Seed Corn Will be High-Priced.

"Good seed corn will be scarce and high-priced next spring," says Director C. R. Titlow, of the West Virginia Agricultural Extension Department, after having toured the agricultural sections of eleven of the big corn-producing States. "A cold late spring, abnormally cool summer weather and excessive rain-fall have delayed the crop to such an extent that it is now evident hundred of thousands of bushels will not mature before frost. West Virginia farmers have been somewhat more fortunate in this respect than have farmers in neighboring States, and the demand for good seed will probably be heavy.

Every farmer who has a crop of well-matured, high-grade corn should take extra care to select all the best ears and properly store them for seed next spring;

if he has more than is required for his own fields, he can easily sell the surplus.

Field selection enables the farmer to pick out good ears that have grown under conditions—that is, in a hill containing the usual number of stalks and in soil of average fertility. It also enables him to avoid taking ears from hills containing barren stalks and has many other advantages.

Properly storing the corn for winter is just as important as field selection. The main point is to have the corn thoroughly dried out before heavy freezing weather sets in. It is the freezing and thawing of the excess moisture in the kernel that injures its growing qualities. The practice of hanging corn up by the husks or with cords is a good one, since it allows a free circulation of air. Where large quantities are to be dried the same effect can be secured by laying out the ears on slat shelves.

The Main Things Citizens Pay Their Taxes For

Raleigh, Nov. 4.—In his address today in connection with the celebration of the seventieth anniversary of the founding of the State school for the blind, Governor Craig took occasion to treat the matter of payment of taxes from the viewpoint that in paying taxes the citizenship of the State is not paying so much for the salaries of office holders, but most especially for the maintenance of the great State institutions such as that for the blind children; for internal improvements, the construction of roads and the support of the schools. He declared that citizens who pay taxes grudgingly are really complaining because they do not want to support these great objects of public betterment so essential to the welfare of every citizen. He said that there are few office holders in this State who cannot earn more in private life than they receive in salaries as public officials, but that a very small part of the taxes paid really go to salaries.
