

LETTER FROM SENATOR REYNOLDS

WOMEN ARE PLAYING AN EVER INCREASING PART IN PUBLIC AFFAIRS.

The visit of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President, to North Carolina, where she will be the honor guest of the stalwart citizens of the Eastern section of the State, at Wallace, is more evidence of the part women are playing in public affairs. Like her distinguished husband, Mrs. Roosevelt utilizes every opportunity to meet and mingle with people and her many visits to the State are evidence of her keen appreciation for North Carolina, where she is always given a hearty welcome.

Therefore, the gathering scheduled for Wallace on Friday, with the First Lady as the guest of honor, gives me a long-postponed opportunity to commend the part that women generally have in civic and political functions. No longer do they just attend banquets and applaud words of mere men; they now have an active part in the arrangements and share the responsibilities. And their activities are having a wholesome effect on these affairs. The hands that keep order in the home and office are truly exercising a beneficial effect on public activities of every character.

The part that women are playing in national affairs is no better evidenced than in the records of our great national conventions. In this connection, it is interesting to note that at the Democratic National Convention of 1912—the first attended by President Roosevelt—there were only two women delegates. But at the convention of 1922, which nominated our illustrious President, there were 208 women delegates and more at Philadelphia in 1936. And everyone concedes that the presence of the fine women who are leaders in the affairs of their respective states has meant more orderly and pleasant gatherings national leaders.

It is all evidence that our country is beginning to make a greater use of the variety of abilities and capacities possessed by women, and many of the limitations which were characteristic of the position of women in our earlier order are now being overcome.

Except for an aged lady from Georgia who held office for one ceremonial day, no woman had been either appointed or elected to the United States Senate until the autumn of 1931, when Arkansas elected the widow of a statesman to succeed her husband for the unexpired term. Since that distinguished lady, Senator Hattie Caraway, has been elected in her own right and is now serving with honor. Her daily presence in the Senate is an inspiration to her colleagues. In addition to being chairman of a committee—the Committee on Enrolled Bills—she also serves on the Committees on Agriculture and Forestry, Commerce and the Library. It is needless to say that she bears her share of Senatorial responsibilities.

In the House of Representatives are a number of active women who merit their offices. It is a far cry from the future created in 1910 when Montana elected the first woman to the National Legislature.

But whether serving in public office, at a desk, in the home or on the farm, women are proving their right to assume greater responsibilities and have greater recognition. And the visit of Mrs. Roosevelt to North Carolina, where the First Lady will mingle with Carolina women who are first in the hearts of their communities, is more evidence of the part women have and deserve in our affairs, national, state and local.

Saturday Last Day For Work Sheets — Aerial Photos To Be Taken.

Saturday, June 12 is the final date on which work sheets will be accepted for co-operating with the 1937 Soil Conservation Program. All farmers who intend to participate in the program this year and who have not filled out a work sheet should do so by Saturday.

From the looks of the tobacco crop now many farmers will not be able to plant the acreage to tobacco that they intended to plant, and thereby could participate in the program and earn a payment which would come in very nicely in carrying on their farming operations for 1938.

Compliance. We do not know at this date just when we will start checking the farms for compliance with the Soil Conservation Program. We are hoping to be able to do this year, for the first time in this work, aerial photographs.

The majority Stokes county has already been photographed and I understand that the engineers will be in this county within the next day or so to do some work before the final enlargements are made. The use of aerial photographs where they have been tried out, have proven very successful and has materially reduced the cost of compliance. With these photographs it is possible for us to make maps of each farm, showing the location of fields, roads and other objects and to determine the acreage in each field. As this work progresses, more will be said about it.

Committeemen To Be Elected.

Instructions have been received in regard to the election of community and county committeemen to carry on the Soil Conservation Program for another year. These committeemen will be elected in the different townships between now and the first of July. Every farmer who participated in the program last year and those who have signed work sheets this year, will be eligible to vote in electing the committeemen for their respective townships.

Monument Erected

W. R. Stovall of Lawsonville was here today and reported the erection of the monument to Mr. and Mrs. Silas Dillon near Smithtown chapel. Mr. Stovall extends thanks to all who contributed to the erection of the shaft, especially to Rev. J. A. Joyce and L. L. Zigar.

At Madison CCC Camp Mrs. Dr. Joyce Critically Ill June 18.

Reidsville, June 8.—Mr. E. Y. Floyd, Head Field Officer of the agricultural adjustment administration and State Extension Tobacco Specialist, will deliver the principal address at the field Demonstration of Erosion Control practices on the Madison Soil Conservation Project area, to be held at the CCC camp at Madison, on Friday, June 18, at 1:30 P. M.

The program that has been arranged by the Madison project staff in co-operation with Mr. F. S. Walker, County agent of Rockingham County, will consist of several short talks by agricultural leaders of the State and be followed by a short trip to the farms of some of the co-operators of the Soil Conservation Service, to see some of the Erosion control practices that have been established on these farms.

For those who may desire to inspect the camp, before or after the main program, tours of the camp have been arranged by Lieutenant Summerell, Commanding Officer.

Mr. E. Y. Floyd, as a tobacco farmer, who is practicing erosion control on his farm, will have a very worth while message for all interested in tobacco growing. All farmers and business men of Rockingham and Stokes counties are invited to attend this field meeting as guests of the State Extension Service.

SOIL CONSERVATION SERVICE.

Mrs. Fagg's Anniversary

At their pretty home on Rural Hall road out from Winston-Salem Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Fagg, former Danbury residents, tendered a few of their Danbury friends a dinner. The occasion was Mrs. Fagg's birthday, and as she showered her friends with delicious things to eat and a cordial welcome, they showered her with felicitations and good wishes, and their appreciation and thanks for a most pleasant evening.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Fagg, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Joyce, Harvey Fagg, Mrs. S. P. Christian, Mrs. N. E. Pepper, Mrs. N. E. Wall, Miss Janie Martin.

Sunday Baseball

Walnut Cove will meet the strong Hartman team at Danbury Sunday in a regular League game, it being the game King won that Walnut Cove protested on the ground that they used a player who did not live in the county and therefore violated a League rule. The managers of Walnut Cove and Hartman have reached an agreement to play the game over.

There will be plenty of excitement here Sunday when Jonah Easter leads his team upon the field against Jesse Booth's strong Hartman team. Game called at 3:00 P. M.

When Malthus predicted the eventual overproduction of the earth he did not foresee the automobile era.

The good wishes, the sincere sympathy and the prayers of her Danbury friends go out to Mrs. Dr. C. W. Joyce of Fletcher, Okla. She is critically ill with several strokes of paralysis, is unconscious and speechless. This was formerly Cora Petree, a Danbury girl, and a fine, splendid girl. She was visited for several weeks lately by her father, N. O. Petree of Danbury, who has returned from her bedside.

Hints for Homemakers By Jane Rogers

SERVED alone, seasoned tomato juice or canned Hawaiian pine apple juice are rivals for first place in the realm of distinguished appetizers. But have you ever served tomato and pineapple juice in combination? Here is a combination of two favorite juices that will tickle the palate and whet the appetite of your most discriminating guest. It is appropriately named—Delectable Cocktail. To prepare servings for six, mix two cups canned Hawaiian pineapple juice, one cup undiluted tomato juice and the juice of two lemons. Chill and shake well before serving.

Every woman likes to have a list of easily prepared main dishes from which to choose on those days when she has but a few minutes to spend in the kitchen preparing dinner. Nothing could be more satisfactory at such a time than this recipe for oysters. Drain one pint of oysters, place in a heavy frying pan and cook over a low fire until the edges curl. Add four tablespoons butter, two tablespoons lemon juice, and pepper and salt to taste. Bring to a boil. Serve on hot toast, garnish with lemon.

New Brazil Nut Cookie Recipes

Remove Butterscotch Cookies from Baking Sheet Shortly After Removing from Oven. Let Them Cool On a Rack.

THIN nut cookies are in great demand, particularly in homes brightened by young children. Running in and out of the house all day, burning up energy with every step, youngsters constantly ask for something to eat. Actually they need frequent "refueling". A new kind of cookie, crunchy and brown, is the treat of treats for them.

Butterscotch cookies are rich in energy elements as well as being delightfully flavored. There are a dozen and one ways to make them. But the liberal use of ground Brazil nuts in the recipe pictured as detailed below represents a pleasant departure from routine preparation. The nuts in this instance are an important part of the batter, not just something that is casually added. One caution to observe in baking is to remove them from the baking sheets before they have cooled, and hardened.
