TIPSY DRIVERS IN STATE BIG MENACE, OGLESBY DECLARES

Had Rather Give Drunk Man Shotgun on Highway Than Automobile.—Says Work Will Stop Much Crime.

Judge John M. Oglesby, of Concord, presiding at sessions of Buncombe County Superior Court this week, sea recent utterance from the bench. Concerning statements by the Confriends. cord jurist an Asheville press dis-

"I had rather turn a drunk man loose on the highways with a loaded patches from Durham, a strong prob- shotgun than with an automobile, Judge John M. Oglesby said in a Bun combe County Superior Court after a jury had returned a verdict of guilty against a defendant for driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. "With a shotgun," the jurist continued, "he possibly would kill but one man, but in an automo> bile he could kill more." Pleasing reflections of Judge Ogles by's observations in Buncome county also were forthcoming at spasmodic intervals from the bench during the trial of a number of cases in the criminal court. According to the jurist, Buncombe county's moral condition is much better than it was when he last was here two years ago. Solicitor Robert M. Wells, in this connection, added that housebreaking cases were frequent at the beginning of the present year and that automobile thefts during February and part of March numbered more than seventy. At the present session of court, it was pointed out, but one housebreaking case has been tried and only two automobile thefts are on the docket for trial. Work, according to Judge Oglesby's observation, is a panacea for most violations of law. "During my time on the bench," he said, "I have yet to see a man guilty of larceny who has been regularly engaged in work."

A great portion of present day crime, he added, is directly traceable to persons not engaged in gainful pursuits, or only occasionally em-
