Attractions Coming to The Stuart Theatre

"Ransho Grande"—A colorful musical western, with the ever-popular Autry and Burnette combination. Autry running a ranch, finally outwits the scheming land-grabbing outlaws. Many tuneful song hits by Autry and Mary Lee.

"I Was An Adventuress"—Zorina, as a continental jewel-thief-charming swindler, who tries to reform for Richard Greene. Many tense and romantic moments. Fine performances given by entire cast. Zorina's ballet sequence is well worth the price of admission.

"Never Say Die"—Two of the screen's screwiest zanies, have gotten together for one of the nuttiest screen fiascos in ages. Hope marries Martha Raye in order to get out of another marriage. Things get into an awful mixup. A duel to end all duels is fought. All ends well for all concerned. A rib-tickler, side splitter of a show.

"Farmer's Daughter"—Ruggles rents barn for summer theatre, from Raye's father. Leading lady walks out and Martha is given part. She falls in love with leading man. All ends well. Packed with comedy and gags. Martha sings two song hits. Highly entertaining.
