

MANY DEFECTS IN RADIO OVERCOME

Broadcasting Ether Withstands Its First 50,000 Watts—Reception Is Better.

Washington, July 27.—The broadcasting ether has stood its first injection of 50,000 watts and judging from immediate effects, the mammoth dose appears to constitute at least a partial cure for many of the minor and major radio ailments. The test was made by WGY the big General Electric plant at Schenectady and it will be repeated Tuesday and Wednesday nights, beginning at midnight. Radio engineers and enthusiastic amateurs will watch the results closely.

Fifty thousand watts is exactly 100 times as much power as is used by the average class B broadcasting station and 50 times the power used by the average class A plant. Moreover, it is 10 times the power of the present super-power stations, and considerably more juice than had ever been used in the United States for broadcasting, despite the extra loads often experimental with by WGY, at Schenectady, and KDKA, at Pittsburgh.

Coming on the air under its experimental call letters the General Electric plant, with little advance notice, reached out into a static filled ether Sunday morning and showed the radio public a few things about super-power. The demonstration was arranged for several reasons. First to show that the thing can be done and more important, to emphasize that super-power is the real distance eliminator as well as a static conqueror. Finally it is intended to show that 50,000 watts will not clutter up the ether as many of the opponents of super-power so often have contended.

Sunday marked the temporary passing of the greatest radio personality of the east—"Roxy" Rothafel, a pioneer in broadcasting and the first of the famous microphone impresarios. In "Roxy's" place comes a Californian, Major Edward Bowes who will preside over the old "Roxy's" gang, and continue the Sunday evening concerts.

Mrs. Bryan Will Make Her Home in Florida Balance of Her Life

Washington, Aug. 1.—North Carolina friends of Mrs. William Jennings Bryan invited her to make her home in the mountains of the state. It is said she is very fond of Asheville and the country round about, but, today, on leaving here for Coconut Grove, where she has a home, she said she would spend the rest of her days in Florida.

Mrs. Bryan, who has been an invalid for months, rested well last night, and seemed refreshed today. She is a favorite here. While in the cabin she paid but little attention to social functions, but devoted her time to her family.

Nowadays it's palms across the sea.—Arlans Gazette.

County Seat Of Stokes May Get A Road Yet

When the matter of an additional bond issue for highway construction was under consideration at the last session of the Legislature, the people were not slow in registering their determination to secure more roads, and the limited issue was passed under promise that it would be but a starter, that abundant finances would develop for prosecution of the construction work under popular demand. The important fact stands out that there is to be no let-up in highway construction in this State until the original design of the Highway Commission for connecting roads from county-seat-to-county-seat is accomplished—and then some.—Charlotte Observer.

RECALLS DROUTH BACK IN YEAR 1881

Iredell Man Thinks It Was Worse Than It Is This Year—Forsyth Farmer Says No.

The Statesville Daily harks back to the dry weather of 1881. That paper quotes a citizen as declaring it drier than 1911 and "a lot drier than this year." He told the newspaper that "there was no corn raised on upland at all and cotton was less than half a crop."

So this "spotted" year of 1925 is not so bad after all, it might not be worse," says the Salisbury Post. Dry though it be in spots there has been some waterfall and crops must be considerable better. But we must remember that we have learned many things since '81, and one thing we have learned is how to plow deeper, farm better and get a better crop under adverse conditions.

The Statesville paper recalls that while this year A. D. 1881 was dry, the folks were rather wet in sentiment, for in August of the year Iredell county held a prohibition election and the result was: wets, 2358; dries, 1291—result: wet.

But the folks managed to live through the year pretty well. The paper intimates that all is well that ends well, and the dry '81 did not end so badly after all. It says:

"Later on in the fall of that year the folks brought in more optimistic reports. Corn improved with the coming of rains and the citizens managed to live, though they were kicking about the tax rate being raised."

A Forsyth farmer of Lewisville township declares that the drouth in his section this year is worse than in 1881. "Corn and tobacco in my section are too far gone to be benefited much by rain now," is the way this soil-biller expressed it.
