WESLEY EDWARDS

DID HE VISIT STOKES COUNTY

Man Filling His Description Passes Through Rural Hall, Germanton and Walnut Cove - Detective Thinks It Was Him.

Germanton, April 10.—Considerable interest and excitement has prevailed here since Saturday over the report that a man answering the description of Wesley Edwards passed through Germanton last Friday, going to Walnut Cove, where he secured a lunch, hired a team and drove to Pine Hall.

The man supposed to have been Edwards was in Rural Hall Friday morning and secured breakfast at the hotel. He told parties that he had walked thirty miles. Those who saw the visitor say that he looked haggard and very much fatigued. After breakfast he went to the livery stable and asked for a driver and a fast team to take him to Walnut Cove. He paid for the team and the man was driven via Germanton.

Reaching Walnut Cove he stopped at the hotel and told the keeper that he could not wait for dinner. A lunch was prepared for the man. He then secured a team and driver from Mr. Reid Joyce. An old colored man drove the team to Pine Hall. He says that the white man asked him not to drive via the depot in Walnut Cove as there might be somebody there he would not want to see.

Detective D. C. Baldwin came to Walnut Cove early Sunday morning. He was joined there later the same morning by a member of the detective force from Mt. Airy. They spent the day there making investigation. On the train to Mt. Airy Sunday night Mr. Baldwin stated that the description furnished him of the stranger at Rural Hall and Walnut Cove Friday was a pretty good one of Wesley Edwards, though he was inclined to believe that the party might have been endeavoring to work a scheme to induce the detectives to leave Carroll county, by getting a report in circulation that Allen and Edwards had been seen at various points in this State.

Mr. William L. Hairston, of Walnut Cove, was in town today.

Hunting Preserve In Graham County.

George Moore, a wealthy capitalist of Detroit, Mich., has leased a tract of land in Graham county, containing 1,600 acres, from the Whiting Manufacturing Company, and is engaged in stocking the property with wild game of all kinds, which has been purchased in various parts of the world. Mr. Moore will maintain a large hunting preserve on the property and will spend a great deal of time at the place hunting with friends who will visit him. A large club house has been constructed and a great deal of work has been done within the past few weeks in getting the land ready for the stock which will be placed on it. The property is admirably situated for a hunting preserve, taking in the Hooper Bald mountain and being traversed by numerous streams, which will furnish plenty of water for the animals and for the convenience of the hunters.
