A PAPER FOR THE PEOPLE

Entered at the Postoffice at Danbury, N. C., Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

THURSDAY, MAR. 22 1888.

THE PAPER... published for the Proprietor by J. G. BAILEY.

ORIGIN OF THE EVOLUTION THEORY.

A writer in Cornhill (Eng.) Magazine shows that Charles Darwin is not the author of "Evolution," but that it is as old as Lucretius...

Lucretius, who died 52 years before Christ, is known as the author of De Rerum Natura which is recognized by universal consent as the greatest of didactic poems.

As I left the Democratic organization boldly in 1886, for reasons now known to everybody in the fifth Congressional district, I now for similar reasons renounce my connection with the Republican party...

Very Respectfully yours, JOS. BRADFIELD.

Mr. Joseph Bradford has the following communication in the Raleigh News-Observer of March 16:

I have noticed that you are liberal enough to allow men of all shades of political opinion to express their views through your columns, and, therefore, I beg to be permitted to say a few words which may be of interest to some of your readers.

As is well known in the Piedmont section of North Carolina, I have since the beginning of 1886 been in open hostility to the Democratic party, believing that the Democrats were insincere in their promises regarding the repeal of the internal revenue laws, and altogether wrong-headed in other respects.

Very Respectfully yours, JOS. BRADFIELD.

LAND SALE.

By virtue of an execution in my hands in favor of R. W. George vs L. F. Smith, I will sell at auction at the court house door in Danbury, on Monday the second day of April 1888, the following tract of land lying and being in Stokes county on the waters of Dan River, namely: Three lots in the town of Danbury adjoining the lands of —Pepper and others containing one-half acre each, one other lot in the town of Danbury known as Smith's buggy-house lot containing one-half acre, also four other tracts of land viz: One tract known as the tan yard tract containing three hundred acres, adjoining the lands of W. W. McCausland and W. A. Estes, one tract known as the mill tract containing eight and a half acres, adjoining the lands of James Nielson, Sr., on the waters of Flat Shoal Creek, one tract known as the Watkins tract or lot in Danbury, adjoining the lands of J. A. Pepper and R. L. Dalton, containing one-half acre, one other tract of five acres bought of Wagoner, adjoining McCausland and Pepper in Danbury. The above tracts or lots of lands are to be sold to satisfy a judgment docketed on the Superior Court Judgment Docket of Stokes County, wherein R. W. George is plaintiff and L. F. Smith is defendant; all the above tracts or lots of land having been levied on by me to satisfy said judgment.

R. L. DALTON, Sheriff. March, 6th, 1888.

FAITH CURE FAIRLY BEATEN.

Chaplain Hall writes the following remarkable letter.

For many years my wife had been the victim of nervous dyspepsia, of the chronic, distressing and apparently incurable type from which so many of her sex suffer, languish and die. It was all the worse because the tendency to it was inherited. She had been under the systematic treatment of many of the best physicians in New York and Brooklyn and elsewhere for twenty years with only temporary relief. In fact, there were few, if any, kinds of food that did not distress her, so diseased, sensitive and torpid were all the organs of digestion. The usual symptoms of dyspepsia, with its concomitant ailments, were all present—bad taste in the mouth, dull eyes, cold feet and hands, the sense of a load upon the stomach, tenderness on pressure, indigestion, giddiness, great weakness and prostration, and fugitive pains in the sides, chest and back. I have often risen in the night and administered stimulants merely for the sake of the slight and transient relief they gave.

Intermittent malarial fever set in, complicating the case and making every symptom more pronounced and intense. By this time the pneumogastric nerves had become very seriously involved, and she had chronic Gastritis, and also what I may be allowed to call chronic intermittent malarial fever all at once. For the latter the physicians prescribed the good, old-fashioned, sheet-anchor remedy, Quinine gradually increasing the doses, until—incredible as it may seem—she actually took THIRTY GRAINS A DAY FOR DAYS IN SUCCESSION. This could not last. The effect of the quinine was, if possible, almost as bad as the twofold disease which was wearing away her strength and her life. Quinine poisoning was painfully evident, but the fever was there still. Almost every day there came on the characteristic chill and racking headache, followed by the usual weakness and collapse.

About this time I met socially my friend Mr. Norton, a member of the firm of Chauncey Titus & Company, brokers, of Albany, who, on hearing from me these facts, said: "Why, I have been through almost the same thing, and have got over it." "What cured you?" I asked eagerly. "Kaskine," he said, "try it for your wife." I had seen Kaskine advertised, but had no more faith in it than I had in sawdust, for such a case as hers. Mrs. Hall had no higher opinion, yet on the strength of my friend's recommendation I got a bottle and began its use as directed.

Now recall what I have already said as to her then condition, and then read what follows: Under the Kaskine treatment all the dyspeptic symptoms showed instant improvement, and the daily fever grew less and soon ceased altogether. Side by side these diseases vanished, as side by side they had tortured their victim for ten years—the dyspepsia alone having, as I have said, existed for twenty years. Her appetite improved from week to week until she could eat and digest the average food that any well person takes, without any suffering or inconvenience. With renewed assimilation of food came, of course, a steady increase in flesh, until she now looks like her original self.

She still takes Kaskine occasionally, but with no real need of it, for she is well. I consider this result a scientific miracle, and the "New Quinine" is entitled to the credit of it, for from the time she began with Kaskine she used no other medicine whatever.

If you think a recital of these facts calculated to do good you are welcome to make them public.

(Rev.) JAS. L. HALL, Chaplain Albany, N. Y., Penitentiary. P. S.—Sometimes letters of this kind are published without authority, and in case any one is inclined to question the genuineness of the above statement I will cheerfully reply to any communications addressed to me at the Penitentiary.

JAS. L. HALL. Other letters of a similar character from prominent individuals, which stamp Kaskine as a remedy of undoubted merit, will be sent on application. Price $1.00, or six bottles, $5.00. Sold by Druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of price.

The Kaskine Company, 54 Warren St., New York, and 35 Farringdon Road, London.

Land Sale.

By virtue of an execution in my hands in favor of John W. Gentry & Co., vs J. W. Gaston I will sell at public auction at the court-house door in Danbury on Monday the second day of April 1888, one tract of land on which there is a house, said lot being lot no. 95 in the town of Walnut Cove, Stokes county, on the waters of Town Fork. The foregoing house and lot are to be sold to satisfy a judgment docketed on the Judgment Docket of the Superior Court of Stokes county, on the 21st day of November 1887, wherein John W. Gentry & Co., are plaintiffs and J. W. Gaston is defendant, the foregoing house and lot having been levied on by me to satisfy said judgment. March 6th 1888.
