COUNTY AGENT BROWN RESIGNS

CAPABLE OFFICIAL ACCEPTS POSITION WITH COBLE DAIRIES—SUCCESSOR WILL BE L. F. BROOMFIELD—CHANGE TAKES EFFECT DEC. 1.

The Reporter learns on excellent authority that County Agent J. F. Brown has resigned to take effect Dec. 1, and has accepted a position as manager of Coble Dairies at Lexington.

Mr. Brown's successor will be L. F. Broomfield, who has been assistant county agent.

Mr. Brown's work as agricultural administrator of Stokes has been very able and efficient. He has built up strong interest and marked improvement of methods in Stokes county farming during his several years of incumbency. His leaving will be attended with regret on the part of his hosts of friends in the county.

No less earnest, conscientious and successful have been the services of Mr. Broomfield, the assistant agent. Mr. Broomfield's advent to this most important work will be viewed with much pleasure by those who know his capabilities and who are his loyal supporters, and whose cooperation he may expect.

OLD TIME FRIEND WRITES REPORTER

HUGH R. SCOTT OF REIDSVILLE ENJOYS EDITORIAL IN REPORTER—MR. SCOTT WAS OF THE STOKES BAR THAT MADE NORTH CAROLINA FAMOUS.

The Reporter is especially pleased with the following letter received from Hon. H. R. Scott, who was of the old-time Stokes bar that made North Carolina famous with its Glens, Bicketts Stacks, Moreheads, Scaleses, Buxtons, Watsons, etc.

Mr. Scott's letter follows:
HUGH R. SCOTT,
Attorney at Law
Reidsville, N. C.
Nov. 11, 1940.

Editor Danbury Reporter,
Dear Sir:

Through the kindness of my friend, Mr. Robt. Hairston, I have seen and read your editorial, "Meeting The Champ" in your issue of the 7th inst. It is a rare specimen of superb wit. It hits the mark, and deserves national circulation. I hope you will send Mr. Roosevelt a copy of it to be filed with his reminiscences of the campaign of 1940.

Back in the eighties and nineties in the days of W. B. Glenn, C. B. Watson, Andrew Joyce, W. W. Mebane, R. B. Glenn and other members of the bar, I used to attend court at Danbury regularly; and I recall many pleasant recollections of Taylor's Hotel and the Peppers.

I believe all of these old friends have "crossed the river". I am

OUR GYVED EDITORIALISTS.

The average editorial writer wears gyves. He writes what he is told to write. He drags clinking behind his paragraphs, a chain.

The tradition of a free press in this land of the brave is a myth, an embossed fiction, an aerial phantasmagoria. In other words there ain't no such animal except in isolated instances.

The average editorial from United States newspaper offices is manufactured behind the glass doors of counting rooms. Its complexion is painted by the owners of the 51 per cent. of the capital stock, and is shaped to harmonize with the interests of big advertisers.

That is why the great newspapers of America have largely lost their influence. That is why the 80-odd per cent. of America's newspapers took a beating the other day by the common people who have lost faith in them as purveyors of morality and truth.

Now the above paragraphs are the substance of an editorial that appeared in the Danbury Reporter some months ago in which was stated the frank fact that the bulk of the editors of America no longer enjoy the glorious privilege guaranteed to them under our immortal Bill of Rights—the freedom of speech and the FREEDOM OF THE PRESS.

The Reporter is flattered that so keen an analyst and so eminent a publicist as Secretary of the Interior Ickes comes around practically to our view. And while the Secretary with his responsibilities refrains from the candor that we enjoy, nevertheless you may read his significant meaning between his lines. He says (speaking before a group of reporters representing many of the leading papers of the nation):

"The campaign just closed revealed 77 per cent. of the newspapers supporting the losing side; four years ago it was 64 per cent; eight years ago it was 60 per cent."

He ended with this:
"The press is not free when it expresses only the views of one social or economic side of a national issue."

A week ago the Reporter reprinted an editorial from the Philadelphia Record (a great newspaper which wears no gyves), a graphic history of the life and recent DEATH of a Tennessee newspaper that dared speak its honest convictions.

The power of money is so colossal, and its ramifications so universal, that its influence cannot be measured.

But as long as a small minority of newspapers will dare to speak the "Truth that makes men free" there is hope for the world.

The voice of the people is the voice of God. The greatest menace to democracy is the "controlled" press that smotheres the voice of the people.

The sacred privilege of a free speech through a free press is democracy's last refuge.

The Danbury people of all denominations extend a cordial welcome to Rev. Jas. L. Love and family, who have arrived, and now occupy the parsonage on West Main Street. Mr. and Mrs. Love are natives of Cabarrus county, but come here directly from Draper. Mr. Love will have charge of the Methodist churches of this section.

mile-post in the journey of life, and am glad to say that after a long critical illness, I am in reasonably good health.

With best wishes for the success of the Reporter, I am,

Yours truly,

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Reynolds spent a recent week-end in Albemarle. The Reynolds are leaving this month for Albemarle to make their home. Mr. Reynolds has been connected with the National Park Service at Hanging Rock State Park for the past several years, and has now been transferred to Morrow Mountain State Park where he will do similar work.

Clyde Redding of Mountain View, who for the past several years has held a position in the county AAA office, has recently been transferred to the home of Mrs. Bettle Cromer of Walnut Cove, Route 2 is ill at the Hospital in Winston-Salem.

FUNERAL RITES FOR S. L. PULLIAM

HE DIED AT ASHEBORO AND WAS BURIED AT KING—OTHER NEWS OF KING.

King, Nov. 14.—Sidney Lee Pulliam, aged 77, died at his home in Asheboro almost suddenly from a heart attack Thursday morning. The deceased, who was reared here, is survived by the widow, Mrs. Nelia Meadows Pulliam, nine sons and one daughter. The remains were brought back here and laid to rest at Trinity cemetery just west of town Saturday afternoon at two o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Alford Hauser have returned to their home in Danville, Va., after visiting relatives here.

A large crowd attended the horse and cattle show held here Saturday. The show, which is an annual affair, was a big success this year.

E. P. Newsom made a business trip to Winston-Salem Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Love, who reside on Pulliam street, announce the birth of a son and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hall, a son.

Farmers in this section are very busy husking their corn crop. Gid Newsom seems to have carried off the honors as a record grower this year. He made 541 bushels on twelve acres.

The following patients underwent tonsil removal operations here last week: Robert Dale Rumley, Walter Tuttle and Miss Agnes Burrow, all of Rural Hall. Burke Flynt of Winston-Salem was among the business visitors here Saturday.

Mrs. P. H. Newsom and children have returned from a visit to relatives in Winston-Salem.

F. R. Farnham To Visit Stokes County

F. R. Farnham, Extension Dairy Specialist from State College, will be in Stokes county on Thursday and Friday, November 14 and 15 to assist with a series of dairy meetings, according to an announcement by J. F. Brown, county agent. Meetings have been scheduled as follows: Thursday, November 14, at 10 a. m.—Roger Calloway's farm in the King community; 2 p. m.—J. B. Sizemore's farm in the Haw Pond community; Friday, November 15, 9 a. m.—Sam B. Priddy's farm in the Sandy Ridge community; 11 a. m.—at the Milk Station in Walnut Cove and at 2 p. m.—at Frank L. Tilley's farm in the Lawsonville community.

Mr. Farnham will discuss feeding problems and the remodeling of dairy barns in addition to giving a dehorning demonstration on the farm of Sam B. Priddy. Inspections will be made of trench silos on the farms of Roger Calloway, J. B. Sizemore and Frank L. Tilley. All farmers are invited to attend.
