Saturday morning was probably the coldest of any weather for this section in a long time. Some frost was reported from different sections while one Danbury lady noticed a skin of ice in her washing tubs. A report from Blowing Rock says that corn was killed there by the frost.

W. P. Holt, a former citizen of Danbury, was a visitor here Saturday.

NO JOINT DEBATE WILL BE HAD

State Chairman Dawson Chloroformed the Talk About Joint Debate Between Meekins and McLean.

Raleigh, Sept. 4.—Democratic State Chairman John G. Dawson quietly chloroformed joint debate talk today by refusing to take it seriously, and in an afternoon conference with Angus Wilton McLean, the Meekins' challenge had no place in the consideration of campaign plans.

The democratic nominee spent the day in Raleigh. To newspaper inquires he explained that his agreeableness to the proposal of his republican opponent for a joint discussion was merely a personal attitude. Acceptance is a matter of party policy, and therefore, not for individual determination.

All that Mr. McLean or Chairman Dawson have heard of the challenge has been in the newspapers. The chairman will hardly pay any attention to it until or unless Colonel Meekins makes personal delivery. And then, it is expected, he will make one of his polite statements declining to supply democratic audiences for the republican candidate.

Mr. McLean talked over general campaign plans with Mr. Dawson and other party leaders today. He expects to start soon on a speaking tour that will take him into every section of the state.

"I am going to wage an active campaign," said he, "but not quite so active as my primary campaign. I shall not make five speeches a day, as I did then, nor undertake to keep on the go with three hours of sleep a night."

IN EXCELLENT HEALTH. Mr. McLean is in excellent health and enthusiastic over the outlook for the party in the general election. On his trip to Murphy and Asheville he had an opportunity to inquire into the situation in the west, and he found conditions most gratifying, he said. The people, he was informed, are satisfied with the democratic administration in the state and the party will get a fine vote in the mountainous regions.

An itinerary for the nominee's speaking campaign will be worked out at state headquarters this week. Meanwhile, he will go down to Lumberton for a few days rest with his family.

Chairman Dawson is counting on the McLean speeches to prove of great value in the campaign. Mr. McLean is popular with the people and his equipment and qualifications for handling public affairs are respected.

One thing that will be missing in this campaign will be the time honored party handbook. Chairman Dawson has decided to dispense with that publication and to substitute for it the national democratic hand-book. Secretary W. N. Everett's keynote speech to the state convention and other material to be prepared. A contributor to the literary department of the campaign is expected to be Secretary C. C. Coughenous, of Salisbury, who wrote most of the 1922 hand-book. With Mr. Everett's keynote speech and Mr. Coughenous's contributions, the campaign will not suffer from a lack of democratic "literature."

FAVORS PORT PLAN.

"I am very much in favor of the port plan and hope to do what I can in the campaign to put it before the people. United States Senator F. M. Simmons said this afternoon when asked as to the extent of his participation in the move. Senator Simmons came to Raleigh from New Bern today.

He expects to make some speeches for it, but the number depends upon the condition of his health and the call of the campaign management. Senator Simmons has been one of the most active champions of the port movement among the prominent public men of the state. His assistance in the campaign is expected to help the cause materially.

Governor Morrison, who fired the opening gun of the fight

Monday at Rockingham, will start out on a regular speech-a-day campaign. He will speak at Lumberton Tuesday night at 8 o'clock, Lumberton Thursday night, and Whiteville at noon Friday. He will have the weekend for rest and start out again the following week. Other speakers will be getting under way in the next 10 days.

Protecting Property Along the Highways

(The Statesville Daily.) One of the best acts of the legislative session is that designed to protect property along the highways from trespassers. Urban dwellers especially have the habit of motoring into the country and despoiling the landscape at times by trespassing upon property without so much as saying by your leave; taking and carrying away branches of trees, wild flowers and shrubbery. Hereafter these acts are a specific violation of the law. Neither can advertising signs be placed along the highway except by the specific consent the property owners. All of which is right.

Road To Roanoke In Bad Condition

Mr. and Mrs. Ausby Smith spent the week end with relatives in Roanoke, Va., driving through by automobile. Mr. Smith stated that the road from Rocky Mt. to Roanoke, a distance of 36 miles, was almost impassable. He was able to make only 5 miles an hour. It is said that the route from here to Roanoke is much better by way of Stuart and Floyd Court House, as well as a shorter route.

Port Fight To Be Kept Free From Politics

Raleigh, Sept. 6.—Democratic State Chairman John G. Dawson in a statement today gave public expression to the previously reported understanding that the port fight should be kept free from politics.

Mr. Dawson finds that the question of port and water transportation development is an economic and not a political one and that "leading thought in both political parties are approaching a consideration of the subject without regard to party lines." For that reason the party organization "will not take sides."

Major Stedman Will Serve In Davis Club

Greensboro, Sept. 5.—Major Charles M. Stedman, representative in Congress from the Fifth North Carolina district, only Confederate veteran in that body, today received a request from Clem Shaver, manager for the campaign for John W. Davis, democratic candidate for President, that he serve with Gen. Isaac Sherwood, of Ohio, only survivor of the Union army in Congress, as joint chairman of the Davis Congressional Colleagues club. The request was made by telegram.

Major Stedman has accepted the honor, so notifying Mr. Shaver.
