

KANNAPOLIS DEPARTMENT

(By JAMES E. MOORE)

REFORMED MINISTERS OVER CENTRAL NORTH CAROLINA EXCHANGED PULPITS

Kannapolis Divine Preaches at Salisbury—Charlotte Pastor Addresses at Mt. Pleasant...

formed Church. In the evening a thank-offering service of the Girls' Missionary Guild...

At the First Reformed Church in Salisbury Rev. J. W. Meyer, of Charlotte, preached the morning sermon...

Rev. B. J. Peeler, of Salisbury, spoke to the congregation of the Reformed Church at Charlotte in the morning and addressed the Mt. Pleasant membership of the Reformed Church in the evening.

Rev. W. H. McNairy, of the Nazareth Orphanage...

never fear but what they will keep pace with the other camps of the district in this work.

At Mt. Hope Rev. J. W. Meyers, of Charlotte, was the speaker at the afternoon service while at Crescent the morning services were in charge of Rev. J. H. Keller...

At Mt. Hope Rev. J. W. Meyers, of Charlotte, was the speaker at the afternoon service while at Crescent the morning services were in charge of Rev. J. H. Keller...

Dr. Han Holmhouse, prominent divine of the Reformed Church, delivered the sermon at the church in Gilead at the eleven o'clock service...

Rev. B. J. Peeler, of Salisbury, was the afternoon speaker at the Reformed Church in Boger.

GEN. ALBERT L. COX INVITED TO KANNAPOLIS

Gallant Leader in World War and Legion Department Commander May Visit Town City.

Kannapolis, Nov. 28.—General Albert Cox, of Raleigh, commander of the North Carolina department of the American Legion...

First honors for laugh productions go to Sam Wiley, as the mannequined and coiffured Percy, the colorless boy who would find it difficult to join the Army or Navy...

The school girls, Gladys Wagoner, Idelle Collins, Mary Harrison and Dorothy Antley, played their parts smoothly and with ease as did R. M. Lowder, as the airship commander...

The story of "Cool Knights" is all about a woman haters' club, an organization of college men sworn to bachelorhood.

"Kannapolis Woodmen members are among those that keep the camp fires burning the year around, and we

LEGION PLAY WELL PRESENTED AT KANNAPOLIS

Large Audience Enjoys Production of "Cool Knights"—Good Acting, Funny Skits, and Pleasing Dancing—Benefit Performance.

Kannapolis, Nov. 28.—"Cool Knights," the three act American camp Legion play, was greeted by a brilliant audience when it opened last night in the Central high school auditorium for a run of two nights.

The group of Kannapolis amateur performers, who acted every part, presented the play with an earnestness that received numerous rounds of applause.

High class entertainment between acts was furnished by Cat Lockman and Guy Ritchie, whose number entitled, "Twenty Black Toes" fairly brought down the house with laughter.

The proceeds of the show were given to the disabled World War veteran in the hospital at Oteen.

ERLANGER BEATS KANNAPOLIS FIVE BY SCORE 25-12

Victory Was Third of Season For Erlanger; Other Good Games Are Booked.

Erlanger, Nov. 26.—The Erlanger Y-basketball team defeated the Kannapolis Y cagers here last night by the score of 25-12 in hard fought contest.

The Erlanger boys started their scoring machine functioning early in the game, and managed to keep their forwards well in line for additional goals while keeping the Kannapolis leads from scoring to any great extent.

The Erlanger club has scored 90 points in four games, while opponents have chalked up 64 points.

On December 29th the Erlanger club plays the Miami, Fla., professional club at Osteen, Florida.

Lineup: Erlanger (25) Kannapolis (12) Brown.....F..... D. Smith J. Barnes.....F..... J. Smith Barbare.....C..... A. Gilliam C. Barnes.....G..... Gilliam Barton.....G..... Helms

THREE GAMES FOR CAGERS DURING THIS WEEK

Kannapolis, Nov. 26.—The third week of basketball for Kannapolis teams will be ushered in Wednesday night when the local Y. M. C. A. cohorts meet the Draper quint on the Kannapolis court at eight o'clock.

On Friday night the Towelers encroach Charlotte for a melee with the highly heralded "Y" crew of that city.

PERSONAL MENTION Kannapolis, Nov. 26.—Among the Kannapolis folks attending the Davidson-Duke football game at Davidson Thursday were:

Misses Mary Catherine Sechler, Elizabeth Freeman, Avis Sherman and Hattie Goodnight, Myrtle Goodnight, Harriett Orr, Louise Lipe and Messrs. Ralph Punch, James Wiseman, James Flowe, "Bud" Dellinger, Leslie Correll, Roy Funderburke, Homer Ketchie, "Shine" Sturgis, Charles W. McKinley, H. L. Lipe, A. Luther Brown, Pender Davis, Robert Hinson, Frank Flowe, Tom M. Widenehouse, Claude Widenhouse, Robert Ewan, Charles Swearingen, Frank Goodright, Sam Query, Henry Templeton, Guy Lowe, J. G. Lowe, Everett McKinley, and Jack Lapsley.

Misses Ruby Litaker and Pearl Dudwick and Messrs. Armond Parker, Sam Wiley, and Rudy McLeod attended the Weaver-Catawba game at Salisbury Thanksgiving day.

Mr. Dallas Noah motored to Chapel Hill for the Carolina-Virginia classic. Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Troutman and children, Thelma, Beatrice, and Christine, spent Thanksgiving with relatives at Troutman.

Edwin Lipe, of Duke University, is passing the week-end with his parents here.

Misses Clara Cobb and Annie Pearl Moser, Davenport College students, are the guests of home folks over the week-end.

Ernest Alexander has resumed his studies at Duke University after spending a few days here with his brother, Dr. George Alexander.

Rev. Mark B. Grier was in charge of the Thanksgiving services at the Coddle Creek A. R. P. Church Thursday morning.

Misses Betty Propst and Salome Shirey will return to Lenoir-Rhyne College, Hickory, Monday morning after spending the holidays in this city with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. Propst on Church street.

Bel Ford, who is a student at the Greensboro College, is the guest of relatives here.

Olja Scarboro and Stahlee Funderburke, of Duke University, and Wake Forest College respectively, are with their parents during the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl T. Smith and family spent Thanksgiving with friends and relatives at Cherryville.

FOR PROFITS READ TRIBUNE WANT ADS.

club, saved the day by discovering that rare under-plant grew on the island. The leaves of which plant, when steeped, make a tea which has a remarkable effect on those who drink it.

When the pirates awoke, the effect of the tea on their conscience making deception impossible, caused them to remove their disguise and make themselves known to the boys.

They and their kind, with the means which are at their command, constitute a threat against our well-being as a nation, thousands of times greater than that afforded by all the 'Reds' in creation combined!

The only action taken on the suggestions made by Theodore H. Price of New York, in his banquet address last night, for an organized advertising and publicity campaign for North Carolina and for the establishment of a permanent exposition for the state, was the adoption of a resolution thanking him for his address.

Reports were received from E. C. Dwell, of Charlotte, on traffic; K. S. Tanner, of Spindale, on coal buying; Bernard M. Cone, of Greensboro, on taxation, commerce and labor; C. W. Causey, of Greensboro, on finance, audit and cotton buying.

After giving a detailed description of the equipment at the State college for aiding the mills, Professor Nelson stressed the importance of establishing scholarships in textile training.

While no action was taken, the mills are understood to have taken kindly to the idea. Professor Nelson was elected an honorary member of the association.

The only action taken on the suggestions made by Theodore H. Price of New York, in his banquet address last night, for an organized advertising and publicity campaign for North Carolina and for the establishment of a permanent exposition for the state, was the adoption of a resolution thanking him for his address.

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

MONEY TO CONTROL GOVERNMENT SCORED

North Dakota Solon Refers to Oil Fraud to Prove His Charge—Tried to Beat Justice.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 27.—Use of money for the control of government constitutes the greatest menace to American democracy, Senator Nye, a Republican independent of North Dakota, declared here tonight in an address at the Ford Hall forum.

Selecting the oil scandal as the "most flagrant example" of the place the American dollar is given in American government, Senator Nye said there was involved the "purchase of the administrative branch of the government," large expenditures in an effort to sidetrack a congressional investigation and finally an effort of wealth to subvert justice in the criminal trial.

"I have never been an advocate of capital punishment, the North Dakota senator said, "but when I see what men of the type of Sinclair and Burns are attempting to do, and succeeding in doing, I can only confess myself as seeing occasions when capital punishment is altogether proper."

"They and their kind, with the means which are at their command, constitute a threat against our well-being as a nation, thousands of times greater than that afforded by all the 'Reds' in creation combined!"

The only action taken on the suggestions made by Theodore H. Price of New York, in his banquet address last night, for an organized advertising and publicity campaign for North Carolina and for the establishment of a permanent exposition for the state, was the adoption of a resolution thanking him for his address.

Reports were received from E. C. Dwell, of Charlotte, on traffic; K. S. Tanner, of Spindale, on coal buying; Bernard M. Cone, of Greensboro, on taxation, commerce and labor; C. W. Causey, of Greensboro, on finance, audit and cotton buying.

After giving a detailed description of the equipment at the State college for aiding the mills, Professor Nelson stressed the importance of establishing scholarships in textile training.

While no action was taken, the mills are understood to have taken kindly to the idea. Professor Nelson was elected an honorary member of the association.

The only action taken on the suggestions made by Theodore H. Price of New York, in his banquet address last night, for an organized advertising and publicity campaign for North Carolina and for the establishment of a permanent exposition for the state, was the adoption of a resolution thanking him for his address.

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

STATE'S TEXTILE MEN MEET IN GREENSBORO

Greensboro Chosen At Final Session At Pinehurst—Hear Prof. Thomas Nelson.

Pinehurst, Nov. 26.—Greensboro gets the annual convention next summer of the Cotton Manufacturers Association of North Carolina, it was decided at the winter meeting here in executive session today.

The executive session, presided over by the president, Charles G. Hill, of Winston-Salem and Thomas Nelson, was featured by a report from Prof. Thomas Nelson, of State college, showing that 23 tests had been made in the textile school for North Carolina mills since September 1, last.

After giving a detailed description of the equipment at the State college for aiding the mills, Professor Nelson stressed the importance of establishing scholarships in textile training.

While no action was taken, the mills are understood to have taken kindly to the idea. Professor Nelson was elected an honorary member of the association.

The only action taken on the suggestions made by Theodore H. Price of New York, in his banquet address last night, for an organized advertising and publicity campaign for North Carolina and for the establishment of a permanent exposition for the state, was the adoption of a resolution thanking him for his address.

Reports were received from E. C. Dwell, of Charlotte, on traffic; K. S. Tanner, of Spindale, on coal buying; Bernard M. Cone, of Greensboro, on taxation, commerce and labor; C. W. Causey, of Greensboro, on finance, audit and cotton buying.

After giving a detailed description of the equipment at the State college for aiding the mills, Professor Nelson stressed the importance of establishing scholarships in textile training.

While no action was taken, the mills are understood to have taken kindly to the idea. Professor Nelson was elected an honorary member of the association.

The only action taken on the suggestions made by Theodore H. Price of New York, in his banquet address last night, for an organized advertising and publicity campaign for North Carolina and for the establishment of a permanent exposition for the state, was the adoption of a resolution thanking him for his address.

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the senate had "a wonderful opportunity" to strike at this curse in American politics in settling the issues involved in the question of seating William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats.

Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the challenge which wealth is offering every day. If they will first voice genuine indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant Congress and an administration that will turn solidly upon this accursed power which holds so fast a grip upon our economic and political life."

and T. H. Webb, of Concord, on fare and publicity. Concord reports was of any special nature was said.

While there was no discussion of the meeting relative to matters of production, which has been the most admitted principle of the present rate of production, so small a margin of profit, as the mills have completed their orders in hand there will be considerable reduction in production, several mill men said.

The textile men, in response to questions, said they had had any consideration to a possible increase in wages. The inquiries were made by the recent reduction in some of the New England mills and the agitation along the coast in Great Britain.

Declaring that more than the affairs of the association, the textile men, in response to questions, said they had had any consideration to a possible increase in wages. The inquiries were made by the recent reduction in some of the New England mills and the agitation along the coast in Great Britain.

After giving a detailed description of the equipment at the State college for aiding the mills, Professor Nelson stressed the importance of establishing scholarships in textile training.

While no action was taken, the mills are understood to have taken kindly to the idea. Professor Nelson was elected an honorary member of the association.

The only action taken on the suggestions made by Theodore H. Price of New York, in his banquet address last night, for an organized advertising and publicity campaign for North Carolina and for the establishment of a permanent exposition for the state, was the adoption of a resolution thanking him for his address.