

Making Home Grounds Attractive

To carry out the simple laws of landscape gardening, do the following: Keep the lawn open and clear of plants, shrubbery or trees set indiscriminately. Bank shrubbery against the walls of the house, letting the high shrubs come at corners, between windows, and before columns. For the general mass of planting next to the wall, use the low growing, branching kind of shrubbery. Plant the low growing shrubs under the windows and very low points.

The shade trees should be placed, as a rule, to the side and to the rear of the house, and not on the lawn in front. If the grounds are large, then a few trees may be properly placed in front, but these as a rule should be located slightly to one side.

Three Desirable Coniferous Evergreens.—Oriental orber vine and English juniper are two excellent coniferous evergreens of the taller growing type. They grow very narrow and tall and are as good as specimen plants, hedges, windbreaks, foundation plantings, etc. They usually grow 12 to 15 feet high.

Where to Use Vines.—Where vines are wanted to cover walls, nothing is superior to the various varieties of ivy, Boston being the leader. Where one wishes the vine to cover an old stump, a dead tree or something of that kind, wisteria is best. The trumpet vine or bignonia is also good for this purpose.

Where one wishes to screen the porch with vines and quick results desired, plant kudzu. It grows rapidly and is very effective for this purpose. Another good one but a much slower grower is the clematis.

The following plants will succeed fairly well when planted in shady corners provided they are not directly under large trees: Hypericum, Japanese spurge, Mahonia aquifolium, Mahonia japonica, the arbutus, Chinese tea plant, Indian currant, and snowberry.

Japanese Privet Good for Tall Border Planting.—One of the most useful of the privets is the Japanese privet. In the middle and upper part of the South, it is an evergreen shrub, growing 6 or 8 feet high. In the Lower South it varies on the form of a tree, growing 25 to 30 feet high. It produces white flowers. In July, purple fruits in the fall, these fruits being very attractive to birds. The principal use of the Japanese privet is for hedge and screen plantings and tall border plantings.

Tall Evergreens for Low Banglows.—Low banglows can be made attractive by the use of tall evergreens, such as Italian cypress, Arizona cypress, Eastern blue-red cedar and English juniper. These are tall growing coniferous evergreens and give a columnar effect, and are more suitable for this type of bangalow than are the low growing, spreading type evergreens.

When to Prune Shrubbery.—As a rule, little pruning of shrubbery is needed except to cut out diseased, dying, or injured branches, to thin out, and to bank where one does not wish them to grow high. A general rule that absolutely must be kept in mind however in order to prune shrubbery and not injure it is to prune back only after it finishes blooming.

Cedrus Deodara Especially Attractive.—The Cedrus deodara or salt cedar, often incorrectly called the spruce pine, is one of the most decorative coniferous evergreens that we have. It is especially attractive when used as a specimen plant on lawns. It will do well when planted close to other trees.—L. A. Niven in The Progressive Farmer.

Some farmers of Union County have reported to Farm Agent Tom Hoon that they are receiving as high as $200 per month from their poultry flocks.

Night Coughing Stopped Quickly By Simple Treatment

Thousands who are troubled with persistent coughing at night, which by robbing them of valuable sleep weakens their systems and lays them open to dangerous infections, can quickly get to prevent this danger through a very simple treatment. Those who have hoarsely and are unable to rest at all on account of coughing spells have found they can sleep the whole night through and without even the first time they try it.

The treatment is based on a remarkable prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You simply take a teaspoonful at night before retiring, and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it, without following with water. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but it quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which are the direct cause of the coughing. The result is you usually sleep soundly the very first night, and the entire cough condition goes away very short time.

The prescription is highly recommended for coughs, chest colds, hoarseness, and bronchitis, and is wonderful for children's coughs and spasmodic croup—no harmful drugs, economical, too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for
