

LOCALS

Judge E. C. Bivens of Mt. Airy owns a very fine orchard, and on Sunday evenings may be found personally serving apples and excellent cider at reasonable prices.

Terry Brown, a good farmer of Route 1, Danbury, was here Wednesday on business.

Mrs. Corbett Priddy and children of Route 1 have occupied apartments here in the Loftis "Old Inn" building. Mrs. Priddy and her family are welcomed here. She will hold a position with the welfare department.

M. O. Stevens was in town this week. He is offering some very sensational bargains in his advertisement which appears in this issue of the Reporter. Mr. Stevens is now both a wholesaler and a retailer, and in this capacity is able to offer quite unusual values.

A birthday dinner was given last Sunday by his many friends to John Abe Shelton at his home in Quaker Gap township. Several Danbury citizens attended, and they express their enjoyment over the occasion.

The big annual Rothrock reunion occurred last Sunday at the home of E. A. Rothrock. Quite a number of Danburians were present at the popular gathering, Mrs. Loftis herself expects to go to a hospital soon for an operation.

Mrs. Luther Wood, of Route 1, was in Danbury this week.

Mrs. Anna Douglas of Princeton, W. Va., who has been visiting her sister, Miss Nannie L. Pepper, has gone to Winston-Salem for a visit with another sister, Mrs. J. C. Dodson.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tuttle of Leaksville, accompanied by Mrs. Tuttle's father, Mr. Wilson of Leaksville, were visitors in Danbury today. Mr. Tuttle was formerly connected with the soil conservation activities in the county.

A. E. Southern of Flat Shoal was here Wednesday.

T. D. Preston of Pine Hall was in town this week.

Jim Moore of Walnut Cove was here Sunday. He had with him his beautiful little daughter, Elaine.

Cicero Boles of Mt. View is in a Winston-Salem hospital. He fell from a load of tops and almost broke his neck. But he is now recovering fine. He was visited by his brother W. F. Bowles of Walnut Cove Tuesday.

W. S. Culler, of Pinnacle, who is the father of Mrs. H. P. Loftis, of the county home in Stokes, suffered a stroke recently and is in a rather serious condition. Mrs. Loftis herself expects to go to a hospital soon for an operation.

Mrs. Paul Lewis is home again and doing nicely after a sojourn in a western North Carolina sanitarium.

Misses Marjorie Green and Rachel Johnson, two very attractive young ladies of King, were here a short while Monday.

Ellen Prather Hall returned to Sardis near Charlotte Sunday night after having spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hall.

A number of townfolk attended the Rothrock reunion at the Rothrock home near here Sunday.

Ellen Kate Pepper has returned to Raleigh where she is in school after visiting her home during the week-end.
