LET THE FARMER COME BACK.

One of the first acts of the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration we believe will be the appointment of a tariff commission to get in touch with every leading government of the world in a restoration of reciprocity between the nations.

The Smoot-Hawley tariff crime has almost made America an economical outlaw, and has induced those nations who formerly bought our cotton and tobacco and steel and oil, and various manufactured products, to boycott us. The result has been the destruction of our foreign trade, and the loss of our farmers' buying power.

Until the farmer comes back to his own, and can get a living price for his products, America can never emerge from its depression which has stilled the hum of industry, broken 4,000 banks in two years, and enlisted an army of 12 millions of idle men and women.

The only criticism President Wilson ever received from his own party was for his liberal views on the civil service.

There has been for time immemorial an unwritten law, binding both of the great parties, that "to the victors belong the spoils."

The principle of the civil service, as practised by President Wilson, largely ignored political affiliations, especially in the postoffice department.

It used to be under Wilson that the postmaster or R. F. D. carrier who had the best civil service record, got the job. But President Harding altered this by requiring that the Civil Service Commission certify the three leading candidates, and the President exercised his choice among these three. If it so happened no Republican was among the three, another examination was held, and so on until one of the faithful qualified. This is the rule of the Republican system today.

PROMISE

A WORLD was in darkness and distress. Ignorance was widespread and superstition reigned supreme. Then the Christ Child was given to an unenlightened humanity, that civilization might start its march of progress through the centuries. There have been setbacks at times - periods of apparent stagnation - but each year we pause at Christmas time to review the past, remember the significance of the manger at Bethlehem and express our sincere gratitude for many blessings.

This Christmas, as we near the end of a year of depression and worry, the Norfolk and Western Railway expresses its deep gratitude for your friendship and goodwill, your cooperation and your patronage. With a steadfast belief in the future growth and progress of the territory it serves, and a renewed faith in the security of our nation, its people and its industries, the railway looks with confidence to the New Year and brighter days.

The Norfolk and Western Railway and the Norfolk and Western Family wish for you a Christmas of peace and joy and a New Year of health, happiness and progress.

Now a historian declares that English colonies taught the Indians to scalp their enemies. Anyway, they probably gave them some pointers on how to skin a customer.
