PLAN FOR HOME AT VADE MECUM

Will Be Launched At Banquet To Be Held In New York Early Next Month—Winston Men To Attend.

Winston-Salem Nov. 2.—Successful culmination of the proposition for the development on a gigantic scale of approximately 1,000 acres known as the Vade Mecum Springs property, now looms as a certainty, Winston-Salem citizens prominently stated Monday.

A. H. Eller, representing the Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, trustee for the Winston-Salem Foundation; Arthur Port, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and others will attend a banquet of 1,500 people from all parts of the United States in New York early in December. At that meeting John Love, a former traveling man and at present a retired wealthy citizen interested in philanthropic undertakings for the benefit to traveling men and their families, will, with the assistance of the interested agencies, launch a Nation-wide campaign for the purpose of raising three million dollars for the development. "Home by Christmas" is the slogan of the workers in the drive for funds.

The movement has already reached such proportions that its success seems assured. Richard G. Stockton, of the institution acting as trustee, has found.

Held in Trust

Under the Winston-Salem Foundation $100,000 and 931 acres of land in Stokes county are held in trust under the terms of the will of the late J. C. Tise. It was long his ambition to have the Sauratown Mountain area, which abounds in scenic splendor, developed into a great community gathering place.

With this in mind, the Foundation Committee studied carefully the various plans by a number of organizations looking to the development of the tract. Ascertaining that Mr. Love had become interested in the development as a national home for traveling men and following the endorsement of the proposition by a number of the traveling men's organizations over the country, a national organization, the Travelers Home, Inc., was granted an option on the lands.

The Foundation is, therefore, ready to turn over to the Travelers' Home the $100,000 endowment by Mr. Tise and the large tract when the funds sufficient for the development upon an approved scale have been raised.

Under the plan being prosecuted by Mr. Love and associates, the travelers' organizations well known and influential travelers will conduct the campaign through the United States. It will be necessary to receive very small per capita donations and on account of the interest already displayed and the genuineness of the plan its completion is being optimistically anticipated in the near future.

Acting for the trustee of the Winston-Salem Foundation, Mr. Stockton has turned over to the clerk of Superior Court a detailed annual report, showing the itemized accounts of all receipts and disbursements throughout the fiscal year.

The public is invited to inspect this report, Mr. Stockton said, and the Foundation Commission as well as the trustee, is anxious that all civic-minded citizens familiarize themselves with the Foundation and its value to this community.

Nine years ago it was started upon a small scale, and the growth has been rapid, almost

NEW BAPTIST CHURCH COMPLETE

Opening Services In Handsome New Edifice At Walnut Cove Will Be Held Sunday Afternoon.

The handsome new Baptist Church which has just been completed in Walnut Cove will have its opening service on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. S. F. Naff, pastor of the North Winston Baptist Church, will preach the sermon at the opening. Mr. Sanford Martin will also speak in the afternoon. Rev. S. F. Conrad of Charlotte, will preach in the evening at 7:30 p. m.

The new church building is said to be one of the best in North Western Carolina and cost around $25,000. It is fully equipped for service.

The Baptist work at Walnut Cove dates back to about 1888. Rev. S. F. Conrad, as a missionary, did some effective work in Walnut Cove about the year 1890. He organized a church and built the structure which was torn away for the present new building, the old building being considered unsafe for the public.

The new building was started last spring and completed in about four months. Rev. O. E. Ward, the present pastor, under whose leadership the present building was erected, has been with the church 6 years, and it was the confidence the church people had in him that caused them to follow him.

W. F. Bowles, J. L. Mitchell, and B. F. Johnson were the building committee, and J. D. Johnson was treasurer. These men have labored willingly and faithfully and the church work has gone forward under their leadership.

The Ladies Aid Society, composed of the women of the church, has been of great benefit in the work in a financial way, having paid into the treasury around $1500.

Many gifts from outsiders have also helped greatly.

Thanksgiving services will be held in the church Thursday evening, at 7:30 p. m., and an offering for the orphans will be taken.

Sky-Scraper

Nearly Finished

The large Reynolds building, the tallest structure in the State, nears completion. This building would look good in any city of the United States.

$300,000 and many valuable tracts of land, mineral rights, etc., being administered by it at the present time.

The commission is composed of H. G. Chatham, (chairman; George S. Norfleet, secretary; Mrs. H. T. Bahnson, R. E. Lasater and John C. Whitaker. Under the plan of organization the board must not have more than two of any one denomination on it and remain at all times apart from denominational creed or prejudiced influences, administering the fund for the general good that the most effective public charity may be maintained. Wishes of the original donors are always observed.

Members of the commission are appointed by the trustee, Judge of the Federal Court for the district; clerk of the Superior Court, and by the Mayor of Winston-Salem, one member being appointed by each of those enumerated except in the case of the trustee, who names two. Tenure of office has been set at five years.

At present the Foundation represents sixteen organizations and loan funds, and its influence over the philanthropies of the section is being extended rapidly, since it is in position to handle propositions of such tremendous proportions as the Travelers' Home, Inc.

BIG BARBECUE HERE SATURDAY

Occasion Will Be The Dedication Of Stedman Lake Near Danbury—Jas. F. Hoge Will Be Principal Speaker.

Lake Stedman, named in honor of Capt. R. T. Stedman, who was chiefly responsible for the organization of the Izaak Walton League 18 months ago, situated one mile north of Danbury on the main highway, will be dedicated on Saturday Nov. 24th, with a number of addresses followed by a big barbecue and Brunswick stew dinner, the exercises beginning at eleven o'clock. Plans are being made to take care of at least 300 people.

James F. Hoge, of Greensboro, who engineered the game law through the North Carolina Legislature, will make the principal address, and Major Wade H. Phillips, director of the Department of Conservation and Development, has accepted an invitation to be present and speak. Captain Stedman and other members of the local chapter of the Izaak Walton League will also likely speak.

The lake was named for Captain Stedman because of his outstanding work in behalf of the league and its principles. Since the organization of the chapter he has greatly desired something worthwhile in the form of a lake somewhere. Paul Taylor, of Danbury, a son of the late J. Spot Taylor, presented the league 50 acres of land lying just to the right of the main highway going north, a mile north of Danbury, a spot made ideal by nature for the building of a lake.

When Mr. Taylor gave this 50-acre tract to the league Captain Stedman was authorized by the league to solicit funds sufficient to put the lake in order. He has collected $4,200 toward the building of the big dam and clearing away the underbrush. This has now been done and the big lake is fast filling up.

A large quantity of top minnows regarded by health officials as necessary for the health of those living about the lake, have been secured to be placed in the basin. These top minnows always remain along the top of the water and eat up the larva of mosquitoes and in this manner prevent typhoid and malaria. A quantity of black bass, blue brim and crappie has been secured for stocking the lake.
