Hard Hitting.

The Washington Sentinel, (the editor of which was lately removed from the office of printer to the Senate to make room for the editor of the Union), is bringing his guns to bear upon President Pierce.

Franklin Pierce has been weighed in the balance, and found wanting.

CONCORD GAZETTE.

CONCORD, N. C.

SATURDAY APRIL 5, 1856.

ALEXANDER COLE, Esq., is authorized to act for the Western States. His address is 111-113 West Montgomery co., Illinois.

AMERICAN TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT, MILLARD FILLMORE, OF NEW YORK.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT, ANDREW J. DONELSON, OF TENNESSEE.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

J. C. A. & Co.—Money received, all right. Your time is out.

FRANK.—Received rather late for this week. Pass upon its merits next week.

JANE.—Leap Year allows you no such privilege.

J. S.—Your chances grow small by degrees and beautifully less. And why?

H. K.—Had to take a hint. We are "done taking in a sigh."

J. W. B.—We give you a showing.

REX.—No doubt you are the "Snow Bird" immortalized by the novelist, but your effusion is not worth the paper, to say nothing of the precious time you wasted.

In the Charlotte Whig of the 1st inst we find the proceedings of an American meeting, in which Wednesday the 14th day of May next, (being Wednesday of Mecklenburg Superior Court), is proposed as a suitable day for the holding of the District electoral convention.

In our issue of last week we suggested the 24th instant, which is Thursday, according to our almanac.

We hope our friend of the Charlotte Democrat will take back his assertion that the origin of "All God-ids" is to be found in the 51st verse of the 7th chapter of Luke. It may be found by the curious, however, in the third verse of the xxvii Psalm, it is said.

A letter in the New York Tribune, dated Fort Myers, Fla. March 7th, says: "The Indians have burned down two houses at Manatee, belonging one to Mr. Snel and another to Mr. Cunningham. This last named man was a member of the last Legislature, and was very active in favor of moving the Indians to the West. He was murdered."

SPEEDY.

CONGRESSMEN are directly on the line of the great (?) North Carolina Railroad, and Concord is "nigh about," but, although there is but about 60 miles of Rail between the two towns, the Patriots of the last few weeks have required seven days to make the trip, "including stoppages!"

Is answer to the interrogatory of the Carolina Watchman, we would say that Buzzard is the "stump pulled" species.

Speaking of Buzzards reminds us of a story we heard the other day, which, although related by a gentleman of undoubted veracity, looks so Muchman-like and smells so fishy, that we were compelled to hand over our hat to the narrator. Not to the story, he said that a buzzard was caught, its eye-balls split open with a knife and its head placed under its wing, in the space of one minute the eyes of the bird would be perfectly restored. He really believes the story himself, and quotes scripture to sustain him in his position. He says "the scriptures say 'there shall be healing in his wings'."

OUR SHIPMENTS.

As several of the papers on the line of the North Carolina Railroad have been giving, lately, statements of the amount of produce shipped from their respective stations, we purpose, as soon as practicable, to give a sketch of the business done at our station. We think, from appearances, the full report will serve to open the eyes of sundry buggars who speak of Concord as the "one horse town," simply because "na sich" are tolerated here.

On accommodating and gentlemanly Agent, JOHN C. YOUNG, Esq., promises us to make out a statement in full of the produce sent from this station, from the opening of the road to this place, to the present time.

He informs us that the largest day's business he has yet done was shipping upwards of 200 (two hundred) bales of cotton and near 500 (five hundred) barrels of flour.

We throw this out as a bait, and hope some of the way stations may be able to make an equally high showing.

James HIRCKSON, Esq., one of the prominent citizens of the Eastern Shore of Maryland, died at his residence in Berlin, Worcester county on the 15th inst, aged sixty-two years.

FROM CALIFORNIA.

A gentleman writing from California, under date of the 23d of February, gives us a cheering account from the Eldorado of the West. He gives us a full description of the country, its mountains, rivers, mines, &c., from which we extract the following: "The surface of the State is principally mountainous, as the Sierra Nevada Mountains extend through the State, nearly parallel with the Pacific. The Colorado and the Sacramento are the largest rivers. The Gold region of California has principally at the base of the Sierra Nevada, and extends nearly 400 miles, along the Sacramento, Feather, Yuba, and American Rivers and their branches. Here the precious metal is found by people from every section of the habitable globe. I may say, the gold found near the mountains is generally in larger pieces than that found in the valleys, which is usually in such fine dust that quicksilver is to be used in collecting it."

I admit the Yankee abolitionists are a little ahead of us Southerners, in point of cunning and getting their bread without the sweat of the brow, but when it comes to hard work and sowing to it, the Southerner is far superior to his fanatical neighbor of the north.

I think the action of the last Legislature in relation to the Chinese, a large number of whom are in this State, is almost unconstitutional. It taxes the Chinese $30 per year, or $3 per month. They are generally poor people—hardless and inefficient, and it is a rare thing to see a Chinaman educated.

The health of the country is generally good. The rains have ceased, almost entirely, and we fear there will not be enough to carry on mining purposes to much extent this spring.

A recent account from the Marmeluke Hill Mines in Nevada county, state that Brown & Co. are taking out from $30 to $40 per day to the land; also, in Mormon Island, Sacramento county, Spears & Co. have been taking out from $20 to $30 per day to the land on the Ohio Flat, a mining claim known as the Guthrie & Cress claim, since the 19th of January last, have been making from $30 to $50 per day, to the land."

A call is made in the Salisbury Watchman, for a meeting of the old line Whigs of Rowan, at the Court house in Salisbury, on the Monday of May County Court.

We caught a young man by the name of Allen, a bookman on the North Carolina Railroad, was killed on Friday the 28th ult., at Thomasville. He attempted to unhitch a car while the train was in motion, when he fell across the track and the wheels passed over his leg and hand, crushing them horribly. The limbs were immediately amputated, but he expired the next day.

The New York Court of Appeals, has finally decided that the Prohibitory Liquor Law of that State is unconstitutional. It is stated that the decision extends to the general principle of Prohibition, as well as to the details of the law.

Read, the young Law Student at Chapel Hill, who killed a man by the name of Cheek, in that vicinity a few weeks ago, has been acquitted. The jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

ELECTIONS YET TO COME.

New Hampshire having led off the presidential elections, will be followed by Connecticut on the first Monday of April, and Rhode Island the Wednesday ensuing (next Monday and Wednesday). Then there will be no other elections until June, when Alabama, Ark. miss, Iowa, Kentucky, Missouri and Texas hold their elections on the first Monday, and this State and Tennessee on the Thursday after.

California, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Maine, Ohio and Pennsylvania, will also have State elections, before the grand tug of November.

WHAT AN ABOLITIONIST!—The property of Cassius M. Clay, the great Kentucky abolitionist, is advertised to be sold at auction, and includes twenty-two slaves men, woman and children!

It astonishes the abolitionists to find Cassius is the owner of twenty two slaves men, woman and children. The New York Herald says: "Bless your souls gentlemen, there is nothing remarkably about this. The most cruel slave drivers are Northern abolitionists. They are only theoretical abolitionists for political purposes. When it comes to a matter of dollars and cents it is quite another affair."

OUR TABLE.

Major Jones' Incidents of Travel.

We have received a spicy book, about a year's labor, wit and good sound sense, under the above title. It is more interesting than the Major's "Courtship," from the fact that it contains truthful descriptions of many noted places in our country. It is fantastically illustrated and may be had of the Publisher at 50 cents per copy. Address T. B. Peterson, Philadelphia.

The woods near Harrisburg, Pa. are teeming with wild pigeons.

MR. FILLMORE'S POPULARITY.

The reason why M. FILLMORE has such a strong hold upon the affections and confidence of the conservative elements of the country, is undoubtedly to be found in the fact, that he has followed the illustrious example of Clay and Webster, and ever presented himself a national man. The Worcester Argus, an old fashioned Whig paper in Massachusetts, which declines to commit itself, as yet, to any candidate, thinks the influence which produced Mr. Fillmore's nomination were various, and speaks of them as follows: "It is worthy of remark that he advocates and supports of M. Fillmore in the States which were but a few years ago the scene of secession and disunion conventions, have always been the opponents of secession and disunion—the journals which held up his fame, have ever testified with patriotic union expression, and the politicians who have stamped in his name, have invariably been the defenders of our National integrity against the assaults of secession and Southern rights men. The truth is, though it is unpalatable enough to the old free soil communion and the modern republican philanthropy, Millard Fillmore has a place in the hearts of the conservative South for the same reason that he has a place in the conservative North."

He has been known as a public man through conservative mediums, his history shows no bending to section, but a continual worship of the whole country, his political action has been entirely definite but always practical, his political tastes have ever been for such honorable measures as ensure to the prosperity and durability of the nation.

With a platform or without a platform, no section of the republic would fear Mr. Fillmore's administration, for every section has observed his antecedents and knows that he would deal equal and exact justice in constitutional business. And such a character among patriotic conservative men,—men some of whom hate the fugitive slave law with a perfect hatred, and a class of whom love the institution with more than local and interested love—has brought about the circumstance of this new party's nominating a leader of one of the old parties for its candidate for the Presidency. The Southern states gave Mr. Fillmore a large share of the votes in convention, but the confidence that his name would obtain the support of hundreds of thousands outside of party, was what occasioned that gift.

JEFFERSON ON THE FOREIGN ELEMENT.

We publish, for the edification of our readers, the subjoined extracts from Jefferson's Notes on Virginia, pages 117 and 118.—Comment is unnecessary.

"Civil government being the sole object of forming societies, its administration must be conducted by common consent. Every species of government has specific principles. Ours, perhaps, are more peculiar than those of any other in the universe.

"It is a composition of the freest principles of the English Constitution, with others derived from natural reason. To these nothing can be more opposed than the mixture of monarchies. Yet, from such we are to expect the greatest number of emigrants. They will bring with them the principles of the governments they leave, imbibed in their early youth; or if able to throw them off will be in exchange for unbounded licentiousness, passing, as it is usual, from one extreme to another. I would be a miracle were they to stop precisely at the point of temperate liberty.

"These principles, with their language, they will transmit to their children. In proportion to their numbers they will share with us their legislation. They will infuse into their spirit, war and bias in directions, and render it a heterogeneous, incoherent, distracted mass. I may appeal to experience, during the present contest for a verification of these conjectures."

"We take pleasure in directing the attention of our readers to the advertisement in another column, as 'altered and amended,' of Messrs. T. TROTTER & SONS, Charlotte. They are constantly receiving additions to their already magnificent stock.

The Washington Star says that spurious quarter eagles have made their appearance in the city as well as in Philadelphia and Baltimore. They are dated '1854,' and in point of execution are calculated to deceive though in color they are as light as bass, as well as deficient in weight.

George Neuer, of Harrisburg, on Wednesday recovered a thousand dollars damages for personal injuries from the Pennsylvania railroad company. It appears Neuer was crossing the track of the road in a covered wagon, when a locomotive without warning came along, driving his vehicle to pieces and dangerously wounding him.

Excitement At New Orleans.

New Orleans, March 2d.—The steamer Danie Webster, due on Monday last, has not arrived, and it is feared she has been seized by Walker. There is much excitement on the subject.

CONGRESSIONAL.

WASHINGTON, March 27. In the Senate, on Wednesday, Mr. Benjamin of Louisiana submitted a joint resolution, having a view to a retrenchment in the expense of Congressional printing.

On motion of Mr. Butler the Post Office committee were instructed to inquire into the expediency of discontinuing the franking privilege of members of Congress, and in lieu thereof allowing them money for the payment of postage, regulating the postage on letters and packages which members may transmit.

The Senate resumed the consideration of the Deficiency bill. After some discussion, it was read a third time and then passed.

On Thursday, all matters relative to the action of the Naval Board were made the special order for Monday next.

Mr. Harlan, of Iowa, made a decided anti-Nebraska speech. His remark were chiefly directed against Mr. Douglas's report.

After the transaction of some unimportant business, the Senate adjourned to Monday.

In the House of Representatives on Wednesday, the House debated the Senate bill removing the restrictions on the Federal authorities to confine persons, guilty of a violation of the laws of the United States, in the judicial district where the person is convicted.

On Thursday, no thing of interest.

Fillmore and Donelson.

We have now heard, through our exchanges, from all parts of the United States, upon the nominations made at Philadelphia; and when we say that no nominations were ever more cheerfully acquiesced in—save that of Henry Clay, in 1844—we say only the truth. We do not mean to say that there is not opposition in parts of New England, and in parts of Ohio, and a silent opposition in Pennsylvania, but when it is reduced to a choice between Fillmore and some President Pierce, it will be powerless if it give way, or attempt to throw away votes on some person that can command no strength in the electoral colleges. The Seward opposition, to Fillmore, in New York, for it is only Seward opposition, when out of the Democratic ranks, will be of no avail here. We have met it twice, measured swords with it and whipped it, and can whip it more and better, the next time. It is only a misfortune that the cunning creature of Bishop Hughes can delude men in New England and Ohio to follow him.

The more these nominations are tested and canvassed the stronger they will grow. Fillmore is of the true stuff that will stand all sorts of fire and hence, the longer they are before the people the more popular they will grow. The "Law" humbug of the 12th of June will explode, just as did the nomination, The Pittsburg movement will dwindle down by October to a Hiram and Francis Adams sham. Sensible men, in these trying times; are not going to throw their votes away, or if the opposition, help to re-elect the present administration, and all its office holders with it.—N. Y. Express

Escape of Hines the Incendiary.

It will excite some sensation when it is known that the author of the destruction of the Adjutant General's office has escaped from the guard of the Sheriff, and is now at liberty.

It appears that the Sheriff was authorized to employ ample guard for the safe keeping of the prisoner, and that he was under guard when he made his escape.

There were four guards employed by the Sheriff, and the prisoner was placed in a room of Mr. Swenson's new building. At the time of his escape, three of the guards were absent, and the fourth gave no account of his escape.

The escape of this prisoner, and the utter inability of the State to bring to justice the necessary, call loudly for a radical reform in our criminal laws. It seems to be utterly hopeless to do anything in this case in the present state of things. Even if Hines should be caught and brought back, we have no assurance that justice will be done. The admission is a deplorable one, truly, but such seems to be the fact, and it is time that we look at the matter in its true light, and effect some remedy.

Hayne, the grand juror when Hines escaped, was arrested, examined by a magistrate, and discharged, but has since been arrested again.

A Rescue.—At Dunkirk a few days since, a young woman named Dana, was rescued from a party of Mormons, on their way to Salt Lake City, by her brother.

The brother was a sea captain, and hearing that his mother and sister had come to this country with the Mormons followed across the Atlantic, and overtook the party at Dunkirk. The mother had died on the voyage. The Mormons offered resistance, but were compelled to yield to the determination of the brother.

Whenever you hear a man boasting of the riches or the power of his ancestors, you may be pretty certain that he is proud but lacks merit himself.

THE MISSING SHIP.

No news from the missing ship. With her precious freight of lives. Though on the watch for tidings. Are husbands, lovers, wives! The nations' minds are troubled. To learn the vessel's fate; Safe haven may she find it last; With her thrice precious freight.

The sea is a mighty mistress. In this dread world of ours; Roaring in solar regions. Or building coral kingdoms. Within her grand old chambers. What treasures the sun-veiled. The conquering fleets of Carthage. And hosts with the spear and shield.

No news from the missing ship! Has she struck on frozen shores? Or by the iceberg shattered. Sough! port in the far Azores! Or in storage forever. In ocean has she found— Vast tomb where hopeless buried, And Royalty disrowned.

The winds we have questioned often. That in dread wildly blow; They only moan and whistle. But say not yes nor no! When will the missing steamer. Approach our coast again? Give answer blast of midnight— Give answer roaring main.

Prayers for her safe-y tonight. Rise from a million lips; A glimmering hope remains. May it not know eclipse. May the signal gun give warning. That it is under way. With its precious freight of human lives. And moving up the bay.

It will be seen by referring to our commercial column that a heavy business was done yesterday in our market, and especially in our great staple the sales of which amounted to fully 24,000 bales. This makes an aggregate of about 50,000 bales for the last three business days—Friday, Saturday, and Monday, prices in the meantime advancing 1-3 c. or more. The transactions in cotton were large yesterday, reaching about 32,000 sacks.

New Orleans, 25th ult.

There is a popular and very ancient saying that every year whose date ends with '56 is one of plenty, and this has been confirmed by a statement to the effect that this has invariably been the case, ever since 1056, in many parts of Europe.

A few days ago three runaway slaves of H. Luckert, of Loudoun county, Va, were captured near Hounsbury, Md., near the Pennsylvania line.

It is said the cost of the dome for the centre of capital at Washington will be $1,500,000.

A Valuable Family Medicine.

So celebrated has Dr. McLane's Vermifuge become, it is regarded as the only specific cure for worms. Families should never be without a supply of it. At this season, and frequently fatal among children, parents should be watchful, and on the first appearance of these distressing symptoms, which warn of their presence, at once apply this powerful and efficacious remedy. It is safe and infallible. Volumes of certificates can be produced. Purchasers will be careful to ask for Dr. McLane's Celebrated Vermifuge, and take none else. All other Vermifuges in competition are worthless. Dr. McLane's Vermifuge, also his Celebrated Liver Pills, can now be had at all respectable Drug Stores in the U. S.
