STOP CROAKING.

If the weather and roads would clear up, and the people could get out and go to work, there would be less croaking about hard times. For eight or ten weeks business in the rural districts has been largely on a standstill owing to the bad weather and bad roads.

Times in the county are about on an average, except with those who were so unfortunate as to make practically no crops, and with that class who will not work. The drought in some sections of the county was severe, and many farmers were unable to get out their crops. Still another class who are hard up are those who depend on going in debt for everything, and do not try to make themselves independent by raising their home supplies at home.

Stop talking hard times, get out and go to work. Providence helps those who help themselves.

Money is plentiful and cheap, but we cannot get any of it unless we have something to sell. There is no cash to give away.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

Cotton is now reaching 10 cents, and is gradually but steadily rising.

Money is easy in New York, call loans being quoted as low as 1 1/4, and time loans at 3 and 4 per cent.

Bradstreet's commercial report last week says "Business conditions continue to improve, and while there is no rapid expansion, except in exports, there is a gradual increase in commercial and industrial activities."

Dun's commercial agency last week published the following: "Conditions in trade and industrial quarters are awakening to improved impulses, while confidence is replacing uncertainty."

The New York Herald of January 18, publishes the following editorial: "Wall Street is still a fair barometer of coming conditions; the steel industry is another; both now indicate rapidly clearing skies and fair weather. With the country free from war, pestilence and disaster, having reaped the largest harvests on record, sold at high prices abroad, with a surplus reserve of $136,000,000 in the banks of New York alone, and loans on commercial paper obtainable at four per cent., good times are looming ahead."

The head of the steel trust predicts that the year 1915 will witness a record-breaking prosperity.

The Fight Is Not Yet Over

Washington, Jan. 19. Democratic leaders today consider the women suffrage issue dead for the present as the result of the Mondell resolution to get the necessary two-thirds vote in the house. Undismayed, however, suffrage leaders declare the fight is not yet over. It is thought likely the suffrage leaders will begin at once to realign their forces for another fight in the 64th congress next December.

Anti-suffragists were out today with a statement of results of the vote, asserting that their expectations have been realized.

Pointing to the vote in favor of the resolution as being four more than expected, suffrage leaders say the result was highly gratifying to them. The fact that the vote was reached by congress is considered by the suffrage leaders to have been a distinct victory for the cause and they are hopeful of success the next session of congress.

The House of Representatives last night, by a vote of 204 to 171, refused to submit to the states an amendment to the federal constitution to enfranchise women.

G. Ross, George Lewis, J. W. Mitchell's heirs and assigns. It being the present home place of Cary C. Price. For boundaries and other description see the deed of trust on record in the office of the Register of Deeds of Stokes county, in Book 27, page 211, etc.

This day, 1915.
J. S. Hesse, Trustee.
