School Buildings

Destroyed By Fire

Greensboro, Jan. 17.—Fanned by a brisk wind fire supposed to have originated from an open grate in one of the buildings and discovered this morning at dawn completely destroyed two of the main buildings at Oak Ridge Institute, eighteen miles west of this city, and the Methodist Protestant church, situated on the school campus. The entire loss is estimated at $40,000, partially covered by $19,000 insurance on the two buildings, with no insurance on the church. None of the furniture or fixtures in the school buildings or the church were saved.

The two buildings burned this morning were situated on the central part of the campus at Oak Ridge and were connected by an overhead passageway. One of the structures was of brick while the other was a frame structure. In the buildings were the class rooms, two literary society halls, a library, large auditorium used as the chapel and other rooms occupied by officers and teachers of the institution. A telephone message received here at an early hour this morning brought the news of the fire. The Methodist Protestant church, which was burned was situated within a few yards of the two buildings, and owing to the course of the wind, flames leaped easily across the narrow dividing space.
