THE SOY BEAN

BEST GREEN MANURING CROP

It Carries a High Per Cent. of Nitrogen As Well As a Large Amount of Other Mineral Plant Foods.

There has recently come into the farm economy of the State a very important new legume called the "soy bean," an importation from Japan, it seems. This plant is variously known as the soy bean or stock pea and has its greatest development, with us, in the eastern part of the State.

This is not only one of our best forage crops both for cattle and hogs, but is, at the same time, perhaps, our best green manuring crop. It carries a very high per cent. of nitrogen as well as a large amount of other mineral plant foods and puts into the soil an abundance of organic matter which quickly becomes active humus for the use of growing crops. The soy bean can generally be grown to good advantage on land too poor to grow a good crop of cow peas.

As stated above, the soy bean is one of our very best green manuring crops on account of its high fertility value. A ton of soy bean hay, according to some expert analysis, contains forty-six pounds nitrogen, 13 pounds of phosphate, and 21 pounds of potash. It is an easy matter to grow two tons of soy bean hay to the acre on land of average fertility.

At this rate, should the crop be disced and plowed under, there would be added to the acre 98 pounds of nitrogen, 26 pounds of phosphate and 42 lbs. of potash; or, on a field of ten acres there would be rendered available 980 pounds of nitrogen.

most of which would come directly from the air; 260 pounds of phosphate, and 420 pounds of potash, both of which would be rendered available from the solution of these materials from the surrounding soil particles. In addition to these amounts of plant food, this crop would put into the ground an enormous amount of organic matter which would, of itself, liberate still more of the inert plant foods in the soil.

The amount of plant food thus rendered available per acre is equal to that removed from the acre by a 100 bushel crop of corn, 100 bushel crop of oats, a 50 bushel crop of wheat, or a 3 bale crop of cotton.

This manurial value of this soy bean crop turned under on the ten acre plat is equal, in point of nitrogen to 129 tons of fresh cow manure; in point of phosphate, 155 tons of fresh cow manure; and in point of potash, 60 tons of the same class of manure.

It would take but a few crops of this green manure to make the land so rich in organic matter that but little, or no, commercial fertilizer would be needed and that would be required would be rendered much more effective.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the necessity of the use of green manure in the improvement of the soils of our State, for, as we see it, there is not other feasible method by which all the farmers may hope to improve their poor lands and thus reduce the cost of production of farm crops in North Carolina.—J. L. Burgess, N. C. Department of Agriculture.

Girl With Sparks Circus Dies From Lion Bite.

Martha, a little lion tamer with the John H. Sparks circus, which wintered at the Salisbury fair grounds last winter, died Sunday from the effects of a bite by one of the lions of her troupe of performing wild animals. The child first elicited notice from the Salisbury public last winter just about the time the circus went into winter quarters here, when she appeared at the Grand Theatre as the star attraction with her performing animals. She appeared to have perfect control over the beasts and received storms of applause at each performance. Her part with the Sparks circus was in the sideshow, where she put on the identical act as that exhibited at the Grand Theatre. The child was about 11 or 12 years old and was accompanied by her father.—Salisbury Post.

FELT BAD ALL THE TIME

Shellhorn Lady Suffered a Great Deal, But Is All Right Now.

Shellhorn, Ala.—In a letter from this place, Mrs. Carrie May says: "A short time ago, I commenced to have weak spells and headaches. I felt bad all the time, and soon grew so bad I couldn't stay up. I thought I would die.

At last my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, and it helped me; so he got some more. After I had taken the second bottle, I was entirely well.

I wish every lady, suffering from womanly trouble, would try Cardui. It is the best medicine I know of. It did me more good than anything I ever used."

Cardui is a woman's tonic—a strengthening medicine for women, made from ingredients that act specifically on the womanly organs, and thus help to build up the womanly constitution to glowing good health.

As a remedy for woman's ills, it has a successful record of over 50 years.

Your druggist sells it. Please try it.
