a leavening of grace.

Its buildings may stand tall and slim Against the smokescreen's farthest rim Or it may boast a general store A postoffice, and nothing more.

Great crowds may pass—the high, the low— Or just one person, moving slowly, May wander by, wee, meager shops, Toward the dim verge where Main Street stops.

But—be its pavements white or brown Be it in village, city, town— The place of which we are a part Owns Main Street as its pulsing heart!

BOYS SHOT WHILE BEATING A RIDE

Sawed-Off Shot Gun Used on Three Youthful Hoboes as Freight Train Comes to a Stop at Barber.

Three boys who were "beating" a ride on a westbound freight train Thursday night, were given drastic treatment at Barber about 1 o'clock this morning when some unknown party peppered them with shot.

Two of the young men were left here at an early hour this morning, one of them having to secure hospital attention, and a smaller boy, about 13 years of age, said to have been more seriously injured by shot, was taken on to his home in Asheville.

The young man who received the bulk of the first discharge of the unknown man's sawed-off shot gun gives his name as Lloyd E. Davis, 24 years of age, of Concord.

Davis states that his assailant, whom he took to be an officer, as the train was coming to a standstill at Barber, threw a flash light on him and immediately fired, the entire load taking effect in his face, arms and chest. He heard the "gunner" shoot two or three times afterward, each time a hobo being the object of attack. Davis was not aware of what happened to the other hoboes, as he said he was suffering so much that he had to be helped into a box car—a negro man playing the Good Samaritan act—and was brought to Statesville.

Davis explains that he had worked in a cotton mill in Kannapolis for the past few months and had given up that job to go to Oteen where he hoped to secure employment.

Another young man, George Whitt, of Greensboro, received one shot in the arm. He and the young man Davis are being detained here while the Railway authorities are making an investigation with a view to determining who did the promiscuous shooting. So far, no charge has been brought against the two young men held here.

BANKRUPTCY ORDER VACATED BY WEBB

Previous Order Had Been Issued in Delaware Against Charlotte Corporation.

Charlotte, June 10.—The bankruptcy order against the Southern States Finance Company, issued in United States district court here several months ago, Thursday was vacated by Judge E. Yates Webb.

The action of the court was in line with a recent decision, by Judge Hugh M. Morris, of Delaware, that a bankruptcy order issued in the Delaware district court took precedence over the action here due to the fact that the corporation was organized under the Delaware law.

The affairs of the company became involved in September 1926 when North Carolina creditors filed a petition for appointment of a receiver by the Delaware federal court. The petition was granted in November 1926 and Edward S. Cannon of Trenton named receiver. An ancillary action was filed here by H. B. Adams of Waxhaw, in an effort to secure assets of the company here.

In August 1926 Mr. Adams had been appointed receiver by the State courts here and Judge Webb ordered him to turn over the assets to Mr. Cannon. Mr. Adams declined to do this and was cited for contempt. Mr. Adams also filed suit for $438,000 against officials and directors of the company alleging fraud and mismanagement.

D. A. R. CHAPTERS TO OBSERVE FLAG DAY

Practically Every Chapter in State To Offer Flag Day Program on Tuesday.

New Bern, June 13.—Flag Day will be celebrated Tuesday by practically every chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution in North Carolina, as the sesqui-centennial anniversary of the adoption of the American flag by the Second Continental Congress in Philadelphia on June 14, 1777.

These meetings will be the last of the summer season for the D. A. R. chapters in the state, although the committee work will be continued throughout the summer. The chapter meetings will be resumed in the fall.

The Flag Day programs are held every year by the organization. This year special attention will be paid to the 150th anniversary of the flag adoption. The work done during the year also by various regents and members in the formation of living flags in cooperation with the United States Flag association has also encouraged more interest in the celebration of the day.

At the recent Continental Congress at Washington Mrs. Edwin Clarke Gregory, of Salisbury, State Regent, Mrs. Joseph B. Tate, of Asheville, regent of the Edward Buncombe chapter, and Mrs. Pohn T. Lowe, of Lexington, were among the five D. A. R.
