MORE ABOUT OUR RAILROAD.

The more we reflect upon the subject of connecting our principal scaport with the Mississippi Valley and the Great Lakes, the more are we impressed with the grandeur and practicability of the enterprise. Indeed, the route we propose, besides being the shortest, is at the same time the easiest that can be Whoever has travelled over the Baltimore and Ohio road will remember what tremendous obstacles nature had placed in the way of its construction. Besides the numerous and expensive Besides the numerous and expenses to aid us in securing it as speeding as tunnels necessary to complete its passage through the Alleghanies, it was as a church. Nature did not symposible. If any one can name an easier possible to find a way across North Mountain which would obvious the propose, we shall cheerfully give in our adhesion to it.

Dr. Mott apent in his district for collecting the history of nations that no State ever became permanently prosperous or powerful until at least one great city had arisen within its borders. The intelligence and enterprise of a great city, radiating as the warm and fructifying rays of the sun, are as indispensable to the material growth of the surrounding country, as the sun-beams are to the growing vegetation.

We take it that he is a great man in the Republican conventions. We take it that he is a fir representative, and this endorsement of him by his party makes his record of unusual importances. The Republican convention between the surrounding country, as the sun-beams are to the growing vegetation.

What would Greece have been without Athens? or Italy without Rome?

Who would ever have heard of the Jews had there been no Jerusalem? And to come down to later times, what would England have been without Daries, what would England have been without London! or France without Paris. The French king who said, "Paris is France," uttersed a deeper truth than is generally apposed.
