FINE ARTS CLUB ENTERTAINMENT

Mrs. A. G. Sisk, Mrs. J. J. Taylor and Mrs. J. F. Martin Joint Hostesses—Interesting Program.

Mrs. J. J. Taylor, Mrs. A. G. Sisk and Mrs. J. F. Martin were joint hostesses to the Fine Arts Club at the former's home here January 27 at 3 o'clock.

The meeting opened with the vice-president, Mrs. J. F. Martin in the chair. After the reading of the collect, the minutes were read and approved and roll called.

The first paper, Lewis Mumford's, "The Golden Day," prepared by Mrs. S. G. Sparger, and read in her absence by Miss Elizabeth Martin, was a brief estimate of American life from the days of the Pilgrim Fathers to the time of Paul Whitman, Billy Sunday and Henry Menckem. The second paper by Mrs. E. P. Pepper, was a summary of "Bliss Perry's Heart of Emerson's Journals." New Hymns were presented and adopted by the club and the chairman of the Library committee reported a nice collection of book for the school Library.

During the social hour the guests engaged in an interesting Valentine contest. Mrs. Wm. Joyce drew the prize, a lovely pink glass, cheese and cracker set.

Nine daintily dressed dolls representing former presidents of the club, were then presented for identification by the guests. Mrs. R. R. King was awarded a lovely red heart filled with chocolate.

The guests were then invited into the dining room where they found their places at a beautifully appointed table by place cards on dainty red and white birthday cake with nine white mint cups. A large white birthday cake with nine red candles, and decorated with red hearts graced the center of the table. The Valentine idea was further emphasized by tall red candles in crystal holders, tied with huge bows of red tulle, dainty cupids, and red hearts, furnishing a lovely setting for a delicious salad course supplemented by candy and nuts.

Elizabeth Caudle Wall.

On Dec. 31, 1931, the call went forth from the courts of the Blessed for the third time from our home for another jewel for the throne of our Lord and Master. When the call was made for our mother, Elizabeth Rebecca Wall, there were those there wondered and stood silent. One spoke, "Why should it be?" We have the brother Tross, who died in France. We have the father and their brother Joe. How can they bear another, when two of their loved ones have been taken in little over a year? The father, the guiding hand of all, and the brother Joe whom they all loved and depended upon so much, leaving a loving wife and two small children in this world of sorrow. Will it not be too much sorrow on all for another to be taken so quick?

There are the daughters, on whom they have leaned for comfort, help and love for so long. What can ever fill the vacancy. On whom can they lean for comfort and guidance? There are the devoted sons, who need her love, care and guidance, now in their matured manhood. In the stress and press of the business world, they can not spare their mother.

There are children there whom she has mothered; how can they walk alone without her, without her strong arm of refuge? How can they pass through all the trials and temptations, through which they must pass undefiled if they come to this blessed place without her protection.

Ten, there are those who, when they go down in the depths of suffering, how they need her to hold their hands and comfort. When they have come up from the depths, how they will want her to rejoice with them.

All hearts are now wrung with anguish at the thought. Then one said: "It is best," and all was silent. A new song was sung as a white winged messenger started earthward, accompanied by the comforter, whom the Father sends, and when he had poured in the oil of consolation, and comfort, they could all look up and say from the depths of their broken hearts, "Thy will be done."

At 2:30 o'clock the one who had lingered bore her tenderly

MISS DORE DAVIS DIED THURSDAY

Young Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Davis—Had Been Ill Five Years.

Miss Dore Davis, the 23-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Davis, of Winston-Salem, died Thursday, after an illness of five years.

Miss Davis was born in Stokes county, a daughter of A. W. and Carrie Mae Crews Davis. She spent most of her life in Winston. She was graduated from Richard J. Reynolds high school and attended Salem College. Miss Davis was principal of Belevs Creek school when she was forced to resign due to ill health. She was a member of the First Methodist Protestant church, Winston.

Surviving are the parents; three sisters, Mrs. J. B. Winecoff, of Greensboro; Miss Joem Davis, of Washington, D. C., and Sybil Davis, of Winston, and three brothers, Cecil H. Davis, of Coatsville, Pa.; John W. Davis, of Baltimore, and Jimmy Davis, of Winston-Salem.

and lovingly in their arms to the bosom of her Saviour whom she had loved, and trusted so long. How we love to think of her in all her shrouded beauty that she is suffering no more now, so we will cherish her memory, and as the all wise Father and the ruler of the universe has done this, we bow in submission to this great loss. As the sun was hiding itself in the western horizon, as if even the great orb of day refused to look upon the sad procession, on Saturday, the 2nd day of January, 1932, we followed all that was mortal to the grave, and left her there to be watched over by the eyes of one who slumbers not, nor sleeps, until that day when those who sleep in Christ shall come forth and we will meet them in the air. Now our mother knows what it is to be safe at home. A wonderful being is a mother. Other folks may love you, but only your mother understands. Mother works for you, cares for you, loves and forgives you and when you leave her, like a guardian angel, her memory is always with you. We love her for her tender words and deeds in childhood days. Her admonitions mild, but firm. Her words of love and praise. We love her for her heart of gold. A treasure ever dear. For mother love more priceless grows, with every passing year.

Elizabeth Caudle Wall was the daughter of James R. Caudle and the wife of the late ex-Sheriff J. C. Wall. Born Nov. 29, 1861, died Dec. 31, 1931, being 70 years, 1 month and 3 days old. She is survived by thirteen children, Mrs. O. M. Flynt, Mrs. C. H. Morefield, Mrs. J. B. Flynt, Mrs. I. J. Flynt, Mrs. Clifton Jones, Mrs. E. A. Rothrock, Miss Inez Wall, Mrs. Brona Faye Fowler, J. Will, J. Watt, P. G., C. O., and W. B. Wall. Three children dead. One in infancy, Trossy Gorrell Wall died in France and Joseph F. Wall died July 3, 1931.

There are three sisters, Mrs. Lilly Boyles, Mrs. Sid Johnson and Mrs. Gray Rutledge, and 4 brothers, E. O., S. H., J. R. and R. S. Caudle.

Mother, 'tis the sweetest word In all this world to me, Wherever I may wander The very thought of mother, Her love's unfailing cheer Will always be a comfort Though she be far or near THE FAMILY.
