Marshall Introduces Bill To Establish Special Law District in Stokes County

Raleigh, March 15. — Representative W. F. Marshall of Stokes today introduced a bill to establish a special law-enforcement district in Stokes county to be known as the King law enforcement district. The bill was referred to house judiciary committee No. 2 of which George Uzzell of Rowan is chairman.

The bill sets out that the purpose of establishing the district is to promote more thorough and diligent enforcement of all criminal laws and especially those relating to the manufacture, sale, use and transportation of intoxicating liquors, beverages and drugs by providing the means whereby special law enforcement officers may be employed on a salary basis.

The bill establishes the following boundaries for the district: Beginning at the Forsyth county line on state highway 66 then west along the line to the Little Yadkin River; North up the Little Yadkin River to Danbury Creek; then east following Danbury Creek, crossing Goff road to the Sam Brown place; thence following the Sam Brown and Ed Jessup road to the Riley and Bill Smith road; thence along Riley Fulp and Bill Smith road to Joe Lawson's north line and at or near the intersection of King's Cross-Roads at the old State highway shed; along John Lawson's north line eastwardly to W. I. Warner's north line; thence eastward with W. I. Warner's line to highway 66 and south along the highway to the beginning marker.

The bill provides for a commission of three to have charge of the district and names the following as commissioners: C. S. Newsom, Charles R. Carroll and Dr. R. S. Helsabeck. They would serve without pay until June, 1941, after which commissioners would be elected for two-year terms.

The bill also would empower the commissioners to levy and collect taxes and to construct a jail. An election on the tax question would be set for next June.

Business Guides

THERE are four interrelated subjects which any person should study before he attempts to engage in any form of merchandising business for himself. These are, marketing, business finance, accounting and business law. The man who plans to start a small manufacturing concern should also be a student of production. The ability to interpret financial statements is as important to the business executive as to the accountant. The day has passed when even the smallest business can be operated successfully without financial statements and the constant study of the information they contain.

Of the great number of men who go into business for themselves each year, only a few meet with sufficient success to enable them to continue to operate. Statisticians have estimated that from 80 to 90 per cent of all small businesses ultimately fail. The principal cause of failure is lack of business knowledge. Many small enterprises are started when a cursory study of the market available would show that there was no possibility of sufficient sales being obtained regularly to meet operating expenses, let alone to pay interest on the money invested and to yield the owner a profit. Many businesses that have the possibility of success fail because their owners have insufficient understanding of business principles and methods. The direct aim of the business man is to make a profit out of which to support himself and his dependents and to lay aside savings in as large an amount as possible to constitute a competence for his old age. This desire to make money by engaging in business for one's self is typically American and perfectly legitimate, but cannot be fulfilled today without study of all the important aspects of business.

BEAUTY TIPS

By Virginia Lee

YOU'VE heard the old saying—"she's a lady to her fingertips"—it still goes! And for her ladyship we can't think of anything nicer than a modern manicure set. We saw a smart and inexpensive one the other day called the Observatory Set. It comes in a modern plastic case and contains all the necessities for a complete manicure. Another aid for the care of her ladyship's nails is the glycerated polish remover pads in tall jars that look as if they were lace lined. Each jar contains 40 pads, one pad sufficient to remove polish from all ten fingers. In short, a supply for almost a year! There are sixteen smart tones in cream nail polishes—from Natural to deep Vineyard hand cream to keep skin white and smooth. Nail groom to keep nails from splitting, cuticle from drying. With these as our command it is easy to be smart to our fingertips.
