A Clear Cut Statement

"There can be no question of the absolute necessity of petroleum products to the business and social life of the nation," says W. S. Farish, President of the Humble Oil and Refining Co. "Hence, there should be no quarrel with a legitimate effort on the part of the oil industry to promote and seek to put in force methods which not only will insure the supply of oil for a longer period of time but as well will have the products of oil put to work in those avenues of consumption for which they are best suited. "The industry and the public alike, I believe, have come to understand the absurdity of bringing to the surface unwanted supplies of crude oil. Such operations can only mean waste in the sense that these methods leave too large a portion of the oil content in the ground. This can only be recovered and put to work at prohibitive costs. Such operations dissipate the highly valuable natural gas content, which makes lifting costs low, and requires expensive storage above ground of oil that might well be left in its natural reservoir and brought out when needed. "In a nutshell, the whole program of the industry is to arrive at a control of production which will prevent waste of gas and oil and keep production total at level where economically and fully it will serve essential and higher uses for oil. "From a long range view, there is no doubt that the industry is headed for better control of production and the uses to which oil is put. Conservation does not mean reducing the supply below market needs. But it does mean the handling of producing areas so they will yield more oil than under present methods. And it does mean that a larger supply of oil over a period of years will be produced at less cost. And it does mean that oil products will be consumed in their proper channels. "A big known supply of petroleum is not a thing to be avoided. Rather it is an insurance to the industry of a certain supply of raw material and to the public at large of an assured supply of products for consumption. The folly in producing unwanted supplies which can only mean waste in one form or another. This is what the oil industry is seeking to stop."

Federal Government Cuts The Costs

At the end of the last fiscal year on June 30, the Federal government had a surplus of $185,000,000 in the treasury, five times the estimated surplus. During the year the national debt was reduced $673,000,000 and is now less than $17,000,000,000. The policy of retrenchment in Federal expenditures, established a few years ago, has resulted in the conversion of savings into tax reduction for the people. Within eight years nearly two million people have been relieved entirely of Federal taxation.

President Hoover has announced that a careful study is being made to determine the possibilities for reducing Federal taxes in the future. This will probably be done, but it will be of little direct benefit to the public if the orgy of spending by local units of government, that has multiplied their cost time and again in recent years, is continued.

Better Construction Reduces Fire Waste

Teaching carefulness in regard to fire is a never-ending job, in the opinion of C. A. Ludlum, of the National Fire Waste Council.

"It seems to be necessary," he says, "if any impression is to be made, to create, if possible, a habit of caution and carefulness on the part of the individual citizen by constant repetition and preachment of fire prevention. "It is admitted and recognized that all fire losses are in the final analysis paid by society and that every fire loss accordingly represents a real loss to society, but the average individual is not much concerned over the final analysis from which he feels himself quite remote. "Building to resist fire is as important as is the teaching of carefulness, and it should be apparent that all organizations interested in America's fire-safety and the conservation of its created resources should sponsor a safe and sane construction program that would reflect credit upon community intelligence, and combine their resources and informed knowledge to bring about greater fire resistance in buildings."

COLD AND SWEET

COLD and sweet and oh! so popular is ice cream when summer rolls around. Regardless of whether it is served at dinner or at a party, or as the afternoon luncheon for children proudly bedecked in their parents' extended clothes and grandly playing "come to tea," ice cream is an ever-welcome dessert. And ice cream is an easy dessert to make. Only a few rules are necessary for success. To make ice cream, sherbet or water ice, use three level measures of ice to one of salt. A larger proportion of salt will cause the mixture to freeze more quickly and to be granular. This is desirable in a frappe, which is frozen with equal parts of salt and ice, but is to be deplored in other frozen desserts.

Among the best-liked frozen desserts are those containing fruit. Left-over fruit, whether fresh or canned, may be used. Canned fruit is usually more economical than the fresh when using large amounts. Inexpensive grades may be bought for this purpose. Following are some recipes for frozen desserts which will be greeted by the family with cries of "More!" Frozen Fruit Mayonnaise: Beat one cup of heavy cream, add two-thirds cup mayonnaise and one cup sugar. Add one cup crushed pineapple, one-half cup canned strawberries, two tablespoons lemon juice and two mashed bananas. Pack in an air-tight can and immerse in salt and ice for several hours. Serve as a dessert. This will serve eight people.

add one and one-fourth cups of sugar and cool. Add one cup of cold water, one cup of heavy cream and the apricots from a number two can. The fruit should have been pressed through a sieve. Freeze. This recipe will serve eight people liberally. Frozen Recipes Frozen Apple Sauce: Mix together the contents of a number 2 can of apple sauce, one-fourth cup of lemon juice, one-half cup of orange juice, one-half teaspoon grated orange rind and one-half cup sugar. Fold in one stiffly-beaten egg white. Pour mixture into the ice-cream freezer and freeze like any ice cream, using three parts ice to one part salt. This makes a little over one quart, and is especially nice to serve with the main course of a meal, especially if the meat is pork.

Easy to Make Turn the crank slowly and steadily at first, but when the cream is frozen to a mush the crank may be turned more rapidly. Today, the woman with an iceless refrigerator can make frozen desserts in her ice box with no more attention than an occasional stirring. Gelatin, eggs, or cream should be added to the mixture, for a plain water ice will be too granular if eaten in this manner.

What to Make Loganberry and Banana Mousse: Chill two cups of evaporated milk thoroughly. Add one undrained egg white and beat with a rotary egg beater until stiff, in a bowl set in a pan of cracked ice. Beat in one cup sugar, one-half cup of banana pulp, the juice of one-half a lemon and one-half cup of canned loganberry syrup. Pack in ice and salt, but do not turn. These quantities make eight servings. Cherry, red raspberry or strawberry syrup may be used instead of the loganberry syrup. Apricot and Lemon Sherbet: Dissolve one package of lemon flavored gelatin in two cups of boiling water, add one and one-fourth cups of sugar and cool. Add one cup of cold water, one cup of heavy cream and the apricots from a number two can. The fruit should have been pressed through a sieve. Freeze. This recipe will serve eight people liberally. Frozen Recipes Frozen Apple Sauce: Mix together the contents of a number 2 can of apple sauce, one-fourth cup of lemon juice, one-half cup of orange juice, one-half teaspoon grated orange rind and one-half cup sugar. Fold in one stiffly-beaten egg white. Pour mixture into the ice-cream freezer and freeze like any ice cream, using three parts ice to one part salt. This makes a little over one quart, and is especially nice to serve with the main course of a meal, especially if the meat is pork.
