President Again States Position On Suffrage.

Washington, Nov. 28. President Wilson again today defined his position on woman's suffrage in a letter to Miss Mary M. Childs, a government employe here, reiterating that he believed the question a state issue.

"I'm deeply impressed with the woman's suffrage question," the president wrote, "but I believe it can best be worked out state by state rather than by attempting to change the fundamental laws of the nation. Such a change would run too far and too fast ahead of general public opinion of the country."

The president also will see a delegation of suffragists in the near future. He is not expected to change the position announced again in his letter.

If You Were Archie

Archie was an average American boy. He went to school, enjoyed tops, kites, marbles, balls and other things that other boys like. In vacation days he worked when he could find "a job" to help his widowed mother. When he was in the second year of the high school he got sick. Several physicians having failed to find out just what was the matter with him, an interested friend one day took him to see a celebrated physician. This physician made the startling discovery that Archie had leprosy, the most loathsome, the most malignant, the most hopeless of all diseases.

The laws of the State in which he lived were very rigid regarding leprosy and so, without a goodbye to his devoted mother and to his friends, Archie was rushed off to a lonely place called "Leprosarium," provided by the State for such cases. Here he will have to live the rest of his life, shut out from family and friends and the big throbbing world in which he is so much interested. It was doubtless very lonely indeed for Archie, especially at first, and he watched the big ships sail by and longed to have somebody to talk to.

A few months after Archie was sent to this desolate place a friend from "The Mission to Lepers" went to see him. After they had talked a while the little fellow said, "The hardest of all is not to be able to write to the boys back home. I guess their mothers wouldn't want them to be getting letters from lepers. But I wish I could tell them about my wireless station."

Imagine the surprise of the visitor when he discovered that Archie, during his solitary confinement, had constructed a first rate wireless telegraph station. Of course when the visitor went home he saw to it that Archie had what he needed to make the station more complete, and so well did his station work that he was one of the first wireless operators in the world to pick up news of the great Titanic disaster. The wireless operators on the passing ships have become greatly interested in Archie and always signal to him as they pass.

The other day the friend went to see Archie again. He found him eagerly watching for the baseball score, war news or any other news from the outside world that he could catch through his little instrument. When the visitor asked if there was anything he needed, Archie said, "No, I have everything I need." And he hesitated and stammered a little, and then added, "Would it be too much trouble for you to send me an occasional copy of one of the big magazines?" It seems a pity that the new law about amateurs makes his wireless station ineffective just at present.

Now if every boy in America who hears this story will send Archie a post card with a cheering message Christmas would be happy indeed for this bright but lonely boy in his solitary prison.

If you were Archie wouldn't you just love to have bright beautiful pictures, cheery little messages from other boys out in the great big world? Send a post card and join in the "Christmas Post-Card Shower" for Archie.

His address is ARCHIE THOMAS, Hospital, Penekeese Island New Bedford, Mass.

Young Man, Slow Up!

Young man, slow up! The pace you are setting is a killing one. You may fancy that you are making a stunning start in life, but it is a start that will distance you in the end. Don't go too fast, my lad. Are you smoking a half dozen cigars a day. Slow that up; that means a home in twenty years.

Besides, all the glad rags of the world never made a man. You are taking an occasional drink with good intention never to become a habitual boozier. Slow up; the road to hell is paved with good intentions.

You are winning smiles from some silly girl by spending all you can earn or borrow upon her. Slow up; a wife won in this way is worse than the seven year itch, because it lasts longer.

You are gambling a little now and, just taking a few chances for the fun of the thing. Slow up; suckers are small fish, never grow very large, but they were first nibblers.

You can blow yourself out. The first quarter is reached by just trying to keep up with the pace-makers. Contract bad habits, keep foolish company, listen to bad advice, spend all you can run in debt, swell around, act a dunce and you will be a failure just as sure as effect is the result of cause. You'll have a good time for ten years and a bad time for sixty years. Be wise and clean and economical that life may be large, fine and splendid to you.—Los Molinos (California) River Rambler.
